ALTON RAILWAY SOLD ON BLOCK FOR 73 MILLION

Baltimore and Ohio Is Purchaser.

From its mightiest locomotive to its last stray tool box, the Chicago and Alton railroad, a carrier operating between Chicago, St. Louis, and Kansas City since 1861, was knocked down at public auction yesterday to an eastern road, the Baltimore and Ohio, for a cash sum of $23,000,000 and other considerations bringing the total price to approximately $73,000,000.

On the instant of 2 p. m., Herbert A. Lundahl, master in chancery for Federal Judge Carpenter of Chicago, stood up in the south doorway of the red brick depot at Wilmington, a few miles south of Joliet, and began reading the foreclosure decree of the United States District court, in which the auction was ordered.

Grouped before him in the stuffy little waiting room were some sixty officials and attorneys, representing both railroads and the owners of defaulted bonds, who had journeyed down to Wilmington to witness the sale of the Alton.

Townsfolk Watch Auction.

It was Wilmington's historic day. A delegation of townsfolk, mostly old men and housewives, had come down to the depot to watch the financial moguls from the city transfer to a foreign company the road they had known from childhood.

In the atmosphere of the proceedings, with the solemn reading of the documents in the dingy depot and the earnest attention given by villagers, attorneys, and financiers alike, there was a somber and expressive aspect. The Wilmington people seemed to feel it was their property that was on the block.

A hint of the pervading spirit was expressed by the wife of a Baltimore and Ohio official who, when the sale was over and the crowd dispersed, laughed nervously and remarked to a friend:

"I never felt so strange in my life. It was exactly like attending a funeral. I was waiting for the auctioneer to close by saying, 'May the Alton rest in peace.'"

Special Train Carries Party.

The auction special, a train made up of the president's private car, the general manager's car, two coaches and a diner, pulled out of the Chicago Union station at 11:35 a. m., five minutes behind the Alton limited, the first de luxe train in the west and the pride of the Alton road. Aboard the special were 75 persons, five-sixths of them attorneys, whose duty was to supervise the Alton's legal obsequies.

For an hour before train time the president of the Alton, William G. Bierd, was at the station gate, attending the journey comforts of his party, from the highest Baltimore and Ohio official to the least stenographer. To each he extended an invitation to dine aboard the train as the Alton's guest.

Bierd an Active Host.

As the special clicked over the switches and crossings on the city's southwestern limits, Mr. Bierd was moving from car to car, introducing New York, Baltimore, and Chicago attorneys to one another and presenting the chief personalities of the party to the newspaper men. The train was rolling over the prairie west of Willow Springs when the Alton president finally concluded his duties as host and took a chair.

He chose a seat near the glassed rear door of his own car, affording a view of the country spread on either side in the noon sunshine.

In the staterooms ahead typists were clicking out copies of the legal forms to be used and attorneys were in consultation over the final rules of procedure. On Mr. Bierd's right was George M. Shriver, senior vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio, and on the left, R. Marsden Smith, general attorney of the B. & O.

President for 16 Years.

The two officials of the eastern road chatted about the good condition of the Alton and the adjoining farm lands. But Mr. Bierd, except for an occasional perfunctory answer, was silent and immersed in his own thoughts. He has been president of the Alton for 16 years and receiver for eight, expending during that time ten hours a day and $27,000,000 of the Alton's earnings to maintain the property to the standard of a first class road.

There was a whistle blast that brought housewives to their backdoors as the special pulled into Wilmington. Frank Breen, the agent there for 26 years, appeared outside the station in his shirt sleeves, pulled down a semaphore to protect the train from a rear collision and, unabashed by the visit

"Bugs" Moran Is Acquitted by Jury

FIND GANGSTER NOT GUILTY IN VAGRANCY CASE

Hoodlum Near Fight with Detective.

George (Bugs) Moran, former north side gang leader, was found not guilty of vagrancy by a jury in the Lake County court in Waukegan last night. The jurors debated five hours and took eight ballots, a majority favoring acquittal on each vote. The first vote was 8 to 4 in favor of a not guilty verdict and those in the minority finally joined in a unanimous decision that the ex-convict was not a vagabond.

Moran, who had maintained a smiling, confident attitude throughout the three day trial, grinned as he shook hands with the jurors. His wife, Lucille, wept for joy.

"Now that this is cleaned up, I want to be cleared of all charges in Chicago," said Moran. "Then I'm going to get back in the cleaning and dyeing business. I have some important plans for the improvement of the trade."

Crowd Quiet at Verdict.

Judge Harry L. Persons had warned that there should be no demonstration when the verdict was read and the courtroom crowd was quiet. State's Attorney A. V. Smith, who had announced that the trial was a test of "whether gangsters may come with impunity into Lake county," said he was uncertain about plans to try Moran on a second charge of vagrancy.

Members of the jury said the evidence had not convinced them that Moran was a vagrant in the meaning of the law. They had apparently been impressed by the defendant's assertion that he was a business man with a steady income.

Reports had persisted that federal agents, waiting in the courtroom, would arrest Moran after the trial on charges of evading the income tax laws. However, the gangster was allowed to depart without being molested. Most of his testimony, it was pointed out, concerned his income during 1930, for which period he need not make a return until next March.

Attorney Henry Kane, general counsel for the Central Cleaners and Dyers, of which Moran is an official, said he would confer with federal authorities this morning concerning a settlement of Moran's income tax difficulties.

Near Fight with Detective.

The last day of the trial was tumultuous. There were several sensational developments.

Moran furnished most of the excitement in the court corridor when he engaged in an altercation with George Hargrave, head of a private detective agency, whose operatives arrested the gangster in Lake county on the vagrancy charge. The two men were separated before they came to blows.

Moran Aid Is Seized.

Other developments of the day included the seizure by federal agents of Benjamin H. Kornack, one of Moran's associates in the cleaning and dyeing business, after he left the witness stand. Kornack was ordered to produce all the books and records of the Central Cleaners and Dyers association, of which Moran is vice president. He promised to bring the records before the federal grand jury today.

Capt. John Stege, former chief of detectives, another witness, noticed a Moran gangster loitering about the corridor and arrested him after a chase. He was identified as Mike Douvich, alias Doorman, and booked on a charge of vagrancy. Stege declared that Douvich was a known gangster and a member of the Moran gang for eight years.

When told of the arrest, Moran said: "We'll see whether he can get away with that."

Advises "Bugs" to Leave.

In closing arguments Attorney Richard I. Gavin, representing Moran, turned to the gangster and said:

"Every one's against you in this state. You'd better leave. Their prejudice will never give you a chance."

Mrs. Lucille Moran, the defendant's wife, burst into tears at these words. Moran lost his smile for the first time.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith told the jury in his closing argument that Moran was a "bloodthirsty tiger who should be treated as all dangerous animals are treated."

Prosecutor Sidney Block, summing up the evidence to the jury, stressed the fact that Moran was not a vagrant

Girl Tells of Love Affair with Major

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Plans for a honeymoon with Miss Grace Brandon a few months after his wife had died, from what the government declares was poison by his hand, were read as testimony against Maj. Charles A. Shepard late today. They were in letters written to Miss Brandon, who sat in the witness stand and identified them between sobs.

Mrs. Shepard died in June, 1929. The letters were written between July and October the same year, and described one proposed honeymoon to Canada and Niagara Falls.

Miss Brandon gave the thrill-seekers an emotional scene this morning, weeping almost immediately after taking the stand. She was asked by L. E. Wyman, first assistant United States district attorney, to "tell the court in your own words just what conversation you had with Maj. Shepard concerning his wife and their relations."

Tears Interrupt First Answer.

She hesitated a minute, as if struggling to begin, and then the tears started to her eyes and she made no answer. After regaining her composure Miss Brandon said:

"He said he and his wife had not been getting along well the last five years. That they kept up congenial appearances at social functions because of his rank in the army."

She met Maj. Shepard about the first of November, 1928, she said. She was introduced to him as the other boarders were at the San Antonio boarding house.

"Did Maj. Shepard ask you to go out with him?"

"He did. He asked me how I would like to go out with a major, as well as with the lieutenants. I told him 'Sure, I would.'"

"Did you know Maj. Shepard was married?" came the question.

"Yes, I did know it. I asked him whether his wife objected."

Spectators never learned whether the major said the wife did or didn't for the questions continued then about the relationship between the army man and Miss Brandon.

Received Many Presents.

A veritable tide of presents from Maj. Shepard was enumerated by Miss Brandon as follows: A bracelet, toilet set, gold ring, canary, check for $10 to $15 to buy ice skates, necklace, diamond in platinum setting, crystal bead necklace, pearl necklace, another bracelet, $1,500 coupe, mesh bag, another pearl necklace, string of Japanese pearls, fitted week-end bag, silver fox fur piece, diamond dinner

LAWYER KILLS SELF WITH GAS IN N. Y. STUDIO

New York, Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Oliver E. Holmes, 35, lawyer, world war veteran, and a member of a socially prominent family, committed suicide tonight by inhaling gas, according to the police, in the three room studio he occupied with his wife, the former Marjorie Jay Daingerfield, on the fifth floor of the National Arts club on East 19th street.

Mr. Holmes was at one time a member of the law firm of Chadbourne, Hunt, Jaeckel & Brown.

No notes were found in the apartment explaining his act, but under the door leading from the hallway the police found a piece of cardboard on which had been scrawled the warning, "Gas—Do Not Light Matches."

ADMITS MISUSE OF 8 MILLIONS OF LOAN FUNDS

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—G. H. Beesemyer, secretary and general manager of the Guaranty Building and Loan association, allied with the Bank of Hollywood, which closed on Monday, tonight confessed to peculations which may total $8,000,000, according to the announcement of police.

Beesemyer told them, police said, he had taken the vast sum over a period of years and because of his official position was able to keep the true state of affairs both from his associates and from the state authorities.

A written confession was being prepared late tonight for Beesemyer to sign.

Bodies Tossed in Ditch After a "Last Ride"

Taken for a ride and shot through the head, two unidentified gangsters were flung into the ditch at 91st street and California avenue, Evergreen Park, early this morning by their slayers, who then speeded away in four automobiles. The scene of the double murder is a lonely spot at the northwest corner of Evergreen Golf club course and a quarter of a mile west of the Beverly Country club.

The bodies were found a short time after the shooting by Theodore Weirsma of Evergreen Park, who was driving to his home at 89th street and California avenue. He reported the discovery to two Evergreen Park firemen, at the time the only occupants of the suburb's police station.

One Found Still Living.

The firemen, Ralph De Groot, 9343 South Troy street, and Peter Lich, 9415 South Sawyer avenue, hastened to the scene and found the victims lying in the road face down and five feet apart. One of them was still living, De Groot said, but he died before he was able to identify himself or his slain companion.

A few minutes after the bodies were discovered an anonymous caller notified the Chicago detective bureau that "two hoodlums had been taken for a ride and left in Evergreen Park." Several Chicago detectives hastened to the scene, but were unable to identify the dead men.

Their only information about the shooting came from Mrs. Martha Van Woerden of Crown Point, Ind., a guest at the farmhouse of Joseph Klemp, less than a block from where the bodies were found. Mrs. Van Woerden said that about midnight she heard four or five shots and that soon afterward four automobiles swept by the house. She thought they were bound east for Western avenue.

Both Men Well Dressed.

Both of the dead men were well dressed and both wore gray hats. One had brown hair and blue eyes and was garbed in brown overcoat and suit. His hat had been purchased in the Russell & Turner men's furnishings shop at 3169 West Madison street.

The other wore a blue overcoat and a suit of blue plaid material. Both men wore similar rings with red stone settings.

Lieut. Richard Barry of the detective bureau took charge of the Chicago police investigation at the scene and operatives of the bureau of identification were sent for to determine whether they could identify the ride victims by their finger prints. Chief William Collins with a force of county highway police also went to the scene, but none of them could identify the dead men.

SENATOR ELECT LEWIS ILL WITH A SEVERE COLD

Senator Elect James Hamilton Lewis has been confined to his room at the Ambassador hotel for the last week suffering from a severe cold and congestion of the lungs. Although he remained in bed throughout the week under orders of his physician, who feared pneumonia, Senator Elect Lewis last night said he would appear at his office for a short time this morning.

The cold, which had been troubling Mr. Lewis for some time, became acute last Saturday night after he had made an address to the graduating class of Kent College of Law. A scheduled address before the Indiana society wast postponed. Yesterday Mr. Lewis telegraphed officers of the Gridiron club in Washington that he would be unable to address their annual banquet. President Hoover and Senator Elect Lewis were to have been the only speakers.

G. O. P. JOINS IN SENATE REVOLT AGAINST HOOVER

17 Say President Is Not Co-operating.

The senate passed President Hoover's emergency construction bill calling for an expenditure of 118 millions, but only after the broad discretionary authority requested for him had been eliminated. Details on page 2.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—The warfare between President Hoover and the senate today took on an aspect of open rebellion not only on the part of Democrats and radical Republicans but on that of regular Republicans as well.

The President has on his hands a senate that, except for a group of stalwarts, is nonpartisan in its resentment at his charge about playing politics and raiding the public treasury and a Republican support smarting under what many members consider his unfair action in passing the burden of the world court from his shoulders to theirs.

Resent President's Charges.

A group of 17 administration Republican senators headed by Senator Watson of Indiana, the majority leader, and including such loyal administration supporters as Fess of Ohio and Reed of Pennsylvania, held a heated conference today and voiced their anger over the President's charges and accused him of failure to coöperate with his loyal supporters.

The President for his part was plainly angry. Although sending no statement from the White House, he demanded of Senator Watson the reason why only two Republicans have bothered even to attempt to defend him against the radical and Democratic attacks that have been made against his policies and even his character in the last few days.

The list of regular Republican malcontents comprised, besides the senators already named, Glenn of Illinois, Davis of Pennsylvania, Morrow and Kean of New Jersey, Townsend and Hastings of Delaware, Moses of New Hampshire, Wolcott of Rhode Island, Goldsborough of Maryland, Steiwer of Oregon, Robinson of Indiana, Gillette of Massachusetts, Shortridge of California, and Patterson of Missouri.

Seeks to Prove Justification.

The President, it is reported, is determined to prove that his statement of last Tuesday was justified. He asked that Senator Watson see to it that John Barton Payne, president of the Red Cross, and Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the emergency committee on employment, be given a chance to testify before a senate committee.

The Republican leaders also were informed, it was said, that unless the Republican opposition was solid proposals to pay the balance due in adjusted compensation to world war veterans in cash, entailing nearly 3 billion dollars, would be enacted.

The senate leaders were told that the President, unless the situation becomes more satisfactory, is prepared to issue another statement on the general trend of relief legislation. The statement, it was reported, would be even more positive than his declaration of last Tuesday that congress was "playing politics at the expense of human misery."

The President's object is to prove that adequate relief for the unemployed already is being extended, and that the broader measures proposed in congress are therefore unnecessary and uneconomic.

The Republican senators, on the other hand, are equally determined in their resentment.

Harrison Assails President.

They sat again to day and listened to Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] pour out a speech that surpassed any that have gone before in irony. Senator Harrison is the owner of a tongue renowned for sarcasm. His text was a letter and the proof of an advertisement circulated by World's Work, published by Doubleday, Doran & Co. The letter, signed by Russell Doubleday, editor of the magazine, called on Americans to subscribe their names and pledge up to $100 to ensure the printing of the advertisement, which was in the form of a letter to President Hoover supporting his policy.

"This is an organized scheme to get the people to believe that the President is not only a great engineer but a great President," said Senator Harrison, smiling genially. "At the same time——" his grin changed to a scowl—"it is a scheme to reflect on the United States senate. The other day, when the President gave out that intemperate, impassioned statement he was carrying out this scheme."

Senator Harrison began to warm to his work.

"This letter is being circulated

Normal Buying Unlocks Gate to Normal Times

Prosperity could be brought back in a lot of different ways—for a while. A big war might do it. Or a big subsidy of some kind by the government. Or the discovery of gold or platinum in everybody's back yard.

The most effective way of bringing back good times, however, is based on no such sensational contingencies. Moreover, the one workable way is the solid, common sense way. We refer to normal buying for normal needs.

There is no magic formula or quick remedy for current ills. The present lull in business has been with us now for more than a year. Time has been given its chance to patch up what it could. It is now up to people themselves to see that the ball starts rolling. Practically all that is needed now is the resumption of normal buying on the part of everybody whose income hasn't been materially affected. Such action will provide jobs for those who now can't buy normally. Then, when the jobless are back in jobs, prosperity again will rule.

Chicago Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

secretly, but I want to call it to the attention of the senate and inform the country so that they may attune their hearts for the reception of the great event when the letter is published, Jan. 2," he declared. "It is going to be a momentous document. It is to be paid for by a few sycophants who have been corralled.

"They are employing tactics worse than those of the racketeers. They are going to put the President on a pedestal higher than ever occupied by any other President."

Senator Harrison turned, grinning once more, to the Republicans across the aisle.

"How many of my friends over there are going to cough up $100? Just imagine if one of these letters had been addressed to the senior senator from California."

Johnson Asks If It's Joke.

Senator Johnson, sworn enemy of the President, got to his feet.

"I saw one of those documents," he said. "I thought it was a joke. Does the senator mean that it is real?"

Gayly Pat Harrison assured him that it was.

"I thought they were playing a joke," said Senator Johnson, shaking his gray head and looking sadly out through his spectacles. "I couldn't conceive of any one, even in this day of propaganda, making such an effort as is contained in that document."

A New Year's Surprise.

"You see," Pat Harrison explained carefully, "they want to give the people a happy surprise for New Year's day. They didn't believe the people were taking the President seriously, so they came to his rescue. All they ask is that somebody go down in his jeans and pay for it. Ah! It is going to be another Declaration of Independence, a great and immortal document of all time.

"Listen to it. It is headed 'Confidence.' Yes, a confidence game. Fellows that want their nominations confirmed might contribute $100, but others——?

"Why, I don't think that even my good friend from Maine [Senator Hale] would subscribe even though he doesn't come up for reelection for four years. And I know you couldn't get Odie [Nev.] there with a lasso. Norris [Neb.], of course, did not even get a letter. Perhaps my friend Keyes [N. H.] did, though. He is now known as the New England curiosity. He came through the election with a big majority. And Phipps [Colo.] might even sign. He's through with politics. He don't care about his political reputation any more."

Continues to Read Letter.

With the intended letter to the President in his hand, he proceeded to read from it and comment. [The letter is printed elsewhere on this page.] The senator quoted laudatory phrases from the letter concerning Mr. Hoover's leadership.

"Leadership!" he cried. "Why, for fourteen months he never took sides while we debated the tariff. That's his leadership. His policy has been indecisive and negative. And yet they talk about sane and progressive leadership."

"I did not think the President considered that anything progressive could be sane," came from Senator Caraway.

"When the crisis came it found you at the head of the government, as if Providence had foreseen the need——" Pat Harrison went on. "I wonder whether other Republican candidates for President would think Providence had a hand in it."

Then he went on to comment on the letter's reference to the subordinates. President Hoover had picked and smiled at the words referring to the President's calm judgment and his method of turning aside destructive criticism.

"Why, he winces under criticism," said Pat Harrison.

"Why not?" inquired Senator Caraway. "He's had a lot of it, more probably than any other President."

"That's right," Senator Harrison came back, "but by this time he ought to have the hide of an elephant. Now, as to this letter, it's the greatest fraud ever conceived. I thought I ought to publish it, so the public wouldn't be deluded."

"It ought to be published on the first day of April instead of the second of January," concluded Senator Caraway.

Senator Wagner's speech came earlier in the day when he sought to defend his three pending bills which would set up governmental agencies to cope with unemployment. The bills were introduced during the last session, but progressed slowly.

"I returned to Washington, cherishing the hope that the administration, chastened by the last election, would willingly cooperate in the endeavor to do something today," he said. "Instead, in the very first message of the President I am greeted with the old refrain, 'Tomorrow, tomorrow, it is too soon to act today."

Refuses to Aid Scheme.

Concerning the World's Work letter, it was stated at the White House that they had been approached by the agent of another magazine with a similar proposition. The agent was told that the President would lend no support to such a plan. This same person then transferred his activities from the first magazine to World's Work, and the plan was put under way before the administration had had opportunity to object to it, as it would have.

Despite White House denials that the World's Work letter was countenanced by President Hoover, the letter and the White House were connected by Senator Harrison, who recalled that French Strother, a secretary to the President, formerly had been on the editorial staff of World's Work.

FORM OF "LETTER" LAUDING PRESIDENT RIDICULED IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—The text of the "advertisement" proposed for publication in World's Work in January and for which signatures are solicited at $100 per person is given herewith. It is planned as an indorsement of President Hoover and it was read in the senate this afternoon and ridiculed by Senator Pat Harrison and others. The document in full follows:

"Important—Editors and publishers are requested to regard this letter and the accompanying information as strictly confidential until the day of publication.

"Confidence:

"President Hoover, White House, Washington.

"Dear Sir: The American people have just passed through a trying twelve months with a courage and cool determination of which they may justly be proud. They have converted what might have been an economic disaster into a triumph of sound readjustment. In consequence our financial and industrial foundations stand broader and firmer today than at any other time in our history.

"We believe the American people owe this achievement in great measure to the fact that their constructive efforts were unified under your sane and progressive leadership.

"When the crisis came it found at the head of our government, as if Providence had foreseen the need, a man seasoned in the ways of business and skilled in coordinating vast enterprises. Your counsel, your example, the calm judgment with which, on the one hand, you availed yourself of the assistance of other experienced leaders and, on the other hand, quietly turned aside destructive criticism before it had a chance to spread groundless fears—these have been prime factors in our victory.

"We sign this letter, therefore, to express our deep gratitude for what you have accomplished during the last year and to assure you that you will have in the continuation of your policies of readjustment the unqualified support of all Americans who, regardless of party or of special interests, have the nation's prosperity at heart."

[LIST OF INDORSERS.]

"Although we are directly interested in this movement as its sponsor, we are acting merely as a clearing house for the endorsers.

"We believe we are speaking for the great mass of the American people when we extend thanks to the public spirited citizens whose names appear on this page for the moral and financial support which has made this nation-wide campaign of publicity possible.

"World's Work, a monthly magazine.

"Urgent notice:

"To take the earliest possible advantage of the situation, this advertisement is scheduled for publication Jan. 2, 1931. To meet this schedule the importance of an immediate response is evident."

Knocks Policeman to Sidewalk; Felled by Shot

Lester Arthur, 23 years old, of Fort Madison, Ia., a Santa Fe railroad fireman, walked into a cigar store at Adams and State streets last night and asked to have a $15 check cashed. Sergt. Joseph Libretti of the Central district happened along and demanded to see the check. Arthur tore it up saying, "I don't like coppers." Libretti arrested him. Arthur hit Libretti on the chin, felling him to the sidewalk. Then he started running south in State street. Libretti chased him a block to Jackson boulevard and then west to the postoffice, firing as he ran. He finally dropped Arthur with a flesh wound in the leg, and the latter is now in the Bridewell hospital.

JAILED FOR BEATING WIFE.

Charged with wife beating, Clifford Leffew, 28 years old, 948 West Adams street, was sentenced yesterday to 60 days in the Bridewell by Judge Frederick Elliott. The wife, Mrs. Vivien Leffew, exhibited a bandaged head and arms.

SENATE VOTES 118 MILLIONS TO SPEED U. S. WORK

But Tells President How to Spend Money.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—President Hoover's emergency construction bill was passed today by the senate, but only after the last vestige of the broad discretionary authority originally requested for him had been eliminated.

The bill was passed without a record vote and without opposition, although its consideration again was made the excuse for attacks upon the President. Amendments which were approved ran the total amount up to 118 million dollars, an increase of $8,000,000 over the total in the bill as passed by the house.

The elimination of a section giving discretionary authority to the executive was construed as a direct slap at President Hoover. The action was taken on the motion of Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, after Senators William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] and George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] had raised questions about the provision.

Projects Already Authorized.

Under the terms of the bill as originally introduced in the house on the recommendation of President Hoover and the budget bureau, the President was given blanket authority to spend 150 million dollars for various highway and construction projects already authorized by law, but for which sufficient appropriations were lacking. The house appropriations committee, to meet objections of the Democrats, cut the total to 110 millions and provided for the appropriation of this money for specified purposes. The only authority given to the President was in a clause which stated that "the sums herein appropriated shall be available interchangeably for expenditure on the objects named in this act upon order of the President stating the amounts and the appropriations between which such interchanges are to be made." It was this provision which was eliminated by the senate.

Senator Borah asked Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], chairman of the appropriations committee, who was in charge of the bill, if this discretionary provision was not such as to make it a lump sum appropriation. Senator Jones said this probably was true, but that he did not think the President would take advantage of the authority given him.

"Isn't it true that the President might transfer the entire amount to any one item in the bill?" asked Senator Norris.

Senator Jones replied in the affirmative, whereupon Senator Norris said that so far as he knew no similar provision ever has been incorporated in a law heretofore.

Senator Robinson said it was "a most unusual provision," and that he "failed to see the necessity for the granting of any such broad power to the President."

Amendments added in the senate included one by Senator T. L. Oddie [Rep., Nev.] for the appropriation of $5,000,000 for roads on the public domain and on Indian and other federal reservations and one by Senator Carl Hayden [Dem., Ariz.] for $3,000,000 for highways in national forests. Senator Jones consented to the acceptance of both of these items so they might be considered by conferees of the senate and house in adjusting the differences in the senate and house bills.

Include 80 Million for Loans.

Appropriations included in the original 110 million dollars included $80,000,000 for loans to the states for highway construction to be repaid over a five year period by deductions from federal aid contributions, $22,500,000 to the army engineers for river and harbor improvements, $3,000,000 to the army engineers for flood control work on the Mississippi, $3,000,000 to the department of agriculture for forest roads and trails and $1,500,000 to the department of the interior for roads in national parks. The river and harbor item will make possible allotment of $1,200,000 for the Illinois waterway.

Under a senate amendment the money will be available within limit as to date instead of only for use between Jan. 1 and June 30, 1931, as in the house bill.

The senate adopted an amendment by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] giving preference work done under federal contracts to laborers or mechanics residing at least 90 days within a district, city or state and also requiring contractors to pay the highest prevailing rate of wages.

The senate by a vote of 32 to 42 rejected an amendment by Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] for donation of half of the $50,000,000 highway loans to the states.

Meanwhile the administration drought bill was the subject of conferences in the house, where the leaders decided to wait until the first part of next week before taking it up on the floor.

Seeks to Slash Red Tape.

The house committee on public buildings reported favorably a bill recommended by the treasury department to make it possible to cut red tape in handling the public buildings construction program. It permits work to be done on plans before title to sites actually has been acquired. The committee struck out a proposed clause permitting the secretary of the treasury to select a contractor without competition. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Heath appeared in behalf of the bill, which is part of the administration's program.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The house irrigation committee moved today to expedite action on a senate bill to create a $95,000,000 revolving fund to help farmers by loans to take up bonded indebtedness of drainage districts and other political subdivisions.

Ezra Brainerd Jr. of Oklahoma, a member of the interstate commerce commission since 1927, was elected chairman for next year by his associates.

The house amended the interior appropriation bill to specify that the new Sioux sanitarium be located at Pierre, S. D. The hospital will cost $375,000.

The White House announced that the shipping board had decided to reject all bids for the Black Diamond and the America-France lines.

A bill to authorize the acceptance of land at Sunnyside, Cal., as the site for a $5,000,000 dirigible base was approved by the house naval committee.

CLAIM TARDIEU TOOK GRAFT AS FRENCH PREMIER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 11.—France's week old ministerial crisis became even more complicated tonight when it leaked out that former Premier Andre Tardieu, whose cabinet fell a week ago, was supposed to be involved "up to the neck" in the Oustric financial scandal, which precipitated the fall of the government. It is alleged that he received graft regularly from Albert Oustric under the name of "M. Marquet," a name much in the public eye, as Marie Marquet, a prominent actress, is openly known as M. Tardieu's "girl friend."

CUBA PUT UNDER MARTIAL LAW TO CURB RIOTS

President Denies He Plans to Resign.

Doctors May "Strike"

HAVANA, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Two hundred physicians, representing the Cuban Medical federation, tonight voted to "strike" if the government makes good its threat to imprison professors of the National university who support the student leaders of recent disturbances. Thus Cuba would be dry on medical aid, for the doctors said they would neither answer sick calls or issue prescriptions.

HAVANA, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Amid new disorders by students and with rumors buzzing through the city that he soon would resign, President Machado today suspended constitutional guarantees throughout the whole of Cuba.

This is tantamount to martial law and is similar to the suspension decreed in Havana and environs which ended last month. Both were authorized by congress after much debate, but whereas the first decree was confined to the capital and for only 20 days, the suspension invoked today will run for 60 days over the entire island.

Student activities not only continued but increased, meanwhile, and the sound of firing was heard in the streets as police attempted to break up demonstrations. Numbers of business and professional men, graduates of the National university, pledged their support to the rioting undergraduates.

U. S. Envoy at Session.

The president's action followed upon a secret meeting of the cabinet at which American Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim was reported to be present, and it was known that important developments were expected.

Havana at the same time was swimming in a flood of rumors. There were numerous reports the president would resign, another that he already had placed his resignation in the hands of the Supreme court, and still another that Ambassador Guggenheim had summoned two American cruisers from the United States naval base at Guantanamo. All were denied.

Complicating the situation, and adding to several cabinet changes during the week, was the resignation of Miguel Angel Campa as attorney general.

Climaxes Summer of Unrest.

The latest developments climax a summer of unrest in Cuba, with disorders and demonstrations growing since the congressional elections of last month. Hundreds of students, who are prime movers in all the disturbances, have been arrested in various parts of the island.

In the last two days one youth was killed in Sagua la Grande in a fight with police and six others were wounded; Havana students battled against police in Havana; the rural guard and youths enrolled at the Camaguey Normal school clashed, with the result that the school was closed today; at Matanzas there was a bomb explosion; three bombs were discovered in the provincial institute at Santa Clara; at Guantanamo students bombarded the Catholic school with tomatoes when its faculty refused to close the institution, and numerous minor squabbles were reported.

Military Not Ordered Out.

Six students were reported injured in the clashes of today. As before, the declaration of suspension of guarantees seemed to exercise an immediate pacifying effect and no disorders were reported afterward.

But although the military was not ordered out, some of the most vital rights enjoyed by Cubans under their constitution were taken away. The privileges of free speech, free press, assembly and habeas corpus are among those which Cuba is destined not to enjoy again until after Feb. 8, 1931. Censorship was not invoked.

The president tonight made a direct reply to the rumors which said he would quit.

"I have not resigned," he declared, "and I am not thinking of resigning. I see no reason for giving consideration to such a move on my part."

Hint President Will Resign.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Attention of state department and diplomatic officials at the capital centered again tonight on the Cuban situation, with the resignation of President Machado considered a possibility.

Word that "great pressure" was being brought to bear on the Cuban president to resign was received in Washington by a reliable source tonight.

Considerable weight has been attached by state department officials, despite their outward calm, to the many rumors of an impending armed outbreak.

WRIGHT REPORTS $361,000 SAVING IN LINCOLN PARK

Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, announced yesterday that a 1930 saving of $361,000 had been effected up to Dec. 1 in the operating expenses of the park due to economy measures.

"Idle and unnecessary employés have been eliminated from the pay roll," Mr. Wright said. "We have cooperated with the governor's commission by employing all the help we needed, but no more."

An additional saving of $55,000 has been effected in the recreational and sports department, it was learned, although attendance at the recreation centers has been four times as large as that of the previous year.

Rob Undertaker on Call; Take His Embalming Fluid

Robert Kirkham, an undertaker of 730 East 63d street, last night reported to the Woodlawn police that when he went to 7032 Paxton avenue on a professional call, two men held him up in the hallway, taking $1.15 and all his embalming fluid. "You'll have no trouble finding them if they mistook it for moon and drank it," he added.

SECOND WIFE OF TOM MIX SUING HIM FOR DIVORCE

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Whirling a large loaded pistol about his trigger finger in approved wild west style, Tom Mix, cowboy of the films and circus, made a dramatic exit from the life of his wife and ex-leading woman, Mrs. Victoria Forde Mix, according to her divorce complaint, filed today.

Mix maintained an attitude of extreme cruelty toward his wife for the last five years, she asserts. A yacht trip to Ensenada, Mexico, during the Christmas holidays in 1925 was marked by a "fit of anger" in which Mix abandoned his wife and 25 of their friends aboard the craft while he drove home by automobile to Los Angeles, she says.

Mrs. Mix asserts her husband is not a proper person to care for their only child, Thomasina, 8, whose custody she asks.

The couple married in Riverside, Cal., May 5, 1920.

July 13, 1928, Mix transferred to his wife property worth more than $100,000, besides a palatial home.

Mix's first wife, whom he divorced, was Olive Stokes Mix, also an actress. Ruth Jane Mix, now 17, is the only child of that marriage.

TWO BOYS KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS 7 IN SCHOOL BAND

2 Leap to Safety; Driver Held at Bellwood.

Two boys were killed and five other children, all members of a school band, were slightly injured last night when they were run down by an automobile in St. Charles road at 50th avenue, Bellwood. The dead were Gerald Felker, 10 years old,

GERALD FELKER.

FRANK VICES.

Bellwood, and Frank Vices, 13, Berkeley.

Their injured companions are Irene McCleary, 13 years old; Joseph Goura, 13, and Peter Saryz, 13, all of Bellwood; Chester Ernst, 13, Hillside, and John Nickols, 14, Melrose Park. They were given first aid at the Joslyn clinic and West Lake hospital in Bellwood.

The children had been rehearsing in the band of the Sunnyside school, St. Charles and Wolf roads, and were returning home with two other young musicians, Lillian Nickols, 12 years old, and Frank Behrendt, also 12, at the time of the accident. As they were walking in the road, the auto of Frederick Beukema, 53 years old, 2248 West 22d street, Chicago, a painter, bore down upon them from the rear.

Two Leap to Safety.

Two of the group leaped to safety. The others were struck. The children told police that Beukema did not sound his horn and that they did not see any lights on his car. Beukema was held for the inquest today and probably will be charged with manslaughter, accofding to Chief of Police Henry Eggebrecht of Bellwood. The police said the brakes on Beukema's car are faulty.

Four Catholic priests were injured, one seriously, when their automobile plunged into a ditch and overturned in Oakton street, one mile east of the Waukegan road.

The injured are the Rev. Patrick Buckley, pastor of the St. Athanasius Roman Catholic church of Evanston and the Rev. Edward Walsh, the Rev. Austin Whipple, and the Rev. Raphael Grahoff, all of the Passionist Fathers' institute, 5700 North Harlem avenue.

Father Buckley, who was driving, received internal injuries and is the most seriously hurt. The others received first aid at the St. Francis hospital in Evanston.

The deaths of the two boys and two others increased the Cook county toll for 1930 to 1,060. The victims:

Samuel Sargis, 40 years old, 1803 Hammond street. Fatally injured when struck while alighting from a Clark street surface car at Menominee avenue. Jack Cullen, 4454 Shields avenue, was the driver.

Unidentified man, about 48 years old. Fatally injured when struck by the automobile of William Behrendt, 3540 South Lincoln stret, in Douglas park.

MRS. C. E. ERBSTEIN FILLING STATION IS CAUSE OF BIG ROW

Berwyn constables and Park Ridge police early this morning agreed to a truce after showing shotguns and pistols at a street's width at Northwest highway and Sibley street, Park Ridge. But the battle, although violence has been averted, still is to be settled as to the right, if any, of Mrs. Charles E. Erbstein, widow of Chicago's famous criminal lawyer, to build a filling station.

Despite the fact that a permit to build the station had been revoked by order of Mayor E. R. MacLean a group of laborers started work yesterday morning at 7 o'clock. A few minutes later Mayor MacLean appeared with seven policemen and ordered the men to quit. They refused and were arrested, but were bailed out. In the afternoon they again took up their shovels and again were arrested, jailed, and bailed.

Dale B. Sheets, a subdivider, who leased the ground to Mrs. Erbstein, sent the laborers back to the job, went to Magistrate Earhardt in Berwyn, and obtained John Doe warrants for trespassing.

Four constables hurried to the project, where they met the mayor, in command of his seven policemen. The two contingents eyed each other from opposite sides of the street, but there were no open hostilities. An attempt to resume work today was threatened.

ALTON RAILROAD SOLD AT AUCTION FOR $73,000,000

Baltimore and Ohio Buys Pioneer Carrier.

of the big bosses, present and future, shook hands with several and welcomed them to Wilmington before returning to his telegraph key inside.

Villagers Await the Hour.

The hour was 1:28 p. m. and, as 32 minutes awaited before the sale could legally start, most of the visitors kept to the coaches. Clouds overcast the sky and a west wind had chilled the air. Villagers stood shivering on the platform, eager to be interviewed.

There was Jimmy Thornton, ruddy and robust despite his 85 years, proud of his record as an Alton engineer for 40 years and of the record run he made the time he brought the Bloomington fire engines to Chicago for the conflagration of 1871. There was Mrs. Emily Peters, who had brought her 8 year old Sarah down so that when the child grew up she might say she saw the Alton sold.

There was a delegation from the Bloomington Association of Commerce, headed by Mayor Ben S. Rhodes, explaining that "we feel that the Alton's always been the biggest thing in Bloomington, and we came down to see the old road go."

Minutes passed and at 1:35 the auction party alighted from the train, headed by Auctioneer Lundahl. Mr. Breen dragged the shaky table out of the agent's room, distributed a dozen chairs in rows, and turned down the draft on the big base burner that the heat might be less stifling. With a chuckle he hung an old sweater over the "No smoking" sign on the wall and returned to his keyboard in the agent's office.

The Auction Begins.

The auctioneer adjusted his spectacles, produced a sheaf of documents and began to read, clipping off the legal phrases with a precision gained in long practice, for Mr. Lundahl has been master in chancery in a number of railroad receiverships. First came the foreclosure decree authorizing the sale, then a voluminous description of every item in the five parcels of property on the block, even to signal lanterns and tool chests.

Finally came the offer of sale and Mr. Lundahl's voice rose to the climax as he spoke off the words:

"I hereby offer for sale, under and subject to the provisions of the final decree of the United States District court, all of the property of the Chicago and Alton railroad and each parcel of the parcels described in the notes of sale."

It was the cue for the end of the Alton. Douglas Moffatt and Colin C. Ives, New York attorneys and bidders for the Baltimore and Ohio, stepped up to the desk. Mr. Moffatt delivered the bid.

"Douglas C. Moffatt and Colin C. Ives," intoned Mr. Lundahl, "as individuals and as a company, bid $23,000,000 for the properties of the Chicago and Alton railroad, the properties together and in parcels subject to provisions of the final decree of the United States District court."

Mr. Lundahl rapped his hammer and in a loud voice cried, "Sold." The end of the Alton had come.

Official Explains the Sale.

On the return trip to Chicago Mr. Shriver, the senior Baltimore and Ohio official at the proceedings, discussed the prospects for the newly acquired property and explained the sale. He denied the claim of the Alton stockholders, as advanced before Judge Carpenter in a petition to forestall the sale, that the Baltimore and Ohio was getting the road for a fraction of its worth.

The $22,000,000 cash, Mr. Shriver said, approximates the amount paid by his road for the purchase of the Alton's defaulted bonds, acquisition of which gave the Baltimore and Ohio nominal control of the Alton. By terms of the foreclosure decree, he added, the Baltimore and Ohio must assume obligations for $45,000,000 of Alton bonds not in the foreclosure and $3,000,000 in equipment trust notes, as well as receivers' debts and other expenses approximating $2,000,000.

Acquires 1,028 Miles of Track.

These obligations, totaling $50,000,000 when added to the cash price, make the Baltimore and Ohio's expenditure $73,000,000, Mr. Shriver said. For this sum the eastern road acquires 1,028 miles of track, 320 locomotives, 239 passenger coaches, 13,447 freight cars, and such realty properties as stations, shops, and engine houses.

Mr. Shriver said he had found the Alton's physical condition good. He pointed out that in the consolidation the two systems join at three strategic points—Chicago, Springfield, and St. Louis, and thus provide the Baltimore and Ohio easy access to Kansas City and the farm country of Illinois and Missouri.

He said that while the Alton will be operated as a unit of his road, it will probably retain its independent identity. He declined to say whether the present management will be retained.

Employés Seem Pleased.

The Alton employés interviewed seemed pleased over the sale. J. J. Breen, brakeman on the auction special, averred the Alton had always been a good road to work for, but added that the reputation of the Baltimore and Ohio among union leaders was the best.

J. J. Butler, superintendent of the Alton's eastern division, hoped the consolidation would bring the Alton more business and thus provide the men more working time.

Of the Alton's 2,200 stockholders, who claim their $64,000,000 equity has been confiscated in the sale, none of the important members appeared at the auction. The stockholders' protective committee, comprising Edward A. Pierce, T. D. Heed, and Joseph P. Kennedy, all of New York, and George Woodruff of Chicago, was represented by counsel.

Stockholders Plan Action.

The committee's attorney, Max Swiren of Levinson, Becker, Glenn, & Schwartz, said his firm had four or five courses of procedure under consideration with the object of either canceling the sale or compelling the Baltimore and Ohio to recognize the stockholders' rights when the consolidation goes before the interstate commerce commission for approval. The sale does not become binding until approved by Judge Carpenter 28 days hence.

Among the personalities at the auction were Daniel Willard Jr., son of the president of the Baltimore and Ohio and assistant to general counsel of the road; H. B. Voorhees, president of the Baltimore and Ohio-Chicago Terminal railway and vice president of the B. & O.; William W. Wheelock, joint receiver of the Alton, with Mr. Bierd; Joy Morton, one of the veteran Alton directors; James Williams, treasurer of the Alton, and Sidney Condit, counsel for the receivers.

LOW HOLIDAY FARES TO THE PACIFIC COAST.

The Burlington Railroad will sell first class round trip tickets from December 16 to 22, inclusive, at $103.45 to Portland, Seattle and Tacoma, and $88.26 to Spokane—return limit January 15—going and returning different routes if desired—good in sleeping cars at regular Pullman fares, and honored on all trains, including the Empire Builder and the North Coast Limited. Great reduction also in fares to California. For detailed information phone Burlington Ticket Office, Wabash 4600, or Union Station, Franklin 6700.—Adv.

GOTHAM POLICE USE NEWSPAPER ADS TO ANSWER ATTACKERS

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The New York police force has taken full page advertising space in tomorrow morning's newspapers to tell "the good people of New York," as the advertisement is headed, that the policeman is by no means as black as he has been painted. The advertisement says it is prompted by "recent published reflections upon the integrity of members of the police force, appearing in the editorial and news columns of the press."

It is signed by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Inc., and it outlines the problems of policing a city the size of New York.

"The average patrolman," it states, "is conscious of the fact that in all groups of men, whether ordained to the service of God or selected for state or business purposes, there may be a few who have been unable to resist the temptations of the moment. But to condemn a church, or a state, or a business for such violations of trust when there are thousands of conscientious individuals carrying on those institutions would be unthinkable."

Certain members of the force have been involved recently in vice graft.

BURN 963, BOAT USED IN MANY LAKE RESCUES

The 963 is sailing over the blue waters of Lake Michigan on its last voyage, and the land lubbers who frequent the beaches in the summer would never recognize it. It is a handful of ashes.

Capt. Fred Stebbins of the Jackson park coast guard station remembers the yeoman service it has rendered, at all hours of the day and night in every kind of weather. For 20 years he and his crew have used it. It helped rescue victims of the Favorite, when that excursion craft turned over off Lincoln park. It carried bodies of the dead in the Eastland disaster. Technically, it was known as a motor lifeboat. It was 36 feet long and cost $9,000 when bought in 1910.

Accompanied by members of his crew, Capt. Stebbins ran it on the beach at Jackson park yesterday. At its slender masthead its saucy ensign was flying. They poured gasoline over it, lighted it, and when the flames had died away and the ashes had cooled, Capt. Stebbins tossed them into Lake Michigan, and the 963 was off on its last journey.

STEEL COMPANY PRESIDENT ASKS CUT IN ALIMONY

J. Birchard Green, president of the Chicago Steel and Wire company, yesterday filed a petition with Circuit Judge Trude asking for a reduction in his $300 a month alimony payments to his former wife, Mrs. Clare Green, 6537 Cornell avenue. Green says in his petition that his former wife is only using the money to harass him with law suits. Furthermore, he declares, the numerous suits have given him unfavorable publicity and thus reduced his income by 20 per cent.

Mrs. Green, who won a divorce in October, 1928, has a suit for $50,000 pending against her former husband for the "loss of his companionship," due to their divorce. Another suit for $75,000 has been filed against Green's present wife, charging alienation of affections. She recently withdrew a suit to have the divorce decree set aside.

COUNCIL SEEKS STREET LAWS AS RAILROAD PROD

Ask Extension Projects in Terminal Battle.

The city council yesterday authorized the board of local improvements to prepare ordinances for the extention of five major streets through the railway terminal area south of the loop. With these proposed improvements as weapons the aldermen believe they can prod the railroads into action on new terminals.

The city's plan provides mainly for the extension on viaducts of Dearborn, La Salle, and Franklin streets over the railroad tracks. Dearborn street will be on a viaduct between Polk and 18th streets; La Salle street, between Polk and 18th streets; and Franklin, between Polk and 22d streets. Dearborn and La Salle streets will be on the surface between the terminus of the viaduct structure and 22d street.

Would Open 14th Street.

Provision is also made to carry Taylor street on a viaduct between Franklin street and Plymouth court and to open 14th street on a viaduct between Canal and Dearborn streets. Plymouth court and Federal street will lead into the proposed Dearborn street extension, and La Salle street and Sherman street will carry traffic to the extension of La Salle street. Clark street is to be widened.

Health Commissioner Kegel met defeat at the hands of the council when the aldermen by a vote of 26 to 14 approved the ordinance for the regulation of mechanical refrigerators that was sponsored by the boiler inspection department. The minority favored the ordinance drafted by Kegel.

The question of apportioning new jobs to be created under the ordinance was a factor in the dispute. The Kegel ordinance divided the supervision between the health department and the boiler inspection department, while the ordinance that was passed gives the entire control to Boiler Inspector George Nye.

Pass Traffic Ordinances.

Two safety ordinances looking toward the adoption of uniform traffic regulations by the city and the park boards were passed by the council at the request of Ald. John A. Massen [48th].

"Uniform traffic rules and regulations within Chicago will prevent numerous accidents and thousands of unintentional violations," said Ald. Massen.

South Parks Victor in Suit Over $360,639 Taxes

Superior Judge Gentzel yesterday denied a petition for an injunction to restrain the south park board from collecting an item of $360,639 in the 1929 tax levy. The suit was sponsored by the Civic federation. The $360,639 represents the shortage between the amounts levied for bond charges and the amounts collected for these purposes in 1927 taxes. The federation charged that the item was an extra levy for corporate purposes and an attempt to levy a second tax for the same purpose.

War Romance Ends

MRS. JOHN A. VOGELSANG.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Mrs. Eleanor Vogelsang, 742 North avenue, La Grange, yesterday won a divorce on grounds of cruelty from John A. Vogelsang, son of the late John Z. Vogelsang, whose Madison street café for years was frequented by the city's leading politicians. The decree was granted by Circuit Judge Trude.

Mrs. Vogelsang testified that her husband disposed of the once prosperous restaurant business three years ago. Since that time, she said, he had refused to work and whenever she had reprimanded him about his failure to work he had struck her.

The couple were married on Sept. 1, 1920, while Vogelsang was stationed at Fort Sheridan. They separated on Oct. 4. Mrs. Vogelsang was awarded the custody of an adopted son, John, 5 years old, and $10 a week for the support of the boy.

15 New Judges Guests at Bar Ass'n Banquet

The fifteen new judges elected on Nov. 4 to the Municipal, Circuit, and Superior court benches were guests last night at a banquet attended by more than 350 members of the Chicago Bar association in the association's rooms in the Burnham building. Ernest Palmer presided at the meeting and the address of welcome was given by Maj. Edgar B. Tolman. The fifteen judges were called upon to give short talks. All pledged their aid in cleaning up the crowded court dockets.

ALDERMEN OPEN FIGHT TO DROP LICENSE BUREAU

Budget Makers Told It Is Waste of Money.

A fight to abolish the city license department, a battle that was predicted a month ago when City Controller Schmidt estimated its appropriation for 1931 at $35,000 as compared with expenditures of $312,000 during 1930, cropped up last night at the meeting of the council finance committee. It was precipitated when Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th] suggested that the committee concur in the controller's figures.

The department has been, the aldermen admit, a reservoir for jobs that can be handed out to administration aldermen so that they can reward workers at the polls. At the present time it has 105 employes in its personnel, 73 of the force having been dropped immediately after the Nov. 4 election. Because of a deficit in the department salary account, caused by overloading the pay rolls, Supt. B. O. Romin has asked the council for a transfer of funds.

Says More Can Be Collected.

"The controller believes," said Victor S. Petterson, deputy controller, "that by putting fifteen of the force under the city collector and eliminating te rest of the employes the same collections can be made as last year and probably an additional $2,000,000 can be obtained.

"Under present conditions there is no centralized responsibility; the license bureau blames the collector and the latter blames the bureau if collections are not what they should be. The controller believes that the policemen on beats, with the aid of fifteen men from the collector's office, can drive in the delinquent payers of license fees."

Crowe Aids in Fight.

Petterson was given aid in his stand by Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [42d] and Joseph H. Smith [32d]. Crowe said the department has "deteriorated until it should be abolished" and Smith contended that two license officers in each police district could do as much as the license bureau.

After making a determined stand for retaining the bureau, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] and Terence F. Moran [16th] got the committee to agree to hear from the department head. Previously, the aldermen had set tentative estimates for a few other city departments but, as in the case of the license bureau, decided to call in the department heads before voting on definite appropriations.

SUGGESTS USING SUBWAY DIRT AS LAKE FRONT FILL

The use of material excavated by the city in subway construction to make new land on the lake front was advocated yesterday by Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d]. In a resolution approved by the council, city officials are directed to confer with the officials of Lincoln park and the south parks to determine if the city material can be used at a saving to the taxpayers.

In another resolution Ald. Albert called on Michael J. Kennedy, commissioner of gas and electricity, to install street lights along North Dearborn and North La Salle streets. Albert said the city has "wasted and squandered" $161,000 in the Wabash avenue bridge approach contract and that this money could have been used for a lighting system.

Aldermen Albert, Dorsey R. Crowe [42d], and Albert Loescher [44th] were successful in having the council refer the ordinance for widening of State street between Chicago avenue and Division street to the committee on special assessments. Albert charged that the plan will create a "bottle neck" at Division street where traffic from the widened stretch would be diverted into narrow North State parkway.

STORE OWNER ROBBED OF CASH.

Four bandits invaded the men's furnishing store of Frank De Vuono at 331 West North avenue yesterday and took $300 from De Vuono and $21 from his clerk, Al Rosen.

JURORS ACQUIT 'BUGS' MORAN IN VAGRANCY CASE

Gangster and Detective Come Near Blows.

in the sense that he was without money or without a job. The defendant should be found guilty under the vagrancy statute, he declared, because the evidence showed he had been a "thief and burglar since 1910."

"He said he was a business man," the prosecutor remarked. "What a business man he was! Every time he registered at a hotel it was under an alias. He served time in prison. He was convicted of burglary and robbery."

The cross-examination of Moran on the witness stand by State's Attorney Smith at the morning session furnished the crowd with a number of thrills and laughs. The prosecutor began by questioning the gangster about his connection with the cleaning and dyeing concern of which he is vice president.

"Isn't it true that you elbowed your way into that firm?" Moran was asked.

"It certainly isn't," responded the gangster.

Arbitration His Job.

Q.—What did you do as an officer of this company? A.—I arbitrated the differences they had.

Q.—What do you mean by arbitrate? A.—I kept things moving in a harmonious way.

Q.—How could you settle these differences in a lawful manner? A.—I was in a position to settle any little matters that came up.

Q.—Isn't it true that many cleaning and dyeing establishments were being bombed? A.—There may have been some trouble. I don't know how much.

Q.—Well, after you got into the business, the trouble stopped, didn't it? A.—I guess it died down a little.

Q.—How much were you paid for your work? A.—One hundred a week, besides my profits as a stockholder.

Q.—How often did you show up at the office? A.—I was there once a month at least. You understand, I wasn't hired for my knowledge of the technical end of the business. I studied the situation for a year and I knew what to do. I was paid for what I know.

Quizzed on Cleaning Business.

Moran also testified that he had a large income from stocks which he owns and from Florida land. He declared that Kornack, general manager of the cleaning concern, was one of those who invited him into the business. Kornack was recalled by the state and questioned.

"Didn't you complain to Chief of Detectives Shoemaker several years ago that Moran was trying to muscle his way into the business?" he was asked.

"I did not," Kornack replied.

Capt. Shoemaker was called as a witness and testified that in 1927 Kornack came to him and complained about Moran's attempts to make himself an official of the cleaning and dyeing concern.

Capt. Stege also testified that he had been present when Kornack made a complaint about Moran.

BARKER CASE UP TUESDAY

Arguments will be heard in the Illinois Supreme court next Tuesday on the petition for a habeas corpus writ for George ["Red"] Barker, gangster, who was recently sent to Joliet penitentiary on an order of Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court. Attorney General Carlstrom will contest the action, arguing that Judge McGoorty's action in sending Barker to prison to complete a former sentence was justified.

John Sayad, 23 years old, 4532 South Justine street, who was captured by three policemen after he had robbed a haberdashery owned by Joseph Detloff, 4935 South Ashland avenue, was held to the grand jury by Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court yesterday. Bonds were set at $50,000.

Jacob Larsen, traffic manager of the Masonite Insulation company, 111 West Washington street, who was arrested on Wednesday night and charged with the embezzlement of $3,000 from the company, was arraigned before Judge Lyle. The hearing was continued until Jan. 14, when the state's attorney's office asked for time to complete examination of the books of the company.

Nestor Marx, 25 years old, 3600 Cullom avenue, who was arrested when he was overpowered by his victim in an attempted robbery, was held to the grand jury by Judge Lyle in bonds of $5,000. Marx attempted to hold up Manuel F. Ramme, an undertaker.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune $10,000 will be paid any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

WM. LENHARDT, CAFE SLAYER, DIES IN CHAIR

Displays Bravado Spirit on Death March.

William Lenhardt, 22 years old, Cleveland bad man, was electrocuted at the county jail at 12:14 o'clock this morning for the murder of Milton Valispoulos, restaurant owner at 803 West 74th street. The current was turned on at 12:02 and the slayer was pronounced dead twelve minutes later.

Exhibiting a careless bravado, which he maintained throughout his long battle with the law, Lenhardt walked steadily to the black chair, faced a group of witnesses, and sat down. Five men strapped him into the chair. Nearby stood William D. Meyering, the new sheriff, who was superintending his first electrocution.

Taken to Death Chamber.

Led by Sheriff Meyering, who was accompanied by former Sheriff John E. Traeger, and guarded by half a dozen armed jail officers, Lenhardt appeared in the death chamber at 12:01 a. m. In another group stood Warden David Moneypenny. All were separated from a group of 50 spectators by a large glass screen.

Lenhardt was given the last rites of the Catholic church by Father Ernest. He was not asked if he had any last thing to say. At 12:02 the first shock was administered. In all four shocks were given.

A jury of eight physicians headed by Dr. W. E. Buehler, member of Gov. Emmerson's board of pardons and paroles, examined the slayer. There appeared some hesitancy in pronouncing him dead. Finally they agreed that life had expired and Lenhardt was removed from the chair.

Mother Acquitted in Plot.

The execution of Lenhardt came after ten months of ceaseless effort on the part of police and prosecutors, efforts which, early in October, were nearly nullified by a plotted jail break. The plot was nipped by Warden Moneypenny through Frank Bell, himself now under the death sentence. A revolver had been smuggled into Lenhardt's cell. Charges were made that the weapon was passed through Lenhardt's mother, Mrs. Julia Glovka of Cleveland; Joseph Connior, a jail guard, and Walter Shine, a Negro prisoner. All were acquitted by a Criminal court jury Wednesday night.

John Preston, 32, who was to have been executed at Joliet for the murder of Miss Agnes Johnston, a stenographer, took advantage of the insanity plea to obtain a stay of execution until Jan. 8. His insanity trial will be started before Judge John K. Newhall at Wheaton on Dec. 18. Preston's mother filed the plea, saying that the slayer, who was known as the "model husband" before he attacked and killed Miss Johnston, has become insane since his sentence of death.

DOAK'S FIRST JOB TO RID CHICAGO OF BIG GANGSTERS

New Labor Head to Try Deportation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—As his first major act after taking office, Secretary of Labor William N. Doak today announced a nation-wide campaign to rid Chicago and other big cities of deportable gangsters. He said a thorough investigation had been initiated into the personal history of the leading underworld figures of the country with a view to their deportation wherever possible under the law.

"We are going into the gangster problem with all the resources at our command," Secretary Doak said. "We are going to ask congress for additional funds enabling the department to increase its staff of investigators. We also intend to obtain funds if possible to increase our deportation machinery so that delays of this nature will be cut to a minimum."

The new cabinet member declared that the life stories of several "big shots" in Chicago's crime centers were being scrutinized to determine the advisability of setting in motion machinery to deport them. He emphasized that deportation could only be accomplished through due process of law.

"We intend to make every effort to deport all deportable criminals," Mr. Doak said. "In some cases aliens who have made millions by crime have been able to stave off deportation proceedings for long periods. We are going after funds so we can wage a successful campaign against this class of criminal."

Called upon to reveal the names of some of those against whom action will be taken, Mr. Doak stated that the law required the observance of the utmost secrecy regarding the proceedings and for that reason he was not at liberty to disclose the names of gang leaders under investigation.

CÆSAR'S GHOST ALL THAT'S LEFT OF THIS CASE

Mrs. Eugene M. Barnhart, 1120 Lake Shore drive, Evanston, wife of a department head of Marshall Field & Co., was arraigned yesterday before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston, charged with failing to buy a dog license for Caesar, a Boston bull. She was out walking last July when a policeman saw her and gave her a ticket. She failed to appear in court and a warrant was issued last week for her arrest.

"The dog," explained Mrs. Barnhart," was not mine. It belonged to Prof. Norman C. Bradish of the department of philosophy of Northwestern university. I was caring for it while Prof. Bradish was in Europe.

"Yes," said Magistrate Porter, "but that excuses no one. Every dog must have a license."

"But there is no dog," said Mrs. Barnhart.

"No dog? What do you mean?" queried the magistrate.

"I mean Caesar died in August."

The case was dismissed.

BLAME OLD FEUD IN KILLING OF ALKY PEDDLER

A feud several years old was believed to have been the cause of the slaying of Marco Magnabosco, 11345 Langley avenue, an alcohol peddler, who was shot down in the doorway of his home early yesterday by two men. The pair fled after throwing their revolver at the feet of the victim. The murderers fired five shots, only one of them striking Magnabosco.

Capt. Michael Grady of the Kensington police station found, among letters in the dead man's effects, one sent in 1924 by the federal department of justice. It said that Magnabosco was to be shown courtesy by the police, as he was an important witness for the government against several men who had been arrested for attempted extortion.

James Foligno, against whom Magnabosco testified in the case, is now in prison. The police learned that Foligno's friends were trying to get a parole for him.

KUHN HEARING IN THREAT CASE SET FOR JAN. 14

The hearing of William Kuhn, 23 years old, son of a retired California broker, on a charge of attempting by threat of death to extort $25,000 from Miss Marion Wright, was continued yesterday until Jan. 14 by Judge Lyle in the Felony court. Miss Wright is the daughter of William V. Wright, steel company executive.

Arrangement to continue the case was made on Wednesday, when Miss Wright told Judge Lyle that she was to make her debut to society that night and would be too tired to appear in court the next morning.

Kuhn is at liberty on bond of $7,000, posted by his brother, Wendell, a broker. He was arrested after letters received by Miss Wright supposedly were traced to typewriters in the office of a brokerage firm in which William Kuhn worked.

AGREE ON PLAN TO UNIFY WORK OF POLICE UNITS

Suburbs Balk at Rule by Chicago Department.

A plan to coordinate all the police departments within Cook county was practically agreed on yesterday at a conference of the chief law enforcing authorities of Chicago and the principal suburbs of the county. The conference was called by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court.

Although agreeing to take any steps which would bring about a more efficient administration of the law in the county, the officials of the various suburbs, such as Oak Park, Evanston and River Forest were reported to be opposed to any plan which would place their police departments under the domination of the Chicago administration.

Won't Permit Chicago Rule.

"Most of the suburbs have excellent police departments," said one of the officials at the meeting. "The officials of these places agreed to do anything which would help in the crime war, but they made it plain that they would not trade their present forms of municipal government for such an administration as Chicago has under Thompson."

The plan finally adopted was for each suburb to continue with its individual police force, but to connect up with the Chicago departments by means of radio installations, teletype systems and direct telephone wires to the Chicago detective bureau. Under the system outlined the suburban departments will be immediately notified of every crime committed in Chicago or the Chicago police will be notified of every crime committed in a suburb.

Invite Towns to Join.

Another meeting is to be held some time next week if possible in River Forest or Oak Park. This meeting will be presided over by Charles H. Crysler, president of the Oak Park village board; Mayor Charles Bartlett of Evanston and Frank Shaw of River Forest. The purpose of this meeting will be to invite the smaller towns within the county to join in the plan. The county board is to be asked to render financial aid.

Steps also are to be taken, it was announced, to bring all the parks police departments under one authority.

The meeting yesterday was attended by State's Attorney Swanson, Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, Acting Commissioner Alcock, Col. A. A. Sprague, and Sheriff William D. Meyering, and the officials of the larger suburbs.

Weather and Balky Motor Make Hawks Break a Date

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Bad weather and an unusual amount of vibration in his motor today conspired to cancel a proposed visit of Capt. Frank Hawks to his old home town—Houston, Tex.—where he was to speak. Capt. Hawks took off shortly after noon, but was forced back.

How Park Land Grows from Lake in City's Front Yard

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

If left to her own leisurely devices it would take mother nature hundreds, perhaps thousands, of years to make a landscape of grass, trees and flowers where water formerly held sway.

Chicago's new front yard, of which we will become freshly conscious next spring, when the seeds, shrubs and trees just planted come out in green, presents an interesting example of man's recreative, reassembling genius.

This newest stretch of land reclaimed from the lake, extending from the Illinois Central tracks to the lake, between 22d and 31st streets, has taken only four years to build. The whole south side development of 900 new acres has taken ten years. The cost has been about a dollar a square foot. Next spring the birds will sing there and lovers will sit on the benches, just as if this earth had been there from the beginning.

It's Romance for Donoghue.

In England they say it takes a hundred years to make a good lawn, but George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the south parks, has no such traditional inhibitions. He will say, and truly, that in a year's time you cannot tell the difference between Green park in London and his new parks. He sees his job in somewhat a romantic light.

He described the park building process yesterday step by step. The first thing done after a permit had been obtained to fill in the lake and the bond issue had been voted was to build a breakwater. For this purpose pilings 60 feet long are brought in, usually from the south, made of cypress trees. These are pounded into the bottom of the lake at a depth of about 20 feet, in double rows. Then the space between is filled in with stone.

The first stone fillings come from the quarries around Lemont or the drainage canal. The big top stones, each weighing many tons, which you observe from the train windows, are limestone from Bedford, Ind., quarries. They are the top stone unsuitable for building purposes.

Dredges Start Filling In.

The hydraulic dredges then begin to fill in behind the breakwater, pumping in material from the lake bottom. It must be built up to one foot above the lake level, and this work is supplemented by clean sand brought in by sand suckers from the Indiana dune country.

Above the water line the general city dumping begins. This may be material from excavations for a new building in the loop. It may come from torn up streets. It contains many tin cans and old springs, also all sorts of refuse except garbage.

A part of every demolished building in the loop probably rests now in the foundation of the new park, but it all settles down solidly under a top of three or four feet of clean sand. It is all lifted ten feet above the lake and then the black dirt is brought in for the finishing touches.

Top Soil Comes from Farms.

Many a farm is ravished of its virgin top soil for this purpose. It comes by the trainload from as far away as Kankakee. An abandoned farm is bought and stripped, or a farmer decides to sell his top soil at a price greater than he could hope to make by raising crops.

With this in place the seeding and planting begins. Trees are bought by the hundreds and shrubs by the thousands. The size and variety of the trees is mingled so that enough big ones are planted to give an appearance of age to the park.

Suddenly, it seems, what has looked like an old dump has been transformed into a garden.

It is a good investment at one dollar a square foot, for when the south park commissioners had to buy a piece of land at 12th street and Michigan avenue to make room for improvements there it cost them $100 a square foot.

Ocean Spray cranberry sauce is the traditional complement to turkey, chicken, duck and fowl . . . but it's just as good with other meats. In one-pound cans, ready to serve.—Adv.

Nine Picketers Convicted; Get Jail Terms and Fines

Danville, Va., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Nine persons charged with unlawful assembly, in connection with mass picketing at the Riverside mills last Monday were found guilty today. Sentences of thirty days in jail and fines of $50 were imposed. The nine were arrested with 32 others Monday when police used tear gas to disperse crowds of strikers from in front of the mills, whose union employés have been on strike for over two months.

Quickest Way To Knock a Cold

Millions Say of This Proved Way

You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

INDICT 4 MORE IN JURY PROBE OF BAIL BONDS

11 Now Named in True Bills; One a Woman.

Four professional bondsmen, one of them a colored woman, were reported named in true bills charging perjury yesterday by the grand jury. The jury previously had voted seven other true bills against bondsmen as a result of the special investigation ordered by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court.

The jurors were reported to have been told of one case in which Judge Joseph Schulman of the Municipal court accepted 24 bonds at one time from a professional bondsman, who is alleged to have scheduled property for much more than it was actually worth.

Charged with Perjury.

Louis Ascher, Sam Katz, Teleford Bellamy, and Lulu S. Weaver, the Negro woman, were those named in the true bills voted yesterday. They are charged individually with committing perjury when they made allegedly false representations about the property scheduled for bonds.

Ascher, for many years a professional bondsman, is the man who scheduled the 24 bonds before Judge Schulman, according to Assistant State's Attorneys A. C. DeWitt and John Hampton. The bonds scheduled totaled $72,000 and were for men charged with larceny. It is charged that he scheduled the Gleaverville Inn, 813-821 East Pershing road, and valued the property at $325,000. The prosecutors say that real estate appraisers estimate the property is not worth more than $50,000 and that it is mortgaged for $59,000. A $6,000 bond forfeiture was also outstanding against Ascher at the time.

Schulman Before Jury.

Judge Schulman was before the grand jury several days ago. At that time he denied that he gave a police sergeant authority to sign his name to bonds. Sergt. Harvey Gwynn, however, testified otherwise.

Mrs. Weaver gave a bond for James H. Penner, who is a fugitive on a charge of receiving stolen property. The property she scheduled, it is charged, is over encumbered. Bellamy scheduled property on bonds for pickpockets, which had already been sold for taxes. Katz obtained the freedom of Herbert L. McClair, a forger, who forfeited his bond, on property, which was mortgaged for more than it was worth.

WINDOW WASHER IS KILLED.

Arthur Mathew, 45 years old, colored, was killed yesterday when he fell three stories while washing windows at 3903 Calumet avenue, where he lived.

OWNERS OF SHIP ROTARIAN ARE SUED BY CITY

City Prosecutor Peska yesterday served notice on Walter J. Powers and Attorney Miles J. Devine, reputed owners of the ship Rotarian, that a suit has been started in the Municipal court, charging them with the maintenance of a nuisance.

The boat sank on the south side of the river between Clark and La Salle streets on Oct. 11 and the court action was started by Peska following a conference with Harbormaster Charles J. Agnew as to what steps could be taken to remove it.

NORTHUP WON'T APOLOGIZE FOR CANAL CHARGES

Judge Williams Waits in Vain for Statement.

Judge Charles A. Williams of the Criminal court waited in vain yesterday for a statement, which he expected to be tantamount to an apology, from First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup.

The prosecutor did not go near the judge, nor did he send any emissary to explain that he would not issue any statement which might be considered an apology for the prosecutor's conduct in charging that the judge was unfit to preside over the trial of the sanitary district case involving Timothy J. Crowe and other former trustees and officials of the district.

"Nothing to Apologize For."

"I have nothing to apologize for," said Prosecutor Northup when asked if he had as yet prepared the statement which Judge Williams had said on Wednesday was to be forthcoming yesterday from Mr. Northup. "I will make no apology to any one for my conduct in this case.

"Facts are facts, and no effort to soften facts can change their actual character. I will make no statement other than to say that I did not intend to indict the judge's son.

"The public can expect plenty of action in this case between now and Monday."

Plan Appeal to McGoorty.

Mr. Northup would not amplify his statement, but it became known that he is preparing for presentation, possibly today, a new petition of prejudice against Judge Williams. This petition, it is reported, will ask Chief Justice McGoorty to take the sanitary district case away from Judge Williams and assign it to some judge who did not sponsor any one to the district pay roll.

Judge Williams sponsored his son, Willard Williams, to a job in the district as a docket clerk in the law department, the records show. Although collecting salary from the public treasury for nearly a year, the judge's son did not make one entry in any district docket book, according to witnesses taken before the grand jury by Prosecutor Northup last week.

Defense Attorneys Object.

The defense attorneys have objected to a reassignment of the case from Judge Williams because they say that Prosecutor Northup did not object to the original assignment and that he knew at that time about the judge's son.

Judge Williams at the time the certificate of prejudice was filed against him refused to allow the case to be taken from his court unless attorneys for both sides would agree on a judge. The defense refused to agree.

The latest conference on the case was held Wednesday at a private session in the judge's chambers. After the conference it was announced that Prosecutor Northup was to issue a statement, first approved by the judge, that would be "tantamount to an apology."

If a satisfactory statement was issued the case would be reassigned, it was announced, otherwise Judge Williams would go ahead Monday morning with a hearing on a motion to quash the indictments. If the indictments are quashed, it is reported, the defendants cannot be reindicted because of the statute of limitations.

"If Northup made an apology in an affidavit filed in court he would have to commit perjury in order to satisfy the demands of the judge," said one of his associates.

MAJOR'S WOODING TOLD BY GIRL IN TRIAL AS SLAYER

ring, cedar chest filled with lingerie two dresses, and numerous books.

A letter written by Shepard on March 13, 1930, showed the major had vowed his love months before Mrs. Shepard's death.

"It will be two years in November, dear—do you still remember when and where we pledged our first love—do you still remember the first sweet kiss you gave me—I was so happy that night to feel those dear arms around my neck—and how often they have been there since, each time more precious than the previous time.

"Sweetheart, when I opened the door of my room, the first thing I saw was your dear face in your picture smiling at me, as much as to say, 'I love you, Charlie.' I picked it up, kissed those lips and cried like a child. Oh, sweetheart, I do love you, please, please, forgive."

The government introduced a letter apparently written by Shepard in jail at Denver, indicating an attempt to influence Miss Brandon's testimony. At the end he directed her to "burn" the letter.

"I won't repeat, darling, what I wrote you yesterday," Shepard wrote, "about what I hoped you could and would say in your testimony, only I want to add that if they ask you about that letter—if they have such a thing—in which divorce was talked of—to say 'Oh that didn't mean anything—that was just talk. I know he didn't mean it in that way."

"Am so sorry that you have to go through this," the letter adds, "but remember dear you are doing it for me—not that I would submit you to such an ordeal if it was in my power to prevent—for your peace of mind—your smiles and happiness mean too much to me—and that will again all come back, dearest— "And I'll be there with you, when our dreams come true. With all the love in the world—always."

"You will be in my thoughts and I will be praying for you, dear, all the time.

Girl's Letters Put in Record.

Several love letters Miss Brandon sent the major also were placed in the record today.

A letter of March 1, 1930, lists expenses totaling $20.81 for operation of the car, and adds: "Running a car surely costs a lot, doesn't it, dear?"

Farther on it says: "Certainly, darling, all my love will always be with you. Yes, dear, surely wish you could have been here on my birthday to share my happiness over the lovely presents you sent; everything is lovely, dearest. Of course you will be the only one to see me in the lovely nighties, dear! No, I did not let any one take me in their arms the evening of my birthday, dear, but several said I looked 'irresistible' and that they would love to hold me in their arms, but no one can do that except you, dear."

Another said in part:

"Of course, I don't blame any one for loving you and wanting you, dear, but you belong to me, sweetheart! Yes, darling, you surely are a wonderful dancer! Yes, darling, the word 'honeymoon' means so much to us—how happy I'll be when that time comes, dear!"

Jan. 8, 1930, Miss Brandon wrote: "Am glad the patients are 'crazy over you,' dear; but don't care so much about the nurses being crazy over you as I have heard that doctors are naturally fond of nurses anyway. However, I don't blame them for loving you, because you are so adorable, dear."

GERMANY BANS WAR TALKIE OF REMARQUE BOOK

Censors Act After 6 Days of Rioting by Fascists.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—Fifteen minutes after Carl Laemmle, producer of the film "All Quiet on the Western Front," had withdrawn his war talkie from German picture theaters, in a telegram to his representatives here, the German board of film censors prohibited the showing of the film.

The decision to ban the film came as a result of six days of rioting by Fascists against its presentation, and the ban is being celebrated tonight as a great Fascist victory. The Hitlerite leaders announced that they would stage a huge demonstration tomorrow to celebrate their "vindication of German honor."

"Would Harm Prestige."

The film, based upon the war book of the same name by Erich Maria Remarque, himself a German, was said by the supreme board of censors to dwell too much on the fatherland's defeat. It was decided that if it continued to appear on German screens it would lead other nations to surmise that Germany approved of a film which painted a coarse and untrue picture of German soldiery.

The censors called before them various witnesses before pronouncing their excommunication of the picture, among them Capt. von Baumbach, representing the reichswehr. He protested that the film lacked all trace of "the Locarno spirit of reconciliation which is supposed to pervade the world."

Animal Lovers Protest.

The German Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals had its say today in the controversy raging around the war talkie when it registered a strong protest against the letting loose of white mice and harmless snakes in picture theaters by Fascists in order to prevent the performance of the film. "Such treatment of animals," says the protest, "is unworthy of civilized people."

While many papers tonight comment on the ban as a victory for the Nationalist element the Berliner Tageblatt characterizes the decision as "a kowtow to the rioters in the street."

Six of Security Committees Approve Car Financial Plan

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Three more protective committees yesterday recommended to their respective security holders the acceptance of the financial plan designed to consolidate the surface and elevated lines into one transportation system for Chicago. Their action increases to six the number of protective committees which have expressed a favorable view of the plan. These committees, with the amounts of securities, are:

Chicago Railways company first mortgage bonds, $47,306,750.

Chicago City Railway company first mortgage bonds, $29,270,700.

Calumet and South Chicago Railway first mortgage bonds, $4,614,300.

Chicago Railways company purchase money bonds, $3,969,155.

Chicago City and Connecting Railways collateral trust bonds, $20,616,000.

Chicago City and Connecting Railways collateral trust preferred participating certificates, 250,000 certificates.

All Holders Not Included.

It is not represented that all of the holders of these securities have approved of the plan. Not all of the holders have deposited their securities with the protective committees, although it is claimed that a majority of each class of owners has done so. The protective committees which have expressed approval of the plan represent a larger part of the total securities than the foregoing tabulation indicates.

The Chicago City and Connecting collateral trust owns no transportation properties directly. But it owns $17,100,100 face value of the $18,000,000 capital stock of the Chicago City Railway company, the major south side surface lines. It also owns the $10,000,000 capital stock of the Calumet and South Chicago company and the $2,400,000 capital stock of the Southern Street railway, which includes other south side surface lines.

Groups Represent $114,661,005.

So the six protective committees which have expressed their opinions of the financial plan represent—so far as they have been delegated—$114,661,005 of the $196,063,146 of securities in the hands of the public, or about 58 per cent. It was reported when the plan was made public last Monday that all protective committees except those representing the participation certificates of the Chicago Railways company—the west and north side surface lines—had formally agreed to the plan. The six protective committees since then have made formal recommendation of the plan to security holders.

These six old securities have been assigned all of the $40,595,875 first mortgage and refunding bonds and all of the $40,595,875 prior preferred stock of the new company. In addition they have also been allotted $21,760,533 of the preferred stock, $10,318,912 of the class A common stock, and $8,532,539 of the class B common stock.

Subway Meeting Today.

While the companies are attempting to get together in a merger the local transportation and the special assessment committees of the city council, the board of local improvements, the board of advisory engineers, and the abutting property owners will have a session today on the proposed State street subway.

The subway plans, recommended by Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., George C. Lenth and Robert Ridgway, have been approved by the board of local improvements, and are to be considered today by the council committees preparatory to expressing their opinion. The plans have not been signed by George Wisner, David Wallace and Edward J. Noonan of the board of advisory engineers. There are also critics of the plans on the outside.

All Objectors Invited.

The aldermen have invited every objector and critic to be present at the meeting and express opinions. Each has been promised a full hearing. Accordingly, it is anticipated that the hearing will stretch over two or three days.

The subway engineers are continuing their preparations for working specifications and construction. Borings have been in progress for several weeks. Yesterday the well diggers were busy at State and Monroe streets, getting a sample of the soil for the full depth that subways will be placed in the ground.

GIRLS! WANT TO BUY AN OFFICER? ITALY "SELLS" 'EM

TURIN, Italy, Dec. 11.—(AP)—American girls who want to marry Italian officers would better pick generals. It costs less. No officer may marry without his commander's consent, and the commander doesn't consent until shown the bride is bringing her husband a substantial "dot."

There is a regular scale of prices, running inversely to the officer's rank. "Shavetails" are offered at $600; a girl needs $400 to marry a captain, and she gets a general free.

It's all based on the officer's wage scale and what is considered his ability to provide for a wife.

O'BRIEN ON STAND TELLS VALUE OF POLITICAL FAVORS

Cross Examination Bares His Public Contracts.

Political favors which Democratic bosses were able to swing his way piled many thousands of dollars into the pockets of State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien (Dem., 29th), he testified yesterday before Federal Judge Lindley in whose court he is on trial for income tax evasions.

O'Brien spent a trying day as his own witness, the major tribulations coming late in the afternoon when his counsel, James A. O'Callaghan, turned him over to First Assistant United States Attorney Cassius Poust for cross-examination. The charge against O'Brien involves alleged failure to pay about $81,000 in taxes on a reputed total income of $416,000 in 1926, 1927, and 1928. Almost eighty per cent of this came from trucking contracts he performed for the city's taxing agencies, testimony showed.

Questioned About Public Jobs.

The political favor came out when Poust began a detailed questioning of the work O'Brien had done for the city, the sanitary district, and the park boards.

Q.—Could you keep your trucks working on city contracts in 1926? A.—Yes, I had them all working when Dever was mayor.

Q.—How many? Ten, fifteen, twenty? A.—I can't remember how many I had then, but they were all working.

A little later O'Brien said that all the contracts he executed for the sanitary district in 1926 were for amounts less than $500. Almost all that were entered in the record were for $495. Poust went into this situation.

Tim Crowe Is Mentioned.

Q.—You were given those contracts because on all for more than $500 it was necessary to hold competitive bidding, wasn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who put your trucks to work on the $500 basis? A.—Tim Crowe.

Q.—You mean the former president of the sanitary district? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you get a day for each truck working for the district in 1927? A.—I was supposed to get $15 per day, but some trustee down there jammed it up and I only got $13.

Q.—Who jammed it up? A.—I don't know.

Poust then went minutely into the exact amount of work O'Brien performed for each of the taxing agencies, but he failed to learn much. O'Brien said he could not remember how many trucks he had working any specified year, and he did not know how many teams were working. Repeatedly he replied to questions:

"I don't know from memory, but if you will let me see that sheet you have, I can tell you."

Poust was referring to an auditor's report as he questioned O'Brien. This privilege was denied the legislator, but the incident illustrated one of the major defense points—that O'Brien kept no books, and knew next to nothing of the amounts taken in by his firm and the money he expended.

Mr. O'Callaghan closed his direct examination by asking about his client's real estate holdings. O'Brien told of three pieces of property he owned, had difficulty in remembering just how much he paid for each and was almost completely at a loss to say where the purchase money had come from—his business, the sale of bonds, or miscellaneous revenue.

Admits Owning Other Property.

On cross-examination Mr. Poust drew from him the admission that he had neglected to tell of several of his properties, but he explained the omission by saying he had forgotten that he owned them during the years covered by the indictment.

One of these new disclosures threw the courtroom occupants, including Judge Lindley, into gales of laughter. O'Brien had said he owned property at 69th and Federal streets.

Q.—What did you pay for that? A.—I don't know exactly, won it in a newspaper home contest and I had to have coupons to enter.

Q.—How many coupons did you have? A.—As remember, I had 363,570. I bought papers by the load. (The courtroom shrieked with laughter.) I've never seen it but I've paid taxes on it. (More laughter.)

Q.—Are you sure it isn't out in the middle of the lake? A.—Well, it's next to a switch track. (The merriment reached its height.)

Tests Direct Testimony.

To test O'Brien's direct testimony Mr. Poust then produced a statement which the defendant is alleged to have made last Jan. 24 whe nhe was interviewed by Agent Frank Wilson of the special intelligence unit, bureau of internal revenue.

Wilson had asked him if he had other property than that which he had spoken of, or if he had been on pay rolls other than the state.

"And when you were asked that," Prosecutor Poust said to the witness, "didn't you answer, 'No, let them find out.'?"

"No," was O'Brien's reply.

Poust had just completed drawing from O'Brien the admission that he served as a real estate valuator for the board of local improvements in 1927, getting from $15 to $25 a day for more than a month. He had also learned of O'Brien's real estate, which the legislator had forgotten during his direct examination.

O'Brien must stand further cross-examination this morning. Judge Lindley, in an attempt to speed the trial, set the opening of court at 9 a. m., an hour before the usual time. It was said to be possible that closing arguments will begin this afternoon.

GIRL IS INDICTED AS SLAYER OF ROBBED JEWEL AUCTIONEER

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A first degree murder charge was filed late today against Jean Dayle, 22, confessed slayer of Sam Frank, Memphis, Tenn., jewelry auctioneer.

Phil Guinin, barber, identified as the man who took Miss Dayle to the home of a friend after the killing, was charged with being an accessory to robbery.

Police said Miss Dayle confessed she killed Frank alone and robbed him of a diamond ring, a stickpin and a sum of money, in a hotel room Saturday. She admitted a man planned the robbery, but under continued questioning today refused to give his name.

Guinin has refused to discuss the robbery with police, who say two persons told them Guinin showed them the diamond taken from Frank after the killing. The woman said she gave the diamond to the man who planned the robbery.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SENATE.

No doubt the senate welcomed a chance to start a row with the President at the very opening of the short session in which the administration and the radicals were foredoomed to disclose some violent differences of opinion. If Mr. Hoover had advice from elder statesmen crafty in the ways of American politics, even if they were not wholly dependable for higher altruism, satisfactory forward looking or brilliant wishful thinking, he would not have given the senate the opportunity. He would have been advised not to start an argument which he could not win when there were so many other ways of getting what he wanted without exposing himself to senate declamation.

The President cannot win that kind of an argument because he cannot keep it up. In his office there are restraints which do not prevail under the big dome. Mr. Hoover, it is to be feared, was irritated finding that political conditions are not the conditions of private enterprise. As the executive head of a great business he would not have tolerated such a muddling of his well conceived plans by subordinates. He would have fired them. He is the executive head, but not of a private enterprise. The conditions of his enterprise are political. The two will never meet. He has no authority over these men in the senate. Within limitations he can stop them. He can undo some things they try to do, but in extremity they can stop him.

In combination with the house of representatives they can ruin his administration. They can put him aside and nothing but the Supreme court could, if it would, stop them. The executive, in a fight with the legislative branch of government, is distinctly the inferior power. A President with a thorough training in American politics seldom gives congress an argument in which his only chance is to lose. In this instance Mr. Hoover has gone to battle with a body in which a majority does not represent people who have supported him in elections. The states which send radical Republicans to the senate cannot be regarded as Hoover states. They might vote for him as against a Democrat, but they select senators who oppose him. He cannot appeal beyond the senators to the people. That decision already has been given against him. The Democrats are there to make trouble for him if they can do so without the appearance of unfair play which would be costly to them.

Roosevelt could take congress on with no falls barred and have nothing to fear of the consequences. A senate debate in which that President was thrown to the lions was so much wind to which no one gave any attention. Mr. Coolidge, the opposite in temperament and characteristics, could master any situation which congress could pass up to him. He did not always have his own way. His veto did not always give him it, but he never had scars which revealed where a hostile congress had reached for him and got him.

Mr. Hoover, unless he will be guided at times by some friendly, case hardened elder statesmen who for one reason or another actually wish him very well, will not do the politic thing when he should. He will be the private enterprise executive when he should be the political executive. He will ignore the realities of the material with which he is working and will assume that there is responsibility where there is none. He will assume that there is power where there is none.

He has given the senate an excuse to complain that the President of the United States used a hasty newspaper interview to communicate his views to the legislature and that the reflections he cast upon the character of congress were not consistent with the dignity of office. He can be accused of pride of opinion which would stamp out opposition rather than convince it. He is accused of taking snap judgment and condemning other public officers for things they have not yet done, for things which lie within their constitutional rights.

The United States senate does not have the confidence of sensible and intelligent citizens. It is a disorganized aggregation of egotisms and eccentricities. It is reaching new low levels of incapacity and irresponsibility. A politically wise President would have little difficulty with it. Its dominant members can be relied upon to get it in the wrong and keep it there. A President who allows it to get the jump on him is throwing away his own advantages.

BRITISH FORCE IN INDIA.

Every correspondent who has found a way to get his news freely out of India has indicated his personal flinching from the scenes of repression with which his assignment brought him in contact. The brutalities of the punishment inflicted by the civil law officers upon the unresisting but aggravating nationalists have moved the compassion of newspaper men, who obviously have tried not to permit indignation to get the better of them. They have been truthful but not unfriendly to British authority.

The censorship has been effectively administered for the most part and the disagreeable facts, not violently spread even in the United States, are very softly spoken in Great Britain. There is no evidence that the liberal minded, the internationalists or pacifists, here or abroad, are exposed to any disquiet. Nothing much is demonstrated to show that they are uneasy. Here they are probably prepared to turn away from the facts in order to keep their assurance that the great powers of the world are in a new era of understanding and humanity in which medieval brutalities are impossible. They may open their eyes to see if such conditions possibly could exist in the Caribbean, but they will close them quickly on a suspicion that they might find them outside American jurisdiction.

The explanation of British conduct in India is that the Indian government is bewildered and stupid. It seems to have an impossible problem and to seek refuge in an insensate cruelty which the very character of the administrators belies, but which the facts reveal. Without the censorship Great Britain would be in danger of taking the old place of the unspeakable Turk, and it hasn't found a way of getting out of the hole.

THE LEAGUE AND ITS COURT.

The head of the pacifist lobby at Washington, Mr. Libby, in a statement tactfully contemporaneous with the delivery of the league court protocol reservations to the senate, calls attention to the inability of the President to find a Republican of prominence to assume the leadership in the court fight. Mr. Libby thinks this fact indicates that the Republican party is riding for a fall.

What it indicates is that there is no urge in the Republican party to rush into the embraces of the league of nations' system, of which the court is confessedly an agent. The leadership for adoption of the reservations and our adherence to the court appropriately belongs to Democrats, who favored and fought for our entrance into the league of nations, with or without reservations, and who logically favor our adherence to the league court. It reveals some vestige of a sense of responsibility in Republican leadership in the senate that it should exhibit an absence of the enthusiasm for the court which the organization of pacifism and internationalism demands. The persistent propaganda for our involvement in European politics, in its various guises, has not persuaded the main body of the Republican party, nor, we believe, that of the Democratic party. Adherence to the court is more plausibly defended than direct entrance into the league, but the demand for it is led by the champions of the league and its conspicuous supporters were all for our entrance into the league. But the profound instinct of the American people for their preservation from all avoidable entanglements in European politics remains, and there is no demand outside of the pro-league minority for entrance into the league's court.

The cautious plank in the Republican platform was not expressive of party opinion, but the result of a minority pressure, not courageously and candidly resisted. On this issue we heartily share the pacifist lobby's dissatisfaction with the position taken by the party leadership, which should take a vigorous stand for our American tradition of national political independence and refuse to compromise it in any degree. The present demoralization of party government and party policy, acutely expressed in the senate, may permit the adoption of the league court protocol, but such action would be without mandate from the American people, and if Republican leadership in the senate refuses to take responsibility for such a departure from American policy it will show a true sense of responsibility to the party and to the nation. The court is the creation of the league of nations and its agency. Let the advocates of the league in the senate lead the fight for the court.

CROOKED PAVEMENTS FOR STRAIGHT STREETS.

Park Ridge is a suburb immediately adjoining Chicago. In 1928 Park Ridge paved its half of the common boundary, from Belle Plaine to Devon avenue, for $24,765. Of that amount, the actual cost of the pavement was $16,325 and the rest went for incidental expenses.

The Chicago board of local improvements proposed to spread an assessment for paving Chicago's half of the same stretch. What cost Park Ridge $16,325 was to cost the property owners across the street in Chicago $47,559. When presented with this state of facts the County court threw out the Chicago assessment.

The attorney for Chicago, in his effort to justify the assessment, argued that in Chicago prices were high because of the existence of a paving ring. It need scarcely be said that no such ring could exist without the active coöperation of city officials. If they chose to do so they could in five minutes break up such a conspiracy to rob the property owners of the city.

A committee of the city council is investigating the letting of the contract for the foundations of the Wabash avenue bridge. The Lincoln park board, it is charged, is getting bridge foundations for less than Chicago is paying, while the contract let by the city did not go to the lowest bidder. The Park Ridge pavement presents a similar state of facts. We should think the committee—and the state's attorney—might well extend the investigation to include recent paving contracts. A first witness before the committee and the grand jury ought to be the city's lawyer. Perhaps he might be induced to tell more about the paving ring with whose existence and operations he showed such familiarity.

GUARDING THE TREASURY.

[Peoria Transcript.]

The voting of extravagant appropriations for public works and other forms of relief and averting a deficit by increasing taxes is bad economics and will not afford the relief promised. The relief begins to fade as soon as taxes are increased, and it is a matter of no consequence whether the incidence of the tax is upon the rich or upon the poor.

Members of congress who hope to gain favor in their home constituencies by raiding the federal treasury should not forget that the government cannot eat its cake and have it, too. Taxes are already high enough. Discontinuance of the 1 per cent current reduction in income taxes will be generally approved, but any attempt to raise rates to meet extravagant appropriation bills sponsored by politically ambitious congressmen will meet with deserved disfavor.

President Hoover has had wide support in his endeavor to maintain wage scales and pay rolls. But there are limits to the output of the golden goose.

The treasury of the United States is the taxing power. Taxes cannot be increased at this time without disturbing the economic balance and forcing a reduction in wages.

ABOUT COMMON COLDS.

THIS is the season for interest in the common cold to arouse from its summer sleep and to look about for facts and theories on which to browse. Here are some, gathered from several sources.

Dr. A. Hilding is of the opinion that coryza may result from exposure to inclement weather or from exposure to persons who have colds. So far as he has been able to decide there is no difference between the two diseases, if they are two and not one, due to choice of causes.

The proofs that colds are due to exposure he groups as follows: Some comparative studies of the prevalence of colds were made among 8,000 soldiers. One group of 2,700 was exposed to rain and cold in the trenches; 5,300 were held in barracks. The coryza rate was four times as high among those in the trenches. Four thousand five hundred were overexposed to high, cold winds while 3,500 were held in barracks. Again the rate among the exposed was four times that among the nonexposed. It is a matter of common observation and belief that getting the feet wet causes one to catch cold.

Some research done by Drs. Grant, Mudd, and Goldman showed that chilling the skin lowered the temperature of the breathing tubes in their upper stretches, thus tending to cause colds. Various experiments on lower animals have shown the harmful effects of wetting and chilling. The proof that some colds are the result of infection he also gives. Nearly every one knows of some person who has caught a cold from contact with some one who is affected. When a mother gets an acute cold her baby is very apt to become infected with it and, at times, it operates in the other direction. Colds traveling through a family from one child to another, or through a school from one child to another, have been noted frequently. There are a fair number of observations, some recent and some historical, in which some infected individual has landed among an isolated colony, whereupon the infection has flashed through the local people like a heat lightning.

And, finally, bacteria have been recovered from people with colds and used to infect laboratory animals. Such experiments have been successful. The result of Dr. Hilding's studies is a conviction that the battling scientists can compose their difficulties and limit themselves to fighting the enemy, for both are right.

IRON AND CALCIUM FOOD.

E. N. writes: Will you list the foods that contain iron and calcium?

REPLY.

Among the foods richest in iron are yeast, gluten, romaine and other salads, egg yolk, peas and beans, bran and molasses, meats, and oatmeal.

Those richest in lime are cheese, milk, butter, beans, salads, greens, yeast, and nuts.

FREQUENT NOSEBLEED.

J. W. writes:

1. Should a slight nosebleed, occurring once and sometimes twice a day, and lasting two to three minutes, be taken seriously? (This has been happening to me for the last three or four months. Also blood comes from only one nostril.) Is this a symptom of some form of nose trouble?

2. Which is considered the more healthful, maintaining an even temperature day and night of 68 to 70 degrees or having it about 80 degrees during the day and about 40 degrees during the night for sleeping?

REPLY.

1. I think an examination of your nostril would show an exposed blood vessel or some other local condition that could be remedied. Possibly your blood pressure should be taken.

2. The first is better, but absolute uniformity of temperature is not the optimum for health.

JOINT TENANCY.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A, B and C, all unmarried at the time, bought a piece of property several years ago in joint tenancy. Since then A has married and died. 1. Does A's share go to B and C without contest? 2. Or does it go to B alone, if deed so designates; or must all outstanding debts of A be satisfied before B or B and C can claim title to A's share? 3. Has the widow of A any claim on such property because of her relationship? M. B. T.

1. Yes.

2. The foregoing answer is on the assumption that the deed is an ordinary joint tenancy. If it is irregular, we should have the wording before advising you.

3. Not if it is an ordinary joint tenancy.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBABLY A CITIZEN.

Chicago, Dec. 3. — [Friend of the People.]—My father secured his citizenship papers in 1928. I am now 21 years old and wish to know whether I should apply for papers or if I am a citizen through my father's naturalization. R. R.

If the writer was living in the United States and was under the age of 21 years at the time of her father's naturalization, she is a citizen, provided she made a legal entry into the United States.

H. L. ROETHE,
Acting District Director of Naturalization.

DEFERRED PAYMENTS.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Last March I purchased an automobile and have made regular payments up to and including September, but have been unable to make any since. Two payments are now past due. In the event I cannot meet these payments, what can the finance company do besides taking the automobile? W. F.

It seems probable that the contract is so worded that they can sell for your account and hold you for the deficiency.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEPENDS UPON CONTRACT.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am selling goods for an out of town company from house to house. They allow me thirty days' time in which to sell and pay for same. Can they make me pay for the goods I am unable to sell if I return the goods that are not sold? F. S.

Your rights and obligations depend on the wording of your contract.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By S.S.

AND IT WAS OUR OWN DISCOVERY.

There is no justice! Yesterday's newspapers carried the news from Washington that they had found and adopted a new way in the prohibition department for denaturing industrial alcohol in such a way that while it would be nonpoisonous people wouldn't like it so well in cocktails, as it has an odor of rotten eggs and garlic. And a year or more ago the Conductor of This Colyum of Calumny begged the government to stop using barbed wire fencing, T. N. T., ground glass, and arsenic in industrial alcohol, and use garlic and Limburger cheese and spinach. We weren't so keen about the Limburger and the spinach; lots of people eat those things, but we've seen one single garlic breath clean out a street car, and we figured out it ought to be grand to chase people away from denatured alcohol. And now the prohibition enforcement department comes out and blandly announces they've adopted the idea of putting garlic in industrial alcohol and that it works great. And do we get a Distinguished Service Medal, or the thanks of congress, or a pension of fifty dollars a month, or our picture on a new two cent stamp? We do NOT! Do we get a statue set up in the HALL of FAME along with Ben Franklin, Chris. Columbus, Mike Faraday, Alex Bell, the Wright Brothers, the Smith Brothers, Tom Edison, and the rest of 'em? The answer is NO! But, just the same, it was our own invention. And whenever you detect the odor of garlic in your cocktail or Scotch highball, just mention our name. It was our idea!

WHAT SHALL I GIVE HIM
For Christmas, Huh?

Lissen, dearie, you tell us (a) one of the things you are thinking of giving him; (b) then we'll tell you why your idea is the hooey; (c) and what you really should give him to make him happy.

LIKE THIS:

1. (a) Beautiful necktie? (b) He wouldn't wear it to a dog fight; you girls are sweet, but when it comes to picking out a swell necktie you're the cheese. (c) Why not give him a lovely 1930 Linebook?

2. (a) Quart bottle of imported Scotch whisky, 20 years old, aged in the wood? (b) Say, do you want to lose that guy? That quart bottle was imported from some alky cooker's cellar not more than a mile away; if it's Scotch we're a Chinese Hottentot; if it's 3 days old it's a wonder and it was aged in a wash boiler. (c) Give him a Linebook of 1930.

3. (a) One of those long haired animal skin coats such as the college boys wear? (b) It may be the open season on the coat you happen to pick out and some hunter will shoot him before he gets to the loop. (c) A Linebook for 1930 would be nice.

4. (a) A good book, almost any of the current best sellers? (b) He's got a book. You gave him one three years ago for his birthday; a best seller, too; and he hasn't even cut the pages or looked into it since he got it. (c) Give him the new Linebook of 1930 and fool him, the pages are already cut.

Now, do you get the idea? You write to the Gift Editor of the Line and tell him what you are thinking of giving to him or her for Christmas. We will take each one of your silly suggestions in turn, give it a neat kick in the pants, and tell you what you should give. And lest we forget, of course, one thing that always makes a gorgeous Christmas present is the Linebook of 1930—10 cents in person, 12 cents by mail.

FOLLOWING the example of the senate in regarding itself as insulted by the White House, why doesn't California take the position it's been insulted by football and make the football apologize? The very idea of a football acting that way in California. And with the climate 'n' everything! Tck, tck, tck!

DOGGONE if we don't give Mabel Willebrandt a tryout! She's associated, so 'tis printed, in an advisory capacity with the California grape growers who are selling grape concentrate. We'll try a keg, Mabel, and lay it away for a couple of months or so—and then we'll swig down three glasses ar try to say, "It's a bra bricht, moonlicht nicht." And if we say it just like that, Mabel, we're going to be a little disappointed, a trifle surprised, and a little hurt. And we'll pan the everlasting daylights out of the California climate.

Thereby Winning the Lovely Box of Face Powder.

R. H. L.: The 6 faces of the new Linebook cover? That's easy. I guessed it right away! They're the Secret Six. SWANEE THE HICK.

TWO SONNETS.

Now I am living you are all my song,
But well I know that when I come to die
I shall return where I do most belong
With all my heart, to earth and sea and sky;
Yet these few days that wedge themselves between Departure and return, I give to you,
Since the quick world nor beautiful nor clean
Shows itself ever to the single view,
And love will see where loneliness is blind
And love will walk where loneliness would fall,
And love will teach our welded hearts to find
Beauty where beauty never was at all;
Well spent in love is this our paltry breath
Till our releasing in the hour of death.

I have so loved the earth that when I die
And they have dug me deep beneath the loam,
I shall compose me with the happy sigh
Of one grown weary and at last come home.
Trouble me not with bodings of decay;
The vast and sunburned earth is all my friend;
She will suffice me through my trivial day
And none but her be needed at the end.
Lay me within her arms and say good-night,
And leave me sleeping lighter than I lay
In the first crystal hour of love's delight
When the frail sunrise broke beneath the day—
With all my striving suddenly complete
In that dark rest and triumph of defeat.

A WOMAN out at Rockford is ninety years old and has never seen a movie. Maybe that's why she's ninety. R. H. L.

BUT HE WON'T STAY HITCHED

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 12, 1914.

LONDON.—Of the five Austro-German columns which for some days appeared to be making steady progress in their invasion of Poland, three have suffered checks, according to reports from western headquarters. The column which was within 15 miles of Warsaw was repulsed after an energetic offensive and under counter-attacks by the Russians was compelled to retire at some points. The Austrian losses are reported to be enormous.

LONDON.—The sinking of the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich with 1,500 marines aboard by a Japanese warship in South American waters was reported from Valparaiso, Chile.

AMSTERDAM. — The Frankfurter Zeitung says the Servians have been reinforced by five Russian regiments, which left Archangel Oct. 27 and arrived at Antivari Nov. 29.

CHICAGO.—After 11 years of constant effort Miss Anna Harriet Schneider has succeeded in getting a recommendation for her reinstatement in the public school system. She was dismissed under President Edwin G. Cooley, who accused her of having insane notions and falsifying records.

NEW YORK.—Richard A. Canfield, former gambler whose gaming houses at Saratoga and in this city were famous places in their day, died at his home as a result of a fall on the stairs of a subway station. He was 56 years old and a noted art collector.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 12, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Eighteen persons, sixteen of them children, were injured in a panic at Twelfth Street Turner hall, caused by a false cry of fire after some glass had fallen from an electric light reflector.

CHICAGO.—Ald. Pike and Thompson of the Second ward were denounced at a meeting of the South Side Business Men's association and a committee was appointed to endeavor to get them to support the mayor if he vetoes the new ward ordinance.

CHICAGO. — Frank Hall, former owner of the Maze, which with other resorts was closed by the police recently, obtained warrants for prize fight promoters, principals and managers. He declares he will stop not only the McGovern-Gans fight scheduled for Thursday at Tattersall's but all future glove contests in the city.

CHICAGO.—The greatest ball in the history of the German-American Charity association was given at the Auditorium, where 2,000 persons danced while another thousand looked down from the balcony upon a brilliant scene.

CHICAGO.—Charles Peck, one of the oldest of Chicago artists and one of the founders of the Academy of Designs, is dead at his home in Woodlawn at the age of 73.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 12, 1880.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of the Navy R. W. Thompson has definitely decided to accept the chairmanship of the American committee on the De Lesseps Panama canal at a salary of $25,000 a year. President Hayes has assured him that his resignation of his cabinet position will be accepted with extreme regret. There promises to be a very active contest in congress between representatives of the rival canal companies. It is learned that Vanderbilt studied the Nicaragua scheme but he finally withdrew from it. Gens. Grant, Billings, Howard, Potter, Riggs, and others are among its supporters.

CHICAGO.—Whittier post, No. 7, G. A. R., elected the following officers: Commander, E. B. Howard; senior vice commander, L. L. Wilson; junior vice commander, T. M. Rowan; quartermaster, C. W. Ballinger, and surgeon, J. S. Lane. Gen. George A. Custer post, No. 40, elected these officers: Commander, Leonard S. Hudson; senior vice commander, George S. Meservey; junior vice commander, Charles Dal; adjutant, Joel Daninbower; surgeon, George W. Goodner, and quartermaster, Michael J. Flood.

PENSACOLA, Fla.—Nine-tenths of the business portion of this city was destroyed by fire with the loss of about a half million dollars. The custom house and all the records were burned.

KEEP CHICAGO ON THE LAKE.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—The title to the submerged land off Grant park is right where it belongs, and I sincerely hope THE TRIBUNE will actively oppose the secret scheme of the south park commissioners and camouflaged private interests to obtain control of the waterfront and fill in the lake along that shore. The most attractive feature of Chicago's natural environment is Lake Michigan and the lake front and river, with the rapidly growing beauty of the modern buildings rising majestically as near to the water line as possible. Let us keep Chicago on the lake. Do not permit it to be defaced and converted into an inland city.

If more made land is desired, let it be beautiful islands off shore at suitable distances to be attractive. The harbor will be of great utility and value for the fleets of hydro-airplanes to alight and depart from, a port as near the center of the city as possible, as well as for yachts and other vessels.

HARRY I. CROMER.

WHAT, INDEED?

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Your article on the first page this morning was very interesting to me. If the meandering line of Lake Michigan was extended out to the pier, what would become of our Chicago Yacht club proposition?

GEORGE J. WILLIAMS.

TOO MUCH SALESMANSHIP.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—The theory expressed frequently that our consumption capacity should be "geared up" to synchronize with our productive capacity is not sound reasoning, not good judgment, nor good economics.

We are suffering from overproduction, largely due to the effects of an overstimulated selling campaign. When producers learn to produce in proportion to the reasonable consumption requirements, and not to attempt to create markets by artificial means, conditions will then be normal. The peak of consumption and production, approximately that of 1928, is not a fair basis for estimating either normal consumption or production. It was an abnormal condition, and normal conditions should not be expected to reach such a stage for quite some time. Attempts to tinker with the laws of supply and natural demand always result in disaster.

V. A. MATTESON.

FLAMING YOUTH.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—I would like to compare notes with the people who have written concerning the conduct of high school boys on the street cars. I am sure none could compare with the Tilden boys at Cottage Grove and 47th street in the morning. When the boys see the 47th street car coming they line up for what they call the "Tilden rush" and they sweep everybody before them as if they were in a football game. No one else has a chance to get on the car until those sturdy youths are on. It is surprising there hasn't been a terrible accident, but one woman told me she was knocked down and trampled on by the mob.

Only three times since the first of September have I seen one of those sturdy youths yield his seat to one who absolutely needed it. Many of the women going to work must stand all day. F. S.

AN ADMIRER OF W. E. HILL.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—I have read W. E. Hill's page in your Sunday Roto section for several years and find myself convinced that he is one of the most brilliant of modern satirists. His drawings and text are much too good to be allowed to flash only as current feature and would make an excellent collection. I would strongly recommend to you that you make a selection of the best that have appeared over a period of the last year or two and issue them in volume form. In fact, I would be interested in buying a copy every year were you to publish one annually. P. H. F.

REPLYING TO MELLON.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—By the same token that you print the tinseled, bunk laden propaganda of Mellon against the cash bonus to the veterans I am presuming that one of the common people should be able to retaliate by writing something for Mellon to read in rebuttal.

How in the world can we expect a man to seriously consider, as he puts it, the present welfare of three million suffering veterans who will live in perpetual torment for the rest of their lives when paramount to him at all times is piling up surpluses with the sole purpose of exalting Mellon?

The pittle that the government could not market sufficient securities at the present time, while literally billions of dollars are available any day now in Wall street for gambling purposes should be immediately scotched, for no one believes a word that Mellon utters in that respect. Any amount offered for such a worthy obligation would be oversubscribed by millions of dollars.

The stark realities mentioned by Senator Vandenberg knock Mellon's academic assumptions into oblivion.

HENRY C. DENSTEN.

OBSTACLE ON LA SALLE STREET.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The La Salle street paving will be completed within the next two weeks and this thoroughfare will then be open from Washington street to Lincoln park as an eighty foot roadway except at Kinzie street, where the elevated railroad has created a bottleneck reducing the roadway to half its width due to the steel pillars supporting the elevated structure remaining in their old position. I believe these pillars should be moved back to the present sidewalk line.

This condition has existed for nearly two years, as that part of La Salle street was completed at that time and the elevated company has had plenty of time to remove this obstruction. It seems to me that the elevated company would of their own accord remove this obstruction, but since they haven't it is up to Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe to see that it is done.

A. L. HENNESSY.

DARE TO BE A LYLE.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—The courageous Judge Lyle reminds me of an old Methodist hymn sung the world over for nearly a century, entitled "Dare to Be a Daniel." Substituting the name Lyle, it would begin like this:

Dare to be a Lyle, dare to stand alone;
Dare to have a purpose firm, dare to make it known.

That's Judge Lyle; he dares to have a purpose firm and dares to make it known. A CITIZEN.

EXPECT SENATE TO VOTE POSTAL 44 HOUR WEEK

Enactment Would Affect 160,000 Employes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Postal employés throughout the United States appeared today to be close to complete victory in their fight to establish a forty-four hour working week. Postal workers now stay on duty forty-eight hours a week or six full eight hour days. A forty-four hour week would give them one half holiday.

Sponsors of the shorter working period are concentrating their efforts in the senate toward the passage of the forty-four hour week bill adopted unanimously by the house yesterday. Its enactment would affect approximately 160,000 employés and would open up 8,000 to 10,000 new jobs for eligibles or substitutes.

Five Day Week Seen.

Favorable action on the bill by the house was seen by the labor interests as the first step toward the establishment of a five day week throughout the federal government service. A bill with this purpose has been introduced in the senate by Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.].

Representative Samuel A. Kendall [Rep., Pa.] sponsored the postal employés bill in the house and there was virtually no opposition. The bill was discussed briefly and adopted by a voice vote.

The legislation was actively supported by the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, the National Association of Letter Carriers, and the three major groups of organized postal employés.

Brown Opposes Bill.

It was opposed by Postmaster General Brown on the ground of its cost and because, he stated, there already was available an ample supply of postal labor, and further improvement in employment conditions were not necessary at this time.

In the senate a companion bill has been introduced by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.], and friends of the legislation are confident of early senate action.

SZYMCZAK, IGOE GET BACKING IN MAYORALTY RACE

Names Proposed to Democratic Chiefs.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Two possible candidates for the Democratic nomination for mayor occupied the limelight yesterday.

M. S. Szymczak, clerk of the Superior court, was proposed for the honor in a round robin sent to the county committee by a delegation which met at the Hotel Sherman. Cards urging the candidacy of Michael L. Igoe, state representative and national committeeman, were distributed in the loop.

In the meantime watchful ones reported that there was an increasing trend among the several groups toward County Chairman A. J. Cermak as the most likely selection if the field concentrates behind a single candidate. Current opinion during the day was that Igoe might be the only candidate against him if Cermak—during the next week or ten days—decides to run.

May Yield to Cermak.

It was said to be considered likely that both Recorder Clayton F. Smith and Ald. John S. Clark might yield to Cermak. It also was said that Coroner Herman N. Bundesen will not enter the primary without the organization behind him and that his champions now have begun to talk among themselves of trying to persuade him to run as an independent in the election.

The Szymczak delegation which presented to Chairman Cermak a written indorsement of the Superior court clerk for mayor was headed by M. C. Zacharias, president of the Ashland State bank, and included a number of other Polish leaders, among them the editors of several newspapers. Other signatures were those of John J. Olejlnczak, Thomas Lasecki, Commissioner Walter J. LaBuy, and Julius F. Smietanka.

Chairman Cermak told the committee that waited on him that the party leaders already had Clerk Szymczak under consideration and that due regard would be given to the recommendation made by the petitioners.

The Igoe Platform.

The Igoe cards which appeared in the loop were headed: "A platform that won't break down." The platform described on the reverse of the card consisted of planks for "work for the unemployed, a full dinner pail, beer and light wines and a cleaner, a greater, a better Chicago."

The cards were said to have been put out by enthusiasts without authorization from Igoe, although since the announcement that Col. A. A. Sprague declined to have his name considered Igoe is said to have been assured of the support of some of the former Sprague supporters. Sprague has not declared his personal preference.

Two Republican Prospects.

On the Republican side of the battle petitions for two new candidates were said to be in circulation. John L. East, committeman from the Fifth ward, sent word from a sick bed that he had not authorized the solicitation of signatures on his behalf. He said that if there is ever any announcement of his candicacy it will come from George F. Harding, who, it has been understood for weeks, may be made the entry of the regular organization if Thompson does not run.

The second Republican petition bore the name of Thomas J. Houston, former city civil service commissioner, who is high in Masonic circles. He said he had not authorized the circulation, and it was reported the petitions had been put out by a committee of business men.

GRANDCHILDREN OF HOOVER MAKE DEBUT IN TALKIES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Two new moving picture actors today made their debuts on the south lawn at the White House.

They were Herbert Hoover III. and Peggy Ann, grandchildren of the President.

They demonstrated to their own satisfaction that the new bicycles they found upon their arrival early this week were very good.

Asked by their grandmother what they wanted Santa Claus to bring them for Christmas, Herbert Hoover III. replied he wanted an engine.

"Do you want a big engine or a little engine?" he was asked

"A big one," was the quick reply.

He also expressed a desire for a policeman's uniform with a badge and a large stick.

NEW YORK BANK CLOSED; LOAN TO AID DEPOSITORS

House with 59 Branches May Reorganize.

New York, Dec. 11.—[Special.]—The Bank of the United States, 535 5th avenue, and its fifty-nine branches throughout the city were closed today by Joseph A. Broderick, state superintendent of banks, who announced finally he had taken possession of the institution under section 57 of the state banking law.

Closing of the institution, which has deposits of $202,972,000, capital of $25,000,000, and undivided profits of $2,134,000, followed a run which started late yesterday at branch No. 4 in the Bronx. There had been rumors of trouble in Bank of United States for several months.

Decision to close the bank was reached by Mr. Broderick at an all night conference with representatives of the greatest financial interests in the city.

City Funds in Bank.

It became known tonight that the city of New York had $1,500,000 on deposit in the bank. City officials decided to start legal action at once to protect the deposit. It was also revealed that the federal government had $164,927.11 of postal savings on deposit, but this is protected by collateral to the value of $220,000. The state of New York is another depositor, but to what extent was not made known.

Immediately after announcement of the closing, Mr. Broderick announced the 23 great banks making up the New York clearing house had agreed to rally to the aid of the Bank of the United States by making loans against the net claims of depositors to the extent of 50 per cent. This means a loan of more than 100 million dollars to stem the tide.

Word also came that the bank would be reorganized under a new name with additional capital funds to meet all requirements and with outstanding New York bankers lending their names to the management through membership on the board of directors.

Reorganization Planned.

This reorganization will be started, it was learned in financial circles, as soon as public excitement over the closing of the institution has subsided.

Watson Washburn, assistant attorney general, revealed in a public statement that certain stock operations of the concern have been under scrutiny.

An official of the bank, who declined to permit the use of his name, this afternoon attributed the institution's difficulties mainly to jobbery in its stocks.

"It was caused by the operations of over the counter brokers," he said, "brokers who have been hammering the Bank of the United States down, and spreading false rumors."

Stock "Hammered Down."

"They have been hammering our stock down there for eighteen months, not only ours, but that of other banks, too."

Another official, Simon H. Kugel, vice chairman of the bank's board, said that he was confident the institution would pay 100 cents on the dollar to depositors, and that neither liquidation nor a merger would be necessary to protect their interests.

The Bank of the United States was organized in 1913 with a capital of $100,000.

The president of the bank is Bernard K. Marcus, son of Joseph S. Marcus, founder of the bank.

On Nov. 24 it was announced that the bank was to be merged with the Manufacturers Trust company, the Public National Bank and Trust company, and the International Bank and Trust company. This proposed merger was never realized, however. Failure to agree on details led to the announcement on Monday that the merger had been abandoned.

Bank Closes After Suicide.

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The West Springfield Trust company voted to suspend payments this afternoon, after undergoing a run that began when it became known that Treasurer J. Malcolm Warren had committed suicide. It was announced that the advice of the bank examiners would be sought as to the advisability of an immediate reopening. The bank, it is stated, has some $800,000 tied up in real estate.

Banker Kills Himself.

Columbus, O., Dec. 11.—(AP)—William C. Willard, vice president of the Huntington National bank and vice president and treasurer of the Columbus Savings bank, ended his life in the Columbus Athletic club today by shooting himself in the head.

Banker Found Shot Dead.

Arlington, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—John Falls, cashier of the Bank of Arlington, was found in an automobile near here today with a fatal bullet wound in his head and the bank was placed in charge of a state bank examiner. A statement of the bank, published last May 19, showed resources of $162,174.22 and deposits of $123,506.75.

Warrant Charges Embezzlement.

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Louis G. Otto, former assistant cashier of the Citizens National bank here, accused of embezzling $73,542.51 from the bank, was arrested here today on a bench warrant issued by Judge Charles P. Bock of the Circuit court.

DOUBLE INDEMNITY IN BANK FAILURES APPROVED BY COURT

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Stockholders in defunct state banking institutions are liable not only for the amount of stock owned by them, but for assessment in sums equal to the amount of the stock, the Indiana Supreme court held today in an opinion reversing a decision of the Wells county Circuit court.

Effect of the opinion, written by Judge Clarence R. Martin, was to uphold the practice known as "double assessment."

Stockholders in the Bluffton bank had contended that the constitution did not apply to banks of discount and deposit, but only to banks of issue and circulation.

OFFICIAL SANTA INJURED, BUT HE CARRIES ON JOB

Assistant Postmaster John McGrath, who has been the Federal building "Santa Claus" for years, answering letters from the children who write the Christmas saint, will not be physically capable of performing his time honored duty this year.

Mr. McGrath is confined to his home, 1239 Arthur avenue, it was learned yesterday, having fallen down a flight of stairs and broken his shoulder. He is trying to care for his correspondence in spite of his disability, but the going is slow and he will not be able to answer all of the letters, he said yesterday.

COURT REFUSES A REHEARING OF BROKER'S APPEAL

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Supreme court refused today to rehear the appeal of a Chicago broker from a judgment relieving a client of paying his loss in a grain futures transaction on the ground that it was a "gambling" debt.

The broker, operating on the Chicago Board of Trade, sought to compel William McCabe, a Bureau county farmer, to fulfill the contract to purchase grain futures by which McCabe would take a loss. The lower courts, confirmed later by the Appellate and Supreme courts, accepted McCabe's contention that his transactions were "gambling" and absolved him of obligations.

Broker Brings Suit.

James K. Riordan, Chicago brokerage company official, sued for a rehearing on the lower court's decision to permit McCabe to "welsh on his contract" with the Chicago Board of Trade when his purchase of grain futures went against him.

McCabe took recourse to the courts to save his 14,000 acre Bureau county farm, and styled his transactions "gambling."

Riordan's firm declared McCabe's dealings were not "gambling" but "speculation." They allege that McCabe is still trading on the Board of Trade.

Others Could Do Same.

Their final effort to get the Supreme court to reconsider the case in all its phases declared that "any one of the 1,800 members of the board is likely to be branded as a gambler if one of his clients makes a trade through him that terminates in a loss and then welshes on his contract.

"The decision in this case seriously affects the welfare of the Chicago Board of Trade. It is the greatest grain market in the world. Illinois should be proud of it in its great public service. The Board of Trade has adopted rules to prohibit from its facilities from being used for gambling purposes."

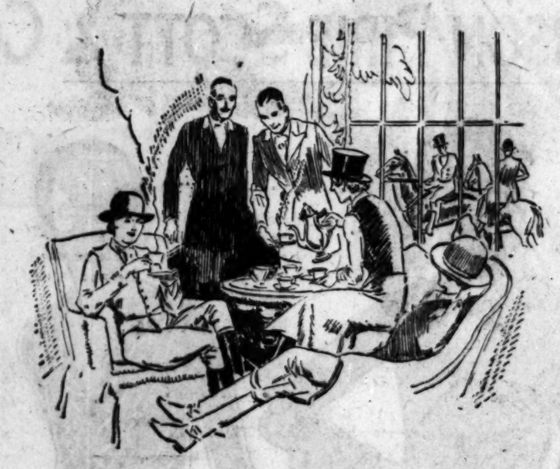
Chicago's charming society hostess

Mrs. Howard Linn

....serves only this rich coffee*



YOU may remember Mrs. Linn as the beauty with whom the Prince of Wales danced almost exclusively on his recent visit here . . . or as the featured jumper in all Society Horse Shows—riding side saddle, English fashion.

For whatever Mrs. Linn does is smart, touched with glamour . . . even to the dinners at what she calls her "amusing little old house" on Cedar Street, or the picturesque hunt breakfasts on her Lake Bluff estate. At these, Manor House Coffee is the culminating touch always. "For," as Mrs. Linn says, "no matter how perfect one's menu or table setting, their entire success is marred if the coffee fails to charm. Manor House is so rich and fragrant that guests often assume it to be some rare blend that I specially import. But in all my travels, I have yet to find a coffee that compares with Manor House in quality and flavor."

Since that day long ago when this "symphony of coffee flavors" was first created, McLaughlin's Manor House has remained the favorite of coffee connoisseurs. It is the only blend served in fully 92% of Chicago's exclusive lake shore homes, where dining is an art and the choicest viands of the world a daily necessity. For still today it is made in the same painstaking way. Tons of specially selected beans, patiently mellowing away their bitter greenness . . . the secret blending of flavor with flavor as a painter blends his colors.

If coffee to you is something more than just a hot drink . . . if your success as a homemaker or hostess is a matter of any pride . . . you cannot afford to use anything less than McLaughlin's Manor House. After all, this supreme flavor may be yours for but a few cents a pound more than the most ordinary coffees . . . the wise economy of coffee lovers who buy more Manor House than any other quality brand in Chicago.

"Eyes that talk," and a personality that utterly fascinates, make Chicago's own Lucy Blair Linn a society favorite of two continents. Next to the Au Paradis decorating shop, her chief occupation is the pink-coated drags at Onwentsia and fox-hunting here and abroad. "Sixty jumps in a run is strenuous sport," she says, "and the coffee after a drag must be supremely fine, to relax and freshen one as Manor House does."

Tune in W·G·N every Sunday night, 7 to 8 o'clock, for the Manor House Dramatizations of the Grand Operas . . . with stars singing the principal arias.

DELAY A DANGER, PRATT SAYS, IN NAVAL TREATIES

Should Build Aircraft Carriers at Once.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations and senior American naval adviser at the London conference, today warned the house naval affairs committee that the United States must build up its aircraft carriers tonnage at once or face the prospect of having the wings of the fleet clipped to the danger point at the next arms parley.

The naval expert, whose support of the London treaty at a time when most of the admirals were criticising it won him the praise of the administration, drew on his experiences at the London conference to illustrate the danger of dilatory action. He asserted that unless this country took advantage of the treaties permitting us to build up to a 135,000 ton maximum, other powers would take the position that as we did not build these aircraft carriers we did not need them.

Calls United States Backward.

"We have been backward in constructing aircraft carriers," Admiral Pratt said. "We had only two of a total tonnage of 66,000 tons when the conference met at London. We could have had 135,000 tons. The fact that we had not used up our allotment of aircraft tonnage placed us in a precarious position because other powers argued that so long as we had not built all the aircraft carriers we were privileged to, we did not need them and should accept a reduction. It was a hard argument to answer. I consider the vessels which carry planes a strong asset and believe we should build all of this type we can."

The Pratt testimony, called out by the hearings on the navy's 134 million dollar naval construction program, disclosed a difference of opinion among the high ranking navy officials over the extent to which aviation should be expanded into the fleet. One group takes the position that guns should remain the principal offensive force of surface vessels other than aircraft carriers. A second group wants to reduce the number of guns on certain types of ships and replace them with airplanes capable of dropping huge bombs.

Naval Men Divided.

The argument, as disclosed by Admiral Pratt, revolves around the advisability of constructing six inch gun cruisers with large flying decks.

Yesterday Admiral Pratt indorsed the navy construction program, which calls for one orthodox six inch gun cruiser and one six inch gun cruiser equipped with a flying-off deck for planes. Today he said his personal opinion was that the United States should build two experimental flying deck planes, and if necessary drop the other six inch gun vessel.

FUTURE DISCUSSED BY EDUCATOR FOR INSURANCE HEADS

New York, Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Declaring that a "simple and single challenge lies coiled at the heart of this depression," Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, told the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents today that industrial leaders must "prove as capable in producing civilized consumers as it has proved itself capable in producing consumable commodities." Five hundred insurance officials are in attendance.

Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press and a director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, said newspapers of the country were leading the country back to normal by telling their readers that just as they were too optimistic without sound basis prior to November, 1929, so are they overpessimistic without warrant since that time.

Referring to the trend of newspapers away from the strongly personal type of old newspapers that were definitely identified with particularly prominent editors, Mr. Noyes said:

"No well balanced student could fail to find the New York Times of 1930 infinitely better than Raymond's Times. The same assertion would hold good in comparison of Medill's CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Godkin's New York Evening Post, Greeley's Tribune, and Bennett's Herald and Dana's New York Sun with their present day successors."

WOODCOCK PUTS NO DAMPER UPON HOLIDAY REVELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Holiday merrymakers who seek yuletide cheer in sparkling glasses and foaming mugs this season need have little apprehension of federal dry sleuths if local dry law administrators conform to a policy enunciated today by Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of the prohibition bureau.

During an informal discussion of Christmas and New Year's drinking Mr. Woodcock explained that his idea of enforcement by "steady pressure upon commercial violations" does not include spectacular raids with a view to trapping hip flask toters at night clubs nor cocktail mixers at friendly home and apartment celebrations.

Reminded that in past years federal agents in Chicago and other cities on New Year's eve have been wont to don tuxedos and mingle surreptitiously in bibulous festivities, Mr. Woodcock said firmly:

"I don't like such sensational front page newspaper enforcement activities. They don't mean very much in suppressing the liquor traffic."

He added, however, that he does not contemplate issuance of any special orders to this effect to local administrators, nor to interfere with their management of affairs. He also stressed the fact that he did not intend to convey the thought that he condoned the lesser liquor offenses.

Meanwhile today the wet organiation officials who held a convention here the first three days of the week announced that they had agreed upon a united program for solution of the prohibition problem. They passed a resolution calling upon congress first, to amend the Volstead act to permit wines and beer and second, to pass the resolution of Representative A. J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.] providing for repeal of the 18th amendment and substitution of a federal liquor dispensary system.

FRANCE ARRESTS ITALIAN SPY WITH NAVAL SECRETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 11.—A new crisis in Franco-Italian relations was feared tonight when it was learned that an Italian had been arrested yesterday at Hyeres as a spy in possession of secret documents revealing the plans for the defense of Toulon, France's greatest naval base, against aerial attacks. It was found that the suspect, Victor Dao, was a militant Fascist. He had letters showing he was in communication with Rome.

When questioned by the police Dao finally admitted that he had secret French documents. A search disclosed that the documents consisted of typewritten sheets containing a key to the naval code and blueprints of the fortifications in the Toulon region and a detailed description of the secret plans for the aerial defense of Toulon and the French Riviera.

It is understood that naval authorities regard the filching of the aerial defense plans as a catastrophe of the first order since Toulon is in easy reach of the Italian border.

FIGHT ON COURT FACES PROBLEM OF EXTRA SESSION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Leaders of opposing sides in the senate controversy over the world court agreed today that it could not be disposed of at this session, but a division developed among its friends whether to urge a special session of the senate.

Word was passed out by the court foes that a new check up led them to count twenty-eight votes in opposition. This was eleven more than voted against entry five years ago and is near the one-third necessary to defeat ratification.

It is the intention of the court advocates to have Elihu Root, a former secretary of state, appear before the foreign relations committee to explain the modified proposal.

While many Republicans are opposed to reporting the protocol from the foreign relations committee now lest it precipitate an extra session, there are apparently enough votes to get an early report.

Chairman Borah, although an opponent of American participation, wants to have the protocol reported.

Taking Stock

THIS is the open season for inventory. Why not a stock-taking of modern advertising values? Consider:

FIRST—EDITORIAL CHARACTER. Collier's is setting a new pace and a new style—crisp, active, fast-moving and alive with the vital interests of modern people. Witness, "The Road Back," sequel to "All Quiet on the Western Front," world-wide best seller by Erich Maria Remarque, now appearing in Collier's; one of many brilliant features of world-wide interest which Collier's first presented to the reading public this year.

SECOND—CIRCULATION. Collier's now has more than 2,250,000—a new high in a steady march which has added more than 1,290,000 readers in six years.

THIRD—ADVERTISING RESULTS. This past year Collier's has reached a new peak in results produced for advertisers. From manufacturers in almost every field of industry has come a great volume of testimony that "Collier's gets action." And supporting this is a 14% gain in advertising over the previous record year, 1929.

GOOD FELLOWS TO GET RECEIPTS AT ART THEATER

Benefit Drama Will Be Given Wednesday.

The Chicago Art theater next Wednesday night at the Playhouse theater will present Hermann Sudermann's "Fires of St. John," with the entire box office receipts going to the Good Fellow fund. The announcement was made yesterday by Maria Astrova Lazareff, director of the little theater company.

The play is one of Sudermann's greatest, a melodrama, Prussian in atmosphere, having to do with the conflict fought by one George von Harten to overcome his desires toward a certain comely gypsy lass so that he might fulfill his duties toward his conventional fiancée. The company, which returns today from a tour in the midwest, includes Eric Hulbert, who is of the Hull House dramatic faculty, and Agnes George, who was in Morris Gest's "Miracle." The tickets will be sold at moderate prices.

$1,277 from Shoe Firm.

This is the latest of several Good Fellow benefits that are becoming more numerous with the approach of Christmas. I. Miller & Sons, shoe merchants, yesterday turned $1,277 into the fund, a week's profits of the company's two Chicago stores. Warner Bros.' nineteen Chicago movie houses will give a midnight performance tomorrow night with all box office receipts after 10:30 p. m. going to the Good Fellows. The Continental Coffee company, 375 West Ontario street, last night distributed baskets of food to forty-eight families.

These organized charity activities are worthy of note by themselves, but the cold and hungry families, destitute because of the temporary employment slump, still must depend for their main source of assistance upon the donations and pledges, large and small, from Good Fellow individuals and groups who are not receiving publicity.

Help Keep Families Together.

These anonymous donors, with their contributions of $1 or hundreds of dollars, are furnishing food, shelter, heat, and clothing, keeping families together during the strain of unemployment, helping families to become self-supporting again. The donations reach destitute families without any reduction for overhead; THE TRIBUNE pays the expenses of administration.

Congressman Oscar DePriest and Ald. R. R. Jackson announced last night that a dance will be held tonight at the Eighth Regiment armory to raise funds for the relief of unemployed families in the First congressional district. It is proposed to establish a commissary from which the needy may draw rations. Charles J. Jenkins and Caswell W. Crews, editor of the Bronzeman, are assisting in planning the dance.

SEEK TO SPEED UP U. S. WORK IN ILLINOIS TODAY

Congressmen to Meet with U. S. Officials.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Members of the Illinois delegation in congress will meet with treasury and postoffice officials tomorrow in an attempt to expedite the federal buildings program in Illinois, it was announced today by Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.]. Mr. Britten said that during the meeting the government officials will be questioned at length regarding the status of all government building projects in the state of Illinois.

Involves $31,343,000.

The status of the building projects in 19 cities has been prepared by the treasury department and will be presented to the Illinois delegation by Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary in charge of public building, and John W. Philp, fourth assistant postmaster general. The total expenditures involved is $31,343,000.

According to information reaching Chairman Britten, the treasury plans to place the contract for the foundation of the new $21,000,000 Chicago postoffice on the market in the early spring.

Hoover Gets Chicago Idle Data.

The other cities where building projects will be investigated include Aurora, Bloomington, Carbondale, Joliet, Harvey, Maywood, Pekin, Waukegan, Woodstock, Batavia, Freeport, Metropolis, Mount Carroll, Ottawa, Paxton, Peru, Rockford, and Springfield.

James Keeley, chairman of the executive committee of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's commission on unemployment and relief for Illinois advised President Hoover today that 131,864 unemployed persons in Chicago had registered with the commission. He estimated this represented a population of 350,000 persons.

MELLON URGES LAW TO MAKE GIFTS TO JOBLESS TAX FREE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—To encourage gifts by business firms to unemployment relief organizations, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today asked congress to pass a bill providing for the exemption of such donations in the payment of income taxes for the present year.

A measure carrying out the Mellon recommendation was presented to the house by Representative Willis C. Hawley Rep., Ore.], chairman of the ways and means committee, who announced he would urge its immediate passage.

Under the present income tax law gifts made by individuals to charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes may be deducted in computing net income up to the limit of 15 per cent of the income. There is no provision in the law to permit corporations to make such deductions.

that you can buy for as low as

$92

The Filmo 75 Camera is pocket-thin, weighs but little, and is as easily held as your opera glasses. Finely and sturdily constructed, its dependability is constant. The movies it makes are of theater-like sharpness and brilliance. Only $92. Carrying case, $7.50.

On the decks of the finest ocean liners, at the leading country clubs, at famous watering places, Filmo Personal Movie Cameras may be seen in the hands of kings and princes and notables of every clime.

In the wilds of the north woods, in equatorial Africa, where world-famed adventurers go for strange and exotic movie shots . . . there too will you find Filmo.

For the jewel-like precision which distinguishes Filmo at a royal hunt or an exclusive yacht club, recommends it likewise in the wilds of Borneo. Filmo's precision means constant dependability and photographic results rivaled only by the movies you see at the theater.

And the reason for this superior Filmo quality is not far to seek. For Filmo is made by Bell & Howell, makers for nearly a quarter of a century of the professional studio cameras used by the major film producers of the world.

If you would give a present of real distinction this Christmas, none could answer so well as Filmo. See the Filmo Cameras and Projectors at your dealer's and you will quickly understand why.

The drive of Gov. Emmerson's commission on unemployment for the $5,000,000 relief fund passed the $2,000,000 mark yesterday with the receipt of more than $100,000 in the day's collection. Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the financial campaign, said last night that he hoped the drive would be completed within a week.

The insurance division, under the direction of Ernest Palmer, yesterday brought in contributions exceeding the quota of this group and word was received from the banking division that additional contributions from bankers probably will bring the contributions of this division beyond the quota.

Get Large Contributions.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. and employés sent in an additional check of $25,000, raising the total of the mail order concern to $125,000. Other large contributions were: Quaker Oats company and employés, $21,489; Marsh & McLennon and employés, $12,092; the Crackerjack company and employés, $9,600; John M. Smyth company and employés, $5,186; Foreman-State corporation, $5,000; Colgate-Palm-Olive-Peet company, $5,000.

Action of the board of education and the Lincoln park board probably will provide jobs for 700 persons. The school board adopted a resolution asking teachers who hold both day and evening jobs to give up their night classes to provide positions for unemployed normal school graduates. It is estimated that between 500 and 600 jobs will be opened up by this measure.

200 New Jobs Seen.

The contract let by the Lincoln park board for park extension is expected to provide 200 new jobs.

George F. Getz, chairman of the commission, yesterday put up the first of 2,000 posters urging citizens to buy now. The poster bears the slogan, "Buy Normally to Help the Unemployed."

Gives Up Meal to Buy Clean Collar to Apply for a Job

John Keane, superintendent of the Illinois Free Employment service at 116 North Dearborn street, who is helping hundreds of unemployed to get jobs nowadays, got a telephone call the other day from an old acquaintance. Mr. Keane had known the man in times when he was well to do, but on this day he was asking if Mr. Keane could help him to find work.

"He came down here and told me he was penniless," Mr. Keane said yesterday. "He pleaded with me to find him a job—any kind of a job."

"I looked him over. 'Well, John,' I said, 'you aren't so bad off or you wouldn't have freshly shined shoes and a clean collar.'

Food or a Clean Collar.

"'I had 40 cents this morning,' he replied. 'When I got into the loop I got a shine and bought a new collar to look decent when I came to see you. I haven't eaten this morning.'"

This is one of many cases of "white collar" workers who are coming to the agency daily to seek work. Many of the jobs which are given to the applicants are provided by Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE, who turns over to the agency offers of work sent to her by TRIBUNE readers. Among the "white collar" men applying for work are lawyers, former bank employés, bond salesmen, and brokers.

Want Any Kind of Work.

"Of course, these men don't apply for positions in banks or law firms," he said. "They register for jobs as salesmen, always adding that they will take anything, just anything. But when a job comes in which a trained man can fill better than these men the trained man gets it, of course."

Two weeks ago a lawyer registered through the agency. He had not had any clients for months and had been seeking other work. His wife, who was working for a time, lost her job. They have two children. He has obtained several jobs as handy man during the two weeks, but none of them has given him more than two days' work.

Another lawyer, a young man recently graduated at a law school, still visits the agency daily. Among the group yesterday was a man formerly with a brokerage house. He lost everything in the stock crash. Now, Mr. Keane said, the man fears he may have to appeal to charity.

Sensitive About Their Want.

"We don't ask them many questions," Mr. Keane said. "Some of them are sensitive about revealing their own history. They feel that better times are around the corner, and then they do not want it a matter of record that they ever received charity. Our own employés, none too highly paid, often realize this and give them a little out of their own pockets, which they can ill afford to do."

Although the last week has shown a large increase in the number of persons applying for work, Mr. Keane said, it has shown a proportionate increase in available jobs, many of them received through Sally Joy Brown.

AMNESIA VICTIM IDENTIFIED BY HER BROTHER

An 18 year old girl, an amnesia victim, found wandering at 80th and Green streets on Wednesday night, yesterday was identified by her brother, George Genualdi, 640 Willow street, as Mary Genualdi, of the same address. She did not recognize her brother.

She left home at 3 o'clock Wednesday, Genualdi told physicians at the Auburn Park hospital, where she was taken by Gresham police when they found her and could extract no information from her as to where she lived. The girl told hospital attaches a rambling story in which she repeated the phrases, "bottles in a drug store" and "water in bottles." She asked to see her mother but could not remember where she lived.

Genualdi told hospital authorities that his sister never before was afflicted with a loss of memory.

Former Minister of Justice Elected Swiss President

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Heinrich Haberlin, former minister of justice, today was elected president of the Swiss confederation by the two houses of parliament.

Wanted . . . . . a Sales Executive

One of the largest corporations in the United States, with branches throughout the country, requires a hard-hitting, two-fisted Vice President to direct a large selling organization. He must be a leader of men and capable of going much further than this job.

Only a militant, well-grounded executive who is management minded, and backed by a college education or EQUIVALENT, aged 27 to 43, will be considered.

Salary Runs Well Into Five Figures

William Judson Kibby
Noted Human Relations Engineer

has been commissioned to select this man and will be pleased to meet executives who are not looking for a change, but who would be interested in conferring with him most confidentially regarding this position.

All letters will be held in strictest confidence.

For an appointment, write William Judson Kibby, 172 W. Adams St., Chicago, giving a brief one page statement—age, experience and qualifications, or phone Mr. Kibby's secretary, Randolph 6224, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday, between 10 and 12 a. m. and 2 to 4 p. m.

It is useless to try to see Mr. Kibby unless you measure up to these specifications—only a big man will fill the need. No one will be seen except by appointment.

WHY SUPER-HETERODYNE?

The present Radio wave length allocation is such that many stations are crowded into one small band. On your Radio dial you cannot separate them, therefore you are obliged to be content with local and nearby stations. SUPER-HETERODYNE is the only Radio that can tune out local stations by turning the dial a fraction of a point, and is sensitive enough to powerfully reproduce distant stations so tuned in. Hitherto, a good SUPER-HETERODYNE was too costly a thing for most of us. They sold formerly from $300 to $600. Just imagine getting one at only $77.

KEGEL SUSPENDS DR. TONNEY FOR "DISOBEDIENCE"

Advisers Uphold Action of Commissioner.

Dr. F. A. Tonney, for 21 years director of research laboratory of the Chicago health department, was suspended yesterday by Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel. For some time he has been assigned to the contagious disease hospital, having been transferred there by Dr. Kegel.

DR. F. O. TONNEY. [Moffett Photo.]

Dr. Tonney's research work had been commended by eminent doctors. He had little to say concerning his suspension, asserting that his record in the 21 years should speak for itself. Whatever credit is due should be shared with "my loyal associates and assistants who gave me such efficient help, often under trying circumstances," he said.

Job Is in Civil Service.

Concerning the possibility that he might have to answer charges of being "obstreperous" and of "gross insubordination," Dr. Tonney was indifferent. His is a civil service position and unless the charges were proved he could be reinstated.

Dr. Kegel issued a statement regarding the action against Dr. Tonney. A letter sent to Dr. Kegel by Dr. Archibald Hoyne, medical superintendent in charge of the contagious disease hospital, relating to Dr. Tonney, also was made public and was accompanied by a resolution of the physicians' advisory committee to the health commissioner which "upholds the action of the commissioner of health in suspending Dr. F. O. Tonney for gross insubordination."

Charges by Dr. Kegel.

Dr. Kegel said Dr. Tonney was assigned to establish a research bureau at the contagious disease hospital under the supervision of Dr. Hoyne, but that he did not report for duty as directed, was absent without leave, and later obtained a leave for 29 days on account of urgent personal business.

He asserted that Dr. Tonney had made a public statement that smoke control was a failure in Chicago.

Dr. Hoyne said: "It seems to me that he [Dr. Tonney] is either incompetent to direct the hospital laboratory or else he is totally unwilling to cooperate in promoting laboratory efficiency."

Dr. Hoyne added that something in a letter written by Dr. Tonney to Dr. Kegel was regarded as gross insubordination.

Gen. Anderson, Member of British Army Council, Dies

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The British army today lost one of its foremost staff officers with the death of Lieut. Gen. Sir Warren Hastings Anderson, quartermaster general since 1927 and third member of the army council. He succumbed to appendicitis at the age of 58. A few weeks ago he was appointed to succeed Gen. Sir David Campbell in command at Aldershot. Gen. Anderson was one of the first British officers sent across the channel in August, 1914, to organize the reception and transport of British troops in France.

SHEETS DENIES ILLINOIS HOARDS HIGHWAY FUNDS

Tells Status of Bond Issue System.

Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer for Illinois, yesterday explained the status of the state road program and defended his department against recent criticism in a talk before the Illinois Association of Highway and Municipal Contractors, now meeting at the Hotel Sherman.

Up to Nov. 1 the state had completed 7,630 miles of roads built under bond issues and has before it 2,200 miles of road construction to complete the bond issue program, Sheets said. So far, $255,274,000 has been spent, and he estimated that $110,000,000 more will be required. The entire system of 9,830 miles can be completed within three or, at the latest, four years, he said.

May Alter Estimate.

The $110,000,000 estimate for future construction may be changed, depending on highway and railroad grade separation demands, construction of bridges and other items.

Sheets said the saving to Illinois motorists from the state's hard roads has been $330,000,000. He said traffic experts have found it costs 2 cents a mile less to operate a car over an improved road than over one that is unpaved.

During 1930, Sheets stated, 785 miles were paved under the state bond issues and the counties paved 224 miles. Discussion the 1931 program he estimated that $45,000,000 will be available. Of this $15,000,000 covers roads which are now under contract.

Reports on Chicago Area.

In 1929, Sheets related, construction on $19,000,000 worth of road improvements in the Chicago area was started and of this about a half has been completed. In 1931 it is planned to spend about $12,371,000 on Chicago district improvements. The principal difficulty here, he said, has been to obtain rights of way for highway grade separations.

In defending the state department Sheets declared that there was no truth to statements that the state is piling up huge sums that could be spent now on roads. He said the state has entered into contracts for road construction and when these contracts are completed the cash must be available.

It would not be fair, he said, to spend money in the treasury for roads other than those originally designated. Further, he said, the state has put aside funds for the Chicago district and it does not propose to use them for other districts. As to the one-third share in gas tax funds for counties, he said the law provides that it be paid after Dec. 31 of each year and Springfield officials must obey the law.

MRS. ALVIN DODD IS GIVEN LIMITED DIVORCE DECREE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Catherine Filene Dodd, Washington society woman and heiress, has been granted a limited divorce from her husband, Alvin Dodd, assistant to Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago, on charges of desertion. Mr. Dodd did not contest.

Mrs. Dodd petitioned that the separation "be enlarged into a permanent divorce" at the end of the Virginia statutory period, which permits her to file this latter action in two years.

Although she asked custody of their 7 year old daughter, Joan, the court ordered both parents an equal voice in the rearing of the child. A property settlement had been arranged previously.

FRANCIS J. REITZ, 89, PHILANTHROPIST AND RETIRED BANKER, DIES

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Francis Joseph Reitz, 89, an outstanding figure here, died this morning. Mr. Reitz was a director for 48 years and president for 31 years of the National City bank, retiring in 1924. He had given away millions of dollars for charity, churches, and educational institutions. Among his largest gifts were $900,000 for Reitz Memorial Catholic High school and $700,000 to St. Vincent's orphanage in Vincennes.

He gave $25,000 to Evansville college, a Methodist institution, and a substantial sum for the building of the Francis Joseph Reitz public high school.

At the dedication of Reitz Catholic High school in 1925 Bishop Chartrand of the Indianapolis diocese of the Roman Catholic church was emissary of the pope to bestow on Reitz the title of Commander of the Order of Pius IX. He was the first individual in Indiana and the third in the United States to receive the highest honor within the gift of the Roman Catholic church for its laymen.

In his philanthropies he followed the footsteps of his father, John A. Reitz, who in 1837 constructed the main building of the Little Sisters of the Poor here, to which Francis Joseph Reitz and his sisters since contributed generously.

CHURCHILL RAPS PARLEY ON INDIA AS 'RIDICULOUS'

"Dominion Status Means Fall of Empire."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 11.—A violent attack on the Indian round table conference was delivered today by Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, in an address to business men under the auspices of the Indian Empire society. The climax to his tirade came when he cried:

"Nothing like a dominion status for India can come out of the conference!"

Prior to Mr. Churchill's address, Viscount Sumner, president of the Empire society, declared that the conference was claiming the right to settle the future of India, a function which actually belongs to the British parliament.

"Round Table Conference Powerless."

Thereupon Mr. Churchill took up the cudgel.

"The only aim of the Indians is one of absolute independence," the Conservative statesman said. "When that is gained India will repudiate all debts, expel the British army, leaving the Germans and other European powers to defend the supremacy of Hindu despotism.

"These dangerous and absurd pretensions by the Indian delegates are being met with soft platitudes, both by the government of India and the British home government. The British nation has no intention of surrendering the effective control of Indian life and progress, and the round table conference has no power to frame a constitution for India. It's ridiculous to presume otherwise.

"No agreement reached by the conference will be binding morally or legally upon parliament. Before anything can be done a new house of commons would come into existence which would probably be far more representative of the strong patriotic elements of our country than the present house.

"Must Crush Gandhism."

"Gandhism must be finally crushed. It's no use trying to satisfy a tiger with bits of catameat. Above all, it must be understood that Britain has no intention of abandoning its mission in India. Such a step would mean a speedy downfall of the empire, and from such a catastrophe there would be no recovery."

Prime Minister MacDonald's effort to break the deadlock between Moslem and Hindu leaders again failed today. The Moslems still insist on the right to a specially weighted representation in both federal and provincial legislatures and in the executive branch. The Hindus claim they are entitled to whatever strength their population and voting gives them.

FIND 5 BODIES OF A FAMILY OF 6 MISSING YEAR

Watford City, N. D., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Disappearance of the A. E. Haven family of six persons from their farm home near Schafer last February was cleared up tonight with the finding of four additional bodies following the recovery of one earlier in the day.

Authorities were led to the bodies by Charles Bannon, who had lived on the Haven farm since last February. This afternoon Bannon, held on a charge of embezzling property from the farm, led the officers to a refuse pile, where they found the body of an infant. Tonight, after further grilling, he took them to a barn where were uncovered four more bodies.

The bodies found tonight were those of A. E. Haven, 50; two sons, Daniel, 19, and Leland, 16, and a 3 year old child.

The officers will continue their search for the body of Mrs. Haven. Today a dog dragged into the farm a bloody sweater which was identified as having belonged to Mrs. Haven.

McKenzie county authorities said Bannon had told his attorney the father and three children had been killed by Mrs. Haven, who then had disappeared with the three months old baby. Finding of the body of the baby early in the day disproved this statement, officers said.

Bannon is alleged to have said that Mrs. Haven had beaten to death her husband and the three children with a hammer and that he, Bannon, had buried the bodies and had been paid for it by Mrs. Haven.

Youth Arrested on Charge of Christmas Racket

Joseph Cook, 25 years old, 549 West Madison street, was arrested by police yesterday on charges of working a Christmas racket on wealthy Austin women. According to police, Cook obtained orders for hosiery from housewives, receiving a down deposit. The patrons never received the goods, it is charged.

Taxi Chauffeur Flees Bandits and Is Shot

Fleeing from two men passengers whom he suspected of wanting to hold him up, Joseph Holzdak, 22 years old, of Downers Grove, a Yellow cab driver, was shot and seriously wounded by one of them near Hoyne avenue and Fulton street early this morning. A bullet, one of a barrage, struck Holzdak in the right shoulder and coursed upward in his neck to the base of the skull. He will recover, attaches at Washington Boulevard hospital said.

City Auto Licenses Will Go on Sale Monday

Notices were mailed to automobile owners yesterday by City Clerk Smith announcing that the 1931 vehicle tax licenses will be placed on sale next Monday. The notices bore a request that persons buying the tags have them riveted upon their automobiles to prevent thieves from removing them. The first consignment of the tags was received at the city hall yesterday.

ETIQUETTE HAS NO STRINGS ON UNCLE OTSIE

At 93 He Eats What He Likes and How.

BY FRED PASLEY.

As I write these lines I am in receipt of a letter from Uncle Otsie of Medicine Lodge, Kas., telling me he has just celebrated his 93d birthday, and hoping I will be as hale and hearty as he is when, and if, I attain that age. He inquires solicitously whether I am still abiding by the precepts and examples with which he supplied me in my boyhood. Dear old soul.

The letter is apropos in these premises, for my Uncle Otsie has ever been fond of the pleasures of the table and the pursuit of happiness. His favorite hour was that spent at the dinner table, which he regarded as the pleasantest of the day. He loved good food, was not averse to a mug of hard cider, rhubarb juice or elderberry wine, and doted on his after dinner smoke.

Drank Coffee from Saucer.

"There should be a law in every country prohibiting the manufacture of bad cigars," he would say. "If a man cannot afford a real cigar he should get a pipe. A cigar is a thing to reverence. A man should 'taste' a cigar; savor its aroma as he would a glass of 1847 port."

Uncle Otsie has always been a plain man of the people. He drinks his coffee from the saucer and enjoys sopping his bread in the cream gravy. His knowledge of silverware is limited to the knife, fork, and spoon. I learned the art of eating fried chicken leg from him; that is, to grip the leg firmly in both hands and sink the teeth where they will do the most good.

I reckon stylish people would call Uncle Otsie a gourmet. If so, he at least differs in one respect from an illustrious predecessor, namely, Louis XIII. It was this Louis, the reader will recall, who was wont to let the citizens of Paris assemble in the gallery of the palace dining hall to watch him at the breakfast table, when Louis would strike off the top of his main egg with one stroke of the knife. He liked them in the shell.

So did Uncle Otsie, but he handled matters differently. He would go out to the henhouse, when the notion struck him, gather a half dozen fresh eggs from the nests, insert the tip of his jackknife blade in the top of one, turn it to make a small opening, raise the egg to his lips—and presto. Yes, it was Uncle Otsie that taught me to suck eggs.

Has Favorite Soup Story.

Soup was not particularly relished by Uncle Otsie, although on formal occasions when all the relatives would foregather for a Thanksgiving or a Christmas feast, he would accede to the demands of etiquette by imbibing a bowlful. Then, too, he could relieve his mind of his favorite story. It went this way:

Man in restaurant—Waiter, your finger's in the soup!

Waiter—That's all right, sir. It ain't hot.

I first met Uncle Otsie when I was 11 years old. What is now known as a depression but was then called a panic had hit Kansas and my father's furniture and undertaking business had suffered accordingly. People had not only stopped buying; they had even stopped dying, it seemed. My parents decided to ease the economic pressure by sending me to Uncle Otsie's home for a spell. Well do I recall his greeting on my arrival:

"Son, do you smoke?"

I smoked cornsilks and grapevine, but I feared to tell him, just as I feared to tell my parents. I had been doing all my smoking behind the barn or out at the swimming hole in Shelby's cow pasture.

"No, sir," I lied.

"What! And you a man of 11 years! You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Learn to Smoke and Chew.

Uncle Otsie reached in his vest pocket and extracted the biggest, blackest cigar I ever saw.

"Here," he said, "stick this be-

WEATHER CHIEF FACTOR IN LOCAL PRICE FOR EGGS

The weather man is the egg price king of Chicagoland, says C. L. Pier of the Chicago office of the United States department of agriculture's market news service. Low price eggs of good quality are assured for the next two months if extremely cold weather does not disturb the laying tendencies of farm flocks in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Washington, and Oregon, according to Pier.

The present price on storage eggs is the cheapest in years, says Pier. Refrigerator eggs are quoted wholesale at 18 to 19 cents per dozen. Those for future delivery during the present month are quoted at 15¾ cents and up and for January delivery around 15 cents per dozen.

"It's easily a weather proposition as to how long we will have cheap eggs," he stated. "Cold weather may affect the lay of fresh eggs. Shipments have been increasing lately from the Pacific coast states and other receipts have been large enough in the last two or three weeks to reduce the wholesale price 14 to 15 cents per dozen."

O for the Life of a Milkman! It Has Variety

BY PAUL POTTER.

Did you ever try to put yourself in the shoes of a milkman, bumping along behind the clackety clacking set of horse's hoofs, along about daybreak?

There's a real job for you. Sitting there blowing your hands on a dark winter morning and counting bottles that must be safely carted to rear doorsteps, no matter if they be three stories upward. Thinking of the raspy comments you will get from housewives whose husbands left for work in a chilly grouch, the children who will get between your legs on the way up or down the back stairs, or the unwashed or cracked bottles that will be left somewhere in the back yard for you to gather up.

7,200 of Them in Chicagoland.

Yes, it's a job with rather good pay, but it has its embarrassing moments. And if you expect to feed the mouths and cloth the bodies of your own family back home, you've got to keep up a grinning face and a cheery "Good morning" through it all—or see some other more gracious or good looking driver for a competitor win your customers away.

There are some 7,200 milk drivers in the Chicago area, east of the Fox river, south of the Wisconsin line and west and north of the Indiana line and Blue Island. And they have a very effective operating union which now makes it possible for every milkman out of work to receive aid for his family.

But there are few such unemployed in these ranks, says Robert G. Fitchie, head of this organization, who himself drove a wagon fourteen years in the good old days when the Potter Palmer family was the prized customer on the north shore. Lighter loads may have been noticed in recent months, but very few routes have been abandoned.

Work in All Sorts of Weather.

There's the problem you'd have if you peddled milk in keeping the milk from freezing. Frozen milk is unharmed if the housewife would thaw it out in a deep pail of cold water or put it right into her refrigerator. But most women set such bottles near a heater, and the milkman gets the blame. So he carries a lantern, a heater, or even candles between the cases of milk, just as he carries cracked ice to ward off the July heat.

There's a young man with a sympathetic yet facetious streak of nature who works for the National Dairy council in Chicago. He recently filed his report of ten days of traveling about at the heels of all sorts of milkmen, veterans and tenderfeet and those in between. Some of Clifford Goldsmith's reactions from such an experience are here set down in the hope that some of the customers may be interested in the antics of their neighbors as only a milkman in his daily round perceives them.

"When a lady asks why you tell the underweight children next door that they need milk, and yet you tell her that milk won't make her too fat," the answer Goldsmith gives is this:

"Perhaps the best thing to do is to arrange to have your horse run away and you take after it just as fast as you can. If the horse should fail to start, the next best thing is to just gracefully fall off the porch and break your neck. On the other hand, if you do know your groceries, you can stand your ground and explain that milk builds muscle, but that muscle is not the same as fat. Tell her that milk builds firm, graceful body tissue, and that fat is the stuff from which double chins are made."

Here's an Ingenious One.

Another milkman found the glass on the door behind which the milk card hung entirely frosted over. What to do? How to leave the right order? Aha. A lighted match, then another, held close to the pane, and the mists cleared to disclose, not the usual order of two quarts, but one pint, for all that mental activity!

And then there was the driver whose customer, with two male hopefuls playing in the front room, insisted that he come in to see the little dears intent upon miniature milk wagon and horse toys bearing the gilded name of a competitor!

He might tell you, that good natured Irish milkman on the west side, of how he sells milk to the most recent of Chicago's residents, who may speak any one of four or five languages that he doesn't. He holds up a quart, then two, maybe a pint, a carton of butter, and after a reasonable length of time has determined by nods of the heads the desired morning order.

This One's a Handy Man.

Then there is the milkman calling on a sparsely settled neighborhood northwest of the city who found this note:

"P. S. When you leave the milk, please throw the paper in, let the cat out, but don't leave any milk."

Goldsmith also tells of the young fellow bent upon increasing the size of his route by sheer force of salesmanship who told his customer that his company's milk had more bacteria than any milk in town in courageous response to dubious comments on a rumor that had shaken her faith in his product.

When a lady says her children don't like to drink milk he finds it is seldom the fault of either the milk or the child. Such incidents as these are cited in proof thereof:

"Has any one in the family ever been caught taking the cream off the top of the bottle—and giving the children what's left? There are people who do that, you know, although very few of them would even think of stealing the frosting off the children's cake.

"Do any of the adults in the family every try drinking a little milk themselves? No matter how much a child's nose may run, he is very seldom as stupid as he looks. When he sees all the grownups in the family pushing milk to one side naturally he gets suspicious and does the same thing.

WAYS TO MAKE A TABLE PROVE IT'S CHRISTMAS

Hints for a Clever Hostess.

BY HELEN BARTLETT.

Silver reindeer, gray and rose penguins, turquoise trees, a scarlet fish, cocks engaged in violent battle.

Is it a weird dream? A fairy phantasy?

No, indeed, my dears. It's just a glimpse at the Alice in Wonderland assortment of accessories for the modern table.

It isn't enough in these days to set tables that are merely pretty. They must be "different." (Yes, we're tired of that word, too, but it's still the best for our purposes.) Whether you plan to have your table unique, amusing, or elegant, it must have a good dash of "differentness."

For Christmas Decoration.

The opportunities of attaining this precious quality in the Christmas table are simply tremendous.

China is grander, gayer, more decorative than it has ever been before.

Linen, while we had our watchful eyes elsewhere, has been and gone and done something startling. Perhaps it can't even be called linen any more. The very latest thing is not of linen, but of silk thread, and it's the last word in elegance. Not that damask doesn't exist any more and isn't in high favor with some of our very best people; it does and it is, but, Ooh, these new silk dinner cloths are grr-and.

Table accessories are so varied, so important, we hardly know where to begin when we tell you about them. Silver, pewter, aluminum, and even tin appear in various disguises. As for glass—well, new life has been given to the old, old art of glass blowing.

Modern Glass Ornaments.

Wouldn't one of the old masters, a Venetian blower, be confounded at the sight, say, of a crystal bird of paradise, exquisitely fashioned, with a long, flexible, satiny tail of blue spun glass? Of a whole Harlem jazz orchestra in black Venetian? Of a red blown glass fox clamping blown glass teeth on the elongated neck of a blown glass goose?

Even we moderns are amazed at the twentieth century achievements in glass. And, as I have said, all of these things are contributions to the beauty of our homes and, more particularly, of our tables.

In a Chicago store we saw recently a Christmas table that is eloquent testimony to this. The table, of the conventional refectory type, was covered with one of the new silk cloths in a delicate green, the pattern emphasized in silver. Service plates were of glass in black and silver. Goblets for water and wine—pardon us, cider—were of English crystal with twisted green stems.

Glass and Still More Glass.

About three feet from each end of the table were crystal candelabra containing two white and two green tapers. In back of each of these, closer to the edge, was a silver blown glass reindeer with graceful crystal antlers.

The center decoration, however, was the pièce de résistance. Its foundation was a three sectioned mirror plateau, the center an oblong section of the usual mirror glass, the end pieces, triangular in shape, of black glass. On each black piece stood a small acorn tree of silver glass, very modernistic. In the center slab of the plateau was a large, eight pointed silver star, set in a silver glass holder; grouped around the star were glass lilies of white and green, with an occasional leaf of black.

The green, the frosty silver, and the sparkling crystal were undeniably Christmasy, but the crowning touch was the star, symbolizing as it does so much of the spiritual grandeur of the feast of Christmas, the feeling or the motif of the star of Bethlehem.

Two clever and artistic women arranged this table; we hope we convey to you how exquisite it was.

Elaborateness Not Necessary.

But it is absurd to claim that effectiveness in table decoration cannot be obtained with fewer or less elegant aids. Experimentation and observa-

A formal table for Christmas dinner. The green and silver silk cloth is a lovely background for the black service plates, crystal goblets and candelabra, and the elaborate centerpiece in which the central object is a large, eight pointed silver star.

ZESTFUL FLAVOR OF DINNER OFTEN OWING TO CHEESE

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Know thy cheese, is my admonition to any modern housewife who would improve her culinary art. How frequently some rare tang or zestful flavor that lingers as the pleasant aftermath of a delicious dinner may be traced to the infallible judgment of the artful cook or charming hostess in the selection and preparation of this food.

For centuries cheese has been enjoyed by European lord and peasant alike, but only in recent years has the American epicure found it to be a rare delicacy rich in food values and a welcome variation to an otherwise plain diet. Perhaps the amazing selection that greets one today at the neighborhood grocery is responsible for this development. All kinds, both imported and domestic, not only have the advantages of improved dairy conditions and better pasteurization processes, but also the benefit of a prolonged curing period of from one to three years.

Famous Edam Tops List.

With due respect for our domestic varieties, I cannot but top the list of better known cheeses with the famous Edam. Perhaps it is the Dutch blood still trickling in my veins that endears this sweet milk cheese, characterized by its round shape and red rind, to me. The little town of Edam, close to the Zuyder Zee and known for its quaint brick houses, gave its name to this variety, so rich in quality and firm in texture. Housewives enjoy it for its remarkable keeping qualities and any hostess with a Dutch Edam on hand renders a buffet luncheon or a Sunday evening supper a festive occasion.

Another of the favored imported cheeses is the well known Roquefort, a delicacy of France, cured and ripened in the damp, drafty, natural caves of the town after which it is

Do These People Like What You Like for Xmas Dinner?

The Question:

"What do you want for your Christmas dinner?"

Answers.

Virginia Otley, 2418 Ballou street, high school student:

"What I look forward to is a choice old-fashioned English dinner with boar's-head and plum pudding. In addition, I desire all my beloved ones seated about the daintily set table. Harmonious service would climax a most joyful and delicious Christmas dinner."

George S. Olson, 2306 North Springfield avenue, milkman:

"To start the meal off with I would suggest eggs and anchovy as an appetizer, followed by turkey, cranberries, celery, southern style sugared sweet potatoes, creamed peas. I like plenty of whipped cream on the dessert and a cup of good coffee, topped with plenty of rich cream, while I smoke a good cigar."

Miss Kathleen Frantz, 1217 North State street, an artist:

"The old American standby of turkey is my order for Christmas dinner. There must also be old-fashioned English pudding, without which my dinner would not be complete. However, in order to enjoy the meal to the utmost, I would like to be surrounded by a score of my friends. I plan to enjoy my Christmas dinner with my family in Buffalo and am counting the days to the happy reunion."

Gerda Bondy, 2920 Commonwealth avenue, high school student:

"A good old-fashioned German dinner would delight my palate on Christmas day. On the menu would be goose, Thueringer, potato dumplings, hot apple pie, and coffee. A combination such as this, in my opinion, is a dinner de luxe for Christmas day."

Harry Barth, 2139 Melrose street, motorcycle policeman:

"Goose, and plenty of it, is my order for Christmas dinner. Sweet potatoes, celery, cranberries, and hot mincemeat pie would stack up to my delight. About two cups of coffee and a good cigar would complete the meal and put me in the best of spirits throughout the day."

Pork and Lamb Best Buys for Your Week-End Meals

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states: "Fresh pork is recommended to the housewives of Chicago as the most economical meat buy over the coming week-end. Pork chops and pork roasts are available at especially attractive prices. Lamb also continues to sell at prices which should attract."

ENGLAND FILLS FOOD BASKETS AT PRE-WAR PRICES

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The British Christmas will be pre-war this year. Food prices indicate that the market basket for the biggest dinner of the year will be filled at or about 1914 prices and in some cases even cheaper.

The housewife will find turkey and fowl of all kinds, beef, mutton, veal, pork, and lamb, flour, currants, almost all varieties of dried and preserved fruits, cheese, butter, and eggs cheaper now than for 16 years. Market levels, which probably will be raised a little due to seasonal demand, will will find $5 buying from $6.80 to $7.50 worth of food at last year's prices.

Turkeys Plentiful.

Turkey is selling at 25 cents per pound, and even though this will be increased by Christmas the birds are unusually plentiful and will remain comparatively cheap.

Beef and mutton are remarkably cheap. Prime sirloins can be bought for 36 and 40 cents per pound. Choice Scotch mutton is sold for 28 cents. Sausages have dropped to 36 cents a pound and smoked ox tongues cost the same in comparison with prices of 44 to 48 cents last year. Bacon has fallen to 28 cents, a veritable tumble when these prices are placed alongside last year's, ranging from 44 to 48 cents. Australian and New Zealand bacon is selling as low as 24 cents.

Hams are cheaper than they have been in 16 years. Finest Yorks cost only 60 cents. Since the war they have been as high as $1.

Game Plentiful, Cheap.

Poultry and game are cheap and plentiful. English pheasants are marked at $2 a brace. Two or three years ago they cost $3.75. Scotch and Norfolk hares sell for 50 cents and ducks are as low as 24 cents per pound. The usual price for a roasting chicken is 36 cents a pound and broilers are 24 cents.

Other prices which have fallen include butter, cheese, eggs, and margarine. A comparison of this year's prices of a few commodities to those of 1914 shows how the market has fallen. Prices are in pounds:

	1914.	1930.
Butter	25c	24c
Bacon	20-22c	23-27c
Margarine	12-16c	12-16c
Eggs, imported, each	2½c	2½c
Flour (7 lb.)	21c	22c
Currants	12c	10c

In some cases tropical fruits are much cheaper than before the war because improved methods of transportation have made safe shipment easier.

NEW YORK PRICE ON BUTTER IS NOW NEAR CHICAGO'S

Chicago and New York butter prices are now close together, following price reductions in New York this week. The Chicago price changed little from its quotation of 32 cents wholesale on first grade, but the Chicago bureau of the United States department of agriculture market news service announced a 2 cent drop in New York.

Previously, it was said, New York markets had been holding butter at 2 to 4 cents a pound higher than markets in Chicago, although the freight differential is only about 1½ cents.

DINNER HAILED AS BIG EVENT OF CHRISTMAS

Merchants Ready for Rush of Buyers.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Jolly old St. Nick, as king of the holiday carnival, wields a drumstick for a scepter. Half past Christmas day, tantalizing odors floating through from the kitchen and tickling the nostrils of the group around the piles of gifts will materialize into the fattest feast of the year—Christmas dinner. There that ubiquitous bird, the turkey, has his fleeting hour.

Grandly ensconsed he is, on a capacious platter, his golden toasted legs and wings and sides inviting the carving knife. Flanked on the one side by a frosty mass of mashed potatoes, the size of a small mountain, on the other by a corresponding pile of candied yams, and with a deep boat of gravy, creamy thick, in a strategic position beyond. For scenic as well as gastronomic effect in this ensemble, there is the velvet green of parsley and the deep red of cranberry sauce molds.

Other Loot Is Nearby.

Such, in general, is the typical arrangement of the defense forces before the invading army is signaled to attack. To be sure there is incidental loot in the vicinity, in the shape of bowls of toothsome dressing, crisp lengths of celery, ripe and green olives, smaller platters bearing slices of pink and tender ham, dishes of creamed peas, and plates of varicolored, translucent aspic salads or mounds of fruit on fresh green lettuce leaves.

Nobody needs a second summons to this groaning board. Bright new skates, the talking doll, the indiscriminate assortments of ties and sox, and even the frothy heap of gift lingerie are deserted, instanter. The fragrant aroma of the waiting viands is a powerful magnet. No sooner is the order to advance given than the attacking forces have surrounded the table territory, stormed the breastworks and are about the pleasant business of dispatching Tom Turk and his appetizing accessories.

Then Comes the Dessert.

Later in the proceedings, when the demolished structure that so lately was a proud and strutting fowl lies in wreckage on the platter, there will be further plunder for the pillagers. Some will elect the spicy mince pie, and others the gold and white of the lemon meringue, with cups of steaming coffee as the crowning touch. And when theinvaders finally withdraw, surfeited with Christmas spirit and the assurance of well being, the creator of the feast will have received the supreme compliment to good cookery—the yawning expanse of all but emptied plates and cups.

Even this early in the holiday season the vendors of these and similar delicacies are prepared for the rush of orders, and with a fairly accurate idea of what's going to be bought and eaten. Take the word of C. L. Pier, of the federal department of agriculture, for instance, that the probability is there will be more turkeys consumed in Chicago on Christmas than went to the sacrificial block at Thanksgiving.

Turkeys Lower in Price.

"It looks that way," he gauges the situation. "One reason is that this year turkeys are lower in price than they have been for the last few years. According to the figures of Tuesday before Thanksgiving at the New York market price they were 5 cents a pound lower than last year at the same time, 12 cents lower than in 1928, and 19 cents lower per pound below the scale for 1927. Of course, before Christmas week they may go even lower."

Confirming the same general trend is the opinion of Harrison F. Jones, secretary of the National Poultry, Butter and Egg association, on the outlook.

"At Thanksgiving time," he says, "only 40 per cent of the available crop of turkeys was marketed. More people eat turkey at Christmas than at Thanksgiving, and so we will have about 60 per cent of the crop to be disposed of on the holiday market. The quality will be excellent, since it was good at Thanksgiving time and since then the turkeys that were not quite old enough for marketing have matured and will be ready for the table. The weather in the meantime has been good, which is conducive to improving the quality of the birds, therefore the situation

FRUITS, VEGETABLES CHEAPER THAN IN '29, BUT PEOPLE BUY LESS

With fruits and vegetables averaging around 15 to 20 per cent lower in price than a year ago, the only important commodity on which prices may fluctuate very much is head lettuce, in the opinion of W. H. Hall, fruit and vegetable specialist with the United States department of agriculture in its local market news office.

Produce market men comment that households seem to be buying smaller quantities. Mr. Hall's answer is that on the whole he does not think persons in the metropolitan area are eating less than a year ago. Slightly smaller purchases probably are being made, he admits, but he feels that appetites are being satisfied as well as in other years. It is logical to suppose, he comments, that less food is being wasted.

CROWNING EVENT CHRISTMAS DAY IS THE DINNER

Merchants Ready for a Rush of Buyers.

ought to be fine for the holiday dinner."

Not only turkey, but geese, ducks, and chickens will be eaten in Chicagoland in greater quantities this year than on almost any previous occasion, the produce men say. The chief reason for the increase is the lower price, but there has also been a steady trend toward the consumption of more poultry by the public generally.

As for the other items of the Christmas banquet, the time honored institutions of cranberry sauce, mince pie, pumpkin, and oyster or some other dressing remain as popular as ever. Salads have won a place on the table somewhat more recently, and there is a difference in the desserts, which have a tendency to be considerably lighter than in former days when it was considered the thing to serve both fruit cake, mince and other types of pies to top off a heavy meal.

Of late ice cream has superseded these dishes to a large extent in many a home as being more consistent with modern ideas of diet. Ices are also liked by many as a balance to the richer foods that precede it. And there has been some restriction on the custom of providing more than one dessert.

Predict Rush of Buyers.

For the rest, the produce men anticipate the usual rush of orders on such staples as Irish and sweet potatoes, celery, green peas, head lettuce, tomatoes, cranberries, all types of fruits used in salads, apples for pies, and the customary nuts, including pecans and English walnuts as perhaps the most popular.

Housewives who to date have not taken note of the "Produce Markets" column in the financial section of THE TRIBUNE are advised that a glance at this department each morning will give them an accurate idea of what poultry, eggs, and such articles are bringing at wholesale, so that they will be able to reckon the prices they should be paying at their retailer's. A margin of profit for the retailer must naturally be allowed, and the classification of eggs, for instance, taken into consideration. Extra special candled for the retail trade must, of course, bring higher prices.

Altogether it looks considerably more like a feast than a famine this holiday season.

OLD FRIENDS WITH NOVEL FLAVORS BRIGHTEN XMAS

It's an excellent cuisine that can stand the test of continued repetition without variety. Practically everybody relishes a new flavor and a new twist of an old recipe now and then. One of the old standbys of the housewife's Christmas routine is the turkey or goose dressing for the holiday meals.

In place of the customary sage or oyster dressing why not try something new this year? Because the birds themselves are different and require varied kinds of dressing to suit the consistency of their meat it is not always the best plan to try and use a turkey stuffing for a goose, or vice versa. Herewith are proffered two recipes which take into consideration the dryness of the turkey and the usual fat condition of a goose.

Mushroom Stuffing for Turkey.

¼ cup finely chopped mushrooms fried in butter.
Few drops onion juice.
1 cup stale bread crumbs.
¾ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon celery salt.
⅛ teaspoon pepper.
Few grains cayenne.
Few grains nutmeg.
½ tablespoon chopped parsley.
½ teaspoon chopped chives.
2 tablespoons melted butter.
⅛ cup stock or water.

Combine ingredients and mix thoroughly. Stuff into turkey.

Potato Stuffing for Goose.

1 cup hot riced potatoes.
¾ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
¼ teaspoon marjoram or summer savory.
1 tablespoon butter.
¼ cup soft, stale bread crumbs soaked in water and wrung in cheesecloth.
1 egg yolk.
Few drops onion juice.

Combine ingredients and blend thoroughly. Stuff goose.

APPLE PIE

6 medium apples.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 level teaspoon powdered cinnamon.
¾ cup sugar.
1 tablespoon flour.

Peel, core and slice tart cooking apples. Sift together the salt, cinnamon, sugar, and flour. Toss apples in seasoning. Fill lower crust and dot over top with bits of butter. Place upper crust, pinch edges, bind with wet muslin strip and bake in a moderate oven for nearly 1 hour. Yield: One pie.

PECAN PUMPKIN PIE

Plain pastry.
1 cup chopped pecan meats.
4 tablespoons melted butter.
3 eggs.
½ cup molasses.
½ cup brown sugar.
½ teaspoon ground ginger.
½ teaspoon ground allspice.
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon.
1 cup milk.
1½ cups pumpkin [cooked dry and well mashed].

Line the bottom of a pie tin with good short pie crust. Sprinkle half of the pecan meats over the pie crust.

Sprinkle melted butter over them. Beat eggs, molasses, and sugar well together for at least 5 minutes. Mix spices in a little of the milk so that there will be no lumps and then add the balance of the milk and spices to the mixture of eggs, sugar, and molasses. Place mashed pumpkin in clean mixing bowl and gradually work the liquid mixture into the pumpkin. Place the pie tin with crust in bottom of oven and dip pumpkin pie mixture into it until within ¼ of an inch from the top. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for 15 minutes, then reduce temperature to a slow oven [250 degrees F.]. It usually takes about 45 to 50 minutes. When pie is half set, sprinkle balance of pecan meats over the top and finish baking.

Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 595 calories; protein, 40 calories; fat, 343 calories; carbohydrates, 212 calories.

ZESTFUL FLAVOR OF DINNER OFTEN OWING TO CHEESE

Its Selection a Test of Cook's Judgment.

named. The blue veins distinguishing it mean that it is ripened with mold inside, and, strange as it may seem, this mold, developed by the addition of crumbs from specially prepared bread, imparts an inimitable and delightful flavor. Many is the chef who makes use of this cheese to give zest to salad dressings, but usually it is served as a delicacy at the close of dinner.

The English Stilton and Italian Gorgonzola must be grouped with the blue veined Roquefort. To the air in the caves near Stilton, England, where it is cured, the Stilton cheese owes its piquant flavor. European connoisseurs of food advise us that it should never be tasted under two years of age. Gorgonzola, recognized always by its protective coat of tallow, was first produced near Milan, Italy.

Romano Zestful Cheese.

Another Italian cheese, popular both here and abroad, is the hard, dry, and zestful Romano made from goats' milk. Macaroni or spaghetti, properly prepared, is incomplete without it. Quite in contrast is the mild, finely flavored Swiss Gruyere, found in every first class grocery or delicatessen. Put up in small, round packages, it may be purchased in individual portions or in one solid piece. The careful process of curing makes it particularly appropriate for the final course of any dinner.

Among our own cheeses the American Cheddar or "store" cheese is the most familiar if not the oldest variety. Any shade from a bright orange to a creamy white, its rich smoothness and soft texture carry a mild and slightly acid flavor. Often it is used for a main luncheon dish, such as a souffle or fondue. For dinner Cheddar cheese is frequently combined for food value and flavoring with macaroni, spaghetti, rice, potatoes, and vegetables to form au gratin dishes. It also has come into common use in quick breads, such as muffins, waffles, and griddle cakes.

Served with whole wheat or rye crackers, Swiss cheese, frequently termed "the rich man's delicacy and the poor man's food," gives complete satisfaction. Large, uniform "eyes" stamp Swiss of good quality, while too many or irregularly shaped holes indicate improper handling of the milk.

Uncle Otsie Doesn't Bother About Rules of Etiquette

tween your teeth. Know how to light a match? Well, I never! Raise your right leg like that. So. Now scratch."

I don't remember much about that first cigar. I remember lighting it, and maybe a couple of puffs. However within two weeks I was enjoying my after dinner smokes as much as Uncle Otsie. About this time he initiated me further.

"Ever chew tobacco?" he queried one day.

"No, sir," I said, which was the truth.

"Well, I never," replied Uncle Otsie, pulling a 10 cent plug from his hip pocket and slicing off a piece as big as your thumb with his jackknife. "Put this in your jaw. You'll spit tol'ably at first. All beginners do. When you grow up like me you'll learn to be polite and be a dry chewer. There ain't nothing so comforting as a cud of plug cut, especially when a man's nerves need steadyin'."

After that Uncle Otsie and I got along famously. I had hoped that in his letter he would give me his recipe for longevity, but he didn't. However, as I am familiar with some of his habits I can mention them for those of my readers who may desire to advantage themselves of his methods.

Had Accurate Aims.

Uncle Otsie never walked when he could ride. He never stood up when he could sit down. If he only wished to go around the corner to the grocery he would have one of the boys hitch up the horse and buggy. His hobby was whittling. He was the best whittler in Media. I have known him to whittle for six hours at a stretch in front of Race's general merchandise store. I have said he was a dry chewer, but when he was in the humor he could outspit any of his fellow whittlers. There was a knothole in the board walk about 10 feet from the bench where they sat, and it was deemed as much a feat to hit it as making the hole in one club by our local golfers. Uncle Otsie never missed.

Actions Speak for Themselves.

I loved my dad, but I adored Uncle Otsie. He never encumbered me with gratuitous advice. He was the sort of fellow who believed in letting his actions speak for themselves. Really, I think the only admonition I ever received from him was:

"Never smoke more than one cigar—at a time."

He had culled it from Mark Twain, I later learned. Mark Twain, Bobbie Burns, and Sears-Roebuck were the only authors he ever read seriously. Bobbie Burns he could quote by the page. His affection for Burns was a passion and the explanation is that he himself was born in Paisley, Scotland.

In his 93d year, and his boast is that he's never had but one doctor bill, $1.25 for a vaccination—and it didn't take.

HOUSEWIVES GIVE HELPFUL HINTS

If you have a household hint or unique discovery you are willing to pass on to other housewives, send it to Sally Lunn, Chicago Tribune. Recipes are excluded.

In roasting a fowl I find in putting it in the pan breast down the breast will get the benefit of the basting and will be moist. By the old method the back gets the benefit of the basting. It will not lie perfectly flat, but will brown all the same and will be more moist. M. B. T., Chicago.

The chemical paradichlorobenzene has a long name, but it makes short work of clothes moths, says Dr. Grace Griswold of the New York State College of Agriculture after experiments to find an effective moth preventive. It kills moths, eggs, and larvæ when confined in a chest or trunk, and acts as a mild repellant in open closets. Other advantages of the chemical, which is common to fruit growers and is used to kill peach borers, is that it is cheap and has a mild odor compared with mothballs.

Those who dislike the taste of cod liver oil will find that a tiny pinch of salt after a dose will cut and entirely clear that disagreeable taste. V. G., Chicago.

Place a warm flatiron on the obstinate cover of the fruit jar for a minute and see how easily it will unscrew. M. K., Chicago.

THRESHING TIME GALA EVENT FOR IOWA HOUSEWIFE

Desire to Sate Crew of 20 Called for Work.

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

Old Tade Bloomster never had heard of the women and children first idea. Ocean liners don't sink on the prairies of Iowa and there never was a theater fire in Oskaloosa county. Old Tade was a thresherman, and he liked a thresherman's dinner every day in season. At exactly 12 o'clock, he pulled a shrill blast out of his Advance-Rumely, tossed aside his long spout oil can, vaulted a fence or two and was at the kitchen door before another man could slide off the straw-pile. He was first to the board and stayed through successive tables until all were fed.

Throughout the whole affair from his first jackknife load of mashed potatoes to picking the barley beards out of his ear, a quaint after-pie custom, Tade was the complete and perfect answer to "What's wrong with this picture?"

Old Tade Preferred.

The countryside, even in those prewar days, was filled with threshermen, but old Tade was preferred by farmers because he threshed for the love of threshing. He gave a fuller measure and yet charged the same three cents per bushel. He conceived of threshing as an art compounded of oil, grease, dirt, dust, chaff, straw, coal, fire, grain, sweat, and noise for ten or eleven hours each day, with allotted interludes for eating.

Tade's fame as a thresher and diner soon spread over four or five townships, and no woman could afford to have it said that Tade did not fall upon her dinner with gusto. Perhaps it is not putting it too strong to say that Tade set the standards of threshing dinners in the southeast corner of the county for a decade.

Ordeals for Housewife.

Those dinners were ordeals for the housewife and her daughters and neighbors called in to assist. There were more than 20 men to feed. Your own children and neighbors' were forever underfoot; relatives from the county seat and possibly the banker and wife dropped out for a couple of squares. Threshing is hard work, breeds good appetites, but no man ever drives home aboard a hayrack at night after threshing saying that he has not been sated if the housewife has any pride.

Accordingly, Old Tade was likely to lead his crew through something like this: A well browned roast beef [25 pounds] with mashed potatoes and gravy—the potatoes beaten to a snowy fluff that melted. You wonder why a farmer puts in a half acre of potatoes? Here is at least one reason. Fried ham there usually was, too, summer sausage, dried beef—perhaps another meat or two, and fish.

Try Not to Soil Tablecloth.

Twenty men at a table laid to. Most of them kept an eye out to soiling the tablecloth as little as possible. Old Tade, however, frankly asked for a strip of oilcloth for the yard between his elbows. During the early part of the meal Ted hunched over the table after the manner of a flivver driver over the wheel 15 years ago.

Later when he got around to the vegetables—creamed fresh peas, corn on the cob, sliced cucumbers, and his second round of meat and potatoes—he straightened up enough to accept a helping from the missus and to take part in the conversation, and to scan the groaning table from end to end for later prospects.

The conversation usually started out with a consideration of the weather, the yield per acre, the increasing cost of coal, but eventually got around to kidding the outstanding characters of the community. A chap named Swartz, but who was called Stromberg because he spent his Sundays tinkering with carburetors, came in for his share. Bill O'Brien, it was pointed out almost daily, headed for the straw pile because he was always too inebriated to do anything but roll around.

More Eating to Be Done.

Memory lapses, but there is much more eating to be done. If only Old Tade were available today for consultation. Cole slaw was always relied on as a filler. Of course, there were pickles—beets, watermelon, pears and peaches. Red beet pickles—ah, those were pickles, too. Jellies, plum, apple, and blackberry. Jam—strawberry, gooseberry. If you have not had them all you have not lived life to the full.

But even as thresher men we must press on swiftly through the dinner. Coffee by the bucketful, of course. Then came sauces and cake—white layer cake with chocolate frosting, marble cake, apple cake, others, perhaps, plenty of them. And pie. What pie! Apple pie, lemon meringue, and ground cherry pie, the fairest and finest of them all. Iowa claims poets as its own. If so, why, O why, have none of them written of ground cherry pie? But, like puddings, the proof is in the eating.

There is a postscript: The threshing dinners of old are no more. In the wake of the war came tractors. Nowadays every other farmer has one. They are smaller, less expensive, but will suffice for threshing if a smaller separator is used. A half dozen farmers join hands and do their own threshing. A miniature crew can handle the job.

What Can You Do with Grape Juice?

Grape juice can be used in the preparation of desserts.
It can be used in many ways as a beverage.
It can be used in salads.
What other uses have you discovered for grape juice?

For the best list of ideas for other uses of grape juice, as judged by Meta Given, Tribune Food Editor, the Tribune will pay $10.00. Next three awards, $5.00 each. Winners will be selected from lists received in the Tribune office before 6 p. m. on Wednesday, December 17th, 1930. Address "Grape Juice Ideas," Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

WAYS TO MAKE A TABLE PROVE IT'S CHRISTMAS

Hints for a Clever Hostess.

tion of what the shops have to offer will convince you that this is not the case.

Garlands of holly or mistletoe and candles on a white cloth make beautiful decorations in themselves. Garlands can be made by tying small pieces of holly together daisy chain fashion. Or you can get strands of holly from a florist in the exact length for your table. Two garlands long enough to hang down about twelve inches over the ends and placed straight down the table length, about twelve inches apart, with low candlesticks set at equal intervals in the center, are extremely effective. The candlesticks should be alike, of course, and they need not be expensive. Green glass ones, with tall red candles, would be quite successful.

A Snow Scene at Table.

Salt, sprinkled with artificial snow, will make an appropriate background on your table for any grouping of glass figures, miniature Christmas trees, or perhaps a small crèche such as the Italian fancy. The small wooden figures are easily obtained, and these set in the snow scene with one tall candle, the whole group outlined in holly or smilax, are particularly effective. In some homes a crèche is a substitute for a Christmas tree; in others it occupies a prominent place on the table or somewhere in the dining room.

Another decorative scheme that might be carried out quite inexpensively consists merely of a mirror plateau heaped with colorful Christmas tree balls, red and green candles, and the Christmas balls used also as place cards, one at each cover, with a silver card attached. The name can be written in green or red ink.

There are hundreds of variations of the Christmas motif for your table. Experiment and see. Don't have a banal party or a banal table. Get in step with the modern trend and capture the spirit of the day at your own dinner table.

WINNERS OF PRIZES IN "PRODUCT USE" (BRAN IDEA) CONTEST

Three Prizes of $5 Each.

Ida Kirschten, 1011 North Wells street, Chicago.

Mrs. M. J. Scott, 9326 South 53d court, Oak Lawn, Ill.

Edna Gray, 701 East Washington street, Bloomington, Ill.

XMAS DINNER, TO BE COMPLETE, NEEDS A DESSERT

Some Good Ones Here, and Not Too Heavy.

Not nearly so many Christmas tables as formerly will boast the plum pudding that comprised a rite at the important meal in other days. Due to certain restrictions which have robbed the dish of much of its attractiveness, and newer ideas of what is salutary in the way of foods, especially for children, both the plum pudding and the rich fruit cake are often among the missing. Even the mince pie, which has been known to inspire disturbing dreams during the early morning hours, is being frowned upon for the younger generation by dieticians.

It is only fitting and proper, therefore, that a few suggestions be made to the culinary department of the household, for certain well recommended desserts which in addition to being easy of preparation, are tasty and of the proper consistency either for the child or the adult.

Try some of these this Christmas season.

Mont Blanc.

Shell 3 cups French chestnuts, cover with boiling salted water and cook gently 15 to 20 minutes. Mash chestnuts, sweeten to taste with powdered sugar and moisten with hot milk; cook 2 minutes. Rub through strainer, cool, flavor with vanilla or maraschino. Pile in form of pyramid, cover with whipped cream and garnish base with whipped cream forced through pastry bag and tube.

ORANGE MILK SHERBET.

1½ to 2 cups evaporated milk.
[2 cups make a mild flavored sherbet].
2 cups sugar.
Few grains salt.
1 cup water.
2 cups orange juice.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Pour evaporated milk into ice cream can and chill in refrigerator or a pan of chopped ice. Boil sugar, salt, and water until there are 2 cups of sirup. Add orange and lemon juice and chill. Pour orange mixture into the milk. Freeze.

ORANGE ICE.

4 cups water.
Grated rind of 2 oranges.
2 cups sugar.
2 cups orange juice.
½ cup lemon juice.

Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Add fruit juice and rind. Cool, strain and freeze in ice cream freezer.

LEMON CREAM SHERBET.

1½ cups sugar.
¾ cup lemon juice.
3 cups milk.
½ pint cream.
Few grains salt.

Mix sugar, lemon juice, and salt and add gradually to milk and cream. Freeze in ice cream freezer.

RASPBERRY ICE.

4 cups water.
1 2-3 cups sugar.
2 cups raspberry juice.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Boil sugar and water 5 minutes, cool, add raspberries mashed and squeezed through double cheesecloth and lemon juice. Strain and freeze.

Ice Cream Pies.

Fill pastry shells with ice cream. Cover with meringue, set on board covered with paper and brown in hot oven [500 degrees Fahrenheit]. Serve immediately.

Flowering Ice Cream.

Line 2½ inch flower pots with paraffin paper. Fill with ice cream, cover cream with grated vanilla chocolate to represent earth and insert a flower in each. Use tiny poinsettas or sprigs of holly for these flowers.

MACEDOINE OF FRUIT.

3 tablespoons granulated gelatin.
¼ cup cold water.
1 cup boiling water.
1¼ cups sugar.
1¼ cups peach sirup.
½ cup orange juice.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
Few grains salt.
Canned peaches.
Stewed prunes.
Blanched almonds.
Glaced cherries.

Soak gelatin in cold water, dissolve in boiling water and add sugar, fruit juices, and salt. Brush over inside of a large fancy mold with olive oil, then wipe out with a piece of tissue paper. Put mold in pan of ice water and pour in just enough of mixture to cover top ornamentations. To remaining jelly mixture add peaches and prunes which have been cut in pieces and almonds and cherries. Fill mold with mixture and chill. Remove to serving dish.

PRIZE WINNERS, 'FOOD POETS' CONTEST

[Friday, Nov. 28.]

Five Prizes of $5 Each.

Mrs. Alice Westbrook, 3638 Lexington street, Chicago.

Mrs. Rudolph Groninger, 925 South 38th street, Apartment 12, West Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Caroline Biddle, Battle Ground, Ind.

Mildred I. Olson, 6928 Stewart avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Mary Brozovic, 731 West 16th street, Chicago.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When the inside of a bottle has become stained or the dirt and dust has settled too firmly to be removed by soap and water alone, fill half the bottle with water and rice. Then shake vigorously until the glass is clear and sparkling. Coarse sand will be just as effective. C. M., Chicago.

Correct Weight?

"Weight and health go hand in hand"

says Mrs. Everett J. Lyon
221 E. Superior St., Chicago

"As a trained nurse and a housewife I know that health comes first. Healthy people are neither overweight nor underweight. They are seldom nervous and tired. Welch's keeps me fit to meet the longest, hardest day."

Frances Lyon (Registered Nurse)

PUREST fruit in its most convenient form. That is Welch's. Quick energy and vitalizing health elements* that keep the system at maximum physical efficiency.

Small wonder that people who make a twice daily habit of Welch's . . . nature's tonic food mildly laxative and non-fattening . . . do not worry about their weight. For experience proves that correct weight is the surest index of normal functional activities.

And the Welch way to positive results is so easy. A glass at breakfast. Again a glass at dinner in the evening. Do this every day throughout the year. Radiant health soon shows in rosy complexion, sparkling eyes and supple figure.

Because Welch's is the concentrated goodness of Concord grapes, many people prefer to dilute it with one-third to one-half water. Thus the cost is less than any other form of fruit diet.

Give the children their daily fruit in the form of Welch's. They adore its delicious flavor and get the necessary liquids for growing bodies. The abundant mineral salts, neutralizing acids and fruit proteins, make rich blood and strong white teeth.

The best plan is to keep a supply of Welch's in the pantry . . . always. Then you are protected against any interruption to nature's surest means of health insurance for the entire family.

Insist on pasteurized grape juice as processed by Welch's.

HOME DIPPED SWEETS MAKE A PERFECT GIFT

Afford Fascinating Work on an Afternoon.

BY META GIVEN.

At this time of the year it is not uncommon to see in the windows of drug or candy stores some one demonstrating the dipping of fruit or nuts. Either chocolate or fondant is used. It is fascinating to watch the process and I doubt if there was ever an interested observer who didn't wish he, too, could do it.

For the skillful dipper it is not a difficult task and it is easy, providing one knows just a few things about the dipping medium and how to control it, whether it is chocolate or fondant. And once one has learned how and has had a little practice one may quickly turn out sweet meats that make beautiful gifts.

The first requisites are a double boiler, a wire candy dipper [a two tined fork will do] and the right kind of chocolate. Ordinary chocolate used in cooking will not do. "Milk," "vanilla" and "bitter" dipping chocolate, obtainable from special confectioners or grocers, is prepared especially for the purpose of dipping. A blend of "bitter" and "milk" chocolate makes a fine coating for carmels, while "milk" and "vanilla" is excellent for fruit centers and puddings.

Melt Chocolate Slowly.

Fill the lower part of a double boiler with luke warm water [110 to 115 degrees F.]. Set into this the upper part containing the chocolate cut into fine pieces. Never set the boiler over the flame. [When chocolate is overheated, the fat rises and separates out causing light streaks which ruin the chocolate.] Chocolate should be melted slowly, stirring often. Keep the temperature constant by changing the water frequently, using a thermometer to check this temperature. Use at least one pound of chocolate or more if possible; the larger the quantity, the longer the temperature will remain just right for dipping. Allow plenty of time; it requires an hour or so to melt a pound of chocolate.

Chocolate should never come in contact with steam or water because even a trace of moisture spoils it. When chocolate melts, stir vigorously to distribute the fat thoroughly and to make it perfectly smooth. Shape candy centers while chocolate is melting. The thin crust which forms makes dipping easier.

Dipping may be done from the upper part of the double boiler, but such an arrangement is awkward for removing bon bons. A more convenient way is to pour a cupful into a small bowl or on a marble slab. Work back and forth with the fingers until chocolate feels cool [85 to 90 degrees F.]. Allow chocolate to string from the hand into the platter. If it leaves for a time a ruffly appearance on the surface as if so much narrow string had fallen from the hand it is ready for dipping.

Dipping may be done with the fingers, a fork, or a regular candy dipper. The amateur usually prefers the dipper and there is nothing better than the simple wire loop ones. Place centers in the chocolate one at a time. Roll around gently but quickly with the dipper until well covered. Slip the dipper under the center so that the bottom of the center is on top. Scrape off excess chocolate on the edge of the bowl. Drop right side up on oiled paper. As the candy drops from the dipper, twist the thread of chocolate clinging to the dipper to make a swirl across the top.

Coat Hardens Immediately.

The coating should harden immediately after the swirl is formed. If the design does not remain distinct the chocolate is too warm. If it breaks or the piece coats rough the chocolate is too cold. After dipping each piece work the chocolate vigorously to keep the consistency uniform.

Chocolate that becomes too cold may be remelted in the double boiler. This should be done as slowly and as carefully as at first.

The room in which the dipping is done should not be below 58 degrees F. and not higher than 68 degrees F. In summer dipped candy may be placed in a dry refrigerator for a few minutes to harden, but never next to the ice or in a damp place because sweating spoils chocolate.

The mechanics of dipping nuts, fruit or candy centers in fondant are exactly like those of dipping with chocolate. The melting of the fondant, however, is a little different. Fondant may be broken or cut into small pieces before it is put into the pan but it should never be stirred. Turn it over gently a few times to speed up the melting. Actual stirring during melting causes the sugar crystals to grow and the texture to become coarse. Like chocolate, fondant should be melted over warm water but the water may be warmer—as warm as 160 to 175 degrees F. As soon as the fondant has hardened store the candy in a cool, dry place.

BANANA PIE.

Plain pastry.
3½ tablespoons flour.
¼ cup sugar.
2 medium sized eggs.
1 1-3 cup milk.
½ teaspoon vanilla.
2 medium sized bananas.

Bake a pie shell on the outside of a pie tin. Prepare the filling in the following way: Blend the flour and sugar until smooth. Beat three egg yolks and one egg white [the other two egg whites should be set aside for the meringue]. Heat the milk in the top of a double boiler to the scalding point. Stir about ¼ of the milk into the sugar-flour mixture. Beat until smooth. Then add the beaten egg yolks and 1 egg white and mix well. Add the rest of the milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook the mixture in the double boiler for about 15 minutes. Stir constantly until it thickens. Then cover double boiler and cook about 5 minutes longer. Slice bananas over the crust and pour the filling on top of them. Beat the two egg whites until almost stiff, add 2 tablespoons sugar and whip stiff. Spread on top of pie. Brown in a slow oven [300 degrees F.] for 15 minutes. Cool before serving.

Yield: One pie [6 servings]. One serving: Total, 324 calories; protein, 31 calories; fat, 97 calories; carbohydrates, 196 calories.

GRAPES IN LEMON ASPIC.

1 package lemon gelatin.
1 pint boiling water.
1 pint white grapes.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cool. When it begins to congeal, add the grapes which have been cut in half and seeded.

Yield: Five servings. One serving: Total, 132 calories; protein, 11 calories; fat, 9 calories; carbohydrates, 112 calories.

HOUSEWIVES! What recipe do you like best of all? Of all the dishes you've ever tasted or prepared, which one is your favorite?

Write it down and send it to the Chicago Tribune!

Again the Chicago Tribune offers another Favorite Recipes competition. For the best recipes submitted in accordance with a few simple rules the Tribune will pay $200 in cash prizes.

You can send in any kind of recipe you wish. It can be for a vegetable dish, a meat dish, a cheese dish, or one calling for fish or fowl. Perhaps you have your own special way of preparing coffee or tea or cocoa or other beverage. Or perhaps you have a favorite recipe for making candy or preserves or soups or pickles. Send it in! Any kind of recipe for anything to eat is eligible to receive an award.

Just Follow These Simple Rules:

1. For the best recipes submitted in accordance with these rules, the Chicago Tribune will pay $200.00 in cash prizes. First prize, $50.00; second prize, $25.00; third prize, $15.00; fourth prize, $10.00; fifth prize, $5.00; next 95 prizes, $1.00 each.

2. This offer is open to everyone—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just send in a recipe.

3. Each recipe must be accompanied by a note telling in 50 words or less why you like the recipe you send.

4. You need not purchase the Chicago Tribune. The Tribune may be examined at the Tribune office or at public libraries free of charge. You may write down your recipe on the handy blank provided here or you may write it down on a separate sheet of paper.

5. Meta Given has been appointed judge and contestants agree to accept her decision as final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants.

6. Address all entries to "FAVORITE RECIPES NO. 3," the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1720, Chicago, Ill.

7. All entries must be received in the Tribune office before 6:00 p. m. on Wednesday, December 17, 1930. No entries will be returned.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Lattai, in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Marya Selm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, stating that she dare not come. Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince they must enter the country in stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed by foot. A peasant, named Jumeu, whom they befriend, leads them over the border by a secret path under a waterfall. They reach the house of Marya, unseen, and learn from her that she sent no message and that she plans to drive to Austria that night. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them within the prince's dominion, they are preparing to flee with Marya, when the prince arrives. The men hold the prince and his servants at point of gun and escape in the royal car. They find the border so closely guarded that hope of crossing is abandoned. Chandos remembers Ramon, who lives in the near by town of Gola. They seek him for aid. He agrees to hide Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Hanbury join a traveling circus, where they feel fairly safe from discovery. They are planning to desert the circus and return to Gola, when Carol reaches them with a car to take them to Bariche, across the border, where he says Marya is waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Bariche, they receive another message from Marya, stating that she is to be pardoned, one condition being that she does not leave Reichtenburg, and another that she does not communicate with them, and that they must never enter the country again. They realize that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made an arrangement with Grieg, to which they could never consent. They return to the farm where they left the car with Rowley. Bell is sent back to give news to Leonie. They attempt to cross the border at a different point. Hanbury pass the guards, but Chandos is apprehended.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

A GAME OF WITS.

Now as is sometimes the way, the blow having fallen, I instantly felt more at ease and was able to think more clearly and measure what chances I had.

The discovery of my pistol plainly convinced my captors that I was one of the culprits whose arrest was so earnestly desired, for they could not hide the excitement and they held, one to each of my arms, as though I had mastered the trick of slipping out of my skin, I, therefore, took care to continue to stand very still, and, after arranging with the sentries to bear their fellow a hand, they turned me about, and we started toward the old town.

I cannot blame them for fearing that I should try to escape, for I fully intended to do so before they could lodge me in jail. For the moment I could do nothing because of the throng, but I said in my heart that once we had passed off the bridge the crowd would diminish and leave me a clear enough field.

Here I was sorely mistaken.

I can only suppose that the vigilance shown by the police for the last three days had aroused such an interest as Sallust had seldom known and that, now that an arrest had been made, every one that was not abed came running to see the victim. What was far worse, they were not content to stand and watch me go by, but must move the way I was going and so form a curious escort through which no prisoner could break.

Indeed, I soon saw that it was hopeless, for George and Rowley could never have won to my side, and when by the light of some lamp I caught sight of the former's face, I made haste to shake my head as though to forbid an endeavor which could not succeed.

We passed up a long, steep alley and turned to the left, the crowd all the time increasing and seeming to bear us along, and plainly proposing to see me into the jail.

Again we turned to enter a very old street, where the houses seemed to be topless and the yellow burning lamps to shed more shadows than light. Then a large, hollow metal body fell suddenly out of the air and into the press of people directly ahead.

I cannot describe the confusion the incident caused.

The street being dark no one had seen the ponderous missile in flight, but the noise which it made on the cobbles and the yells of pain and dismay from such as had embarrassed its fall declared some misadventure of an unusual sort. Eager to sift the mystery those behind pressed forward and those in front turned back, while those that were hurt and their neighbors fought and clamored to leave the danger point.

It follows that my captors and I were very soon jammed in the press, for although they demanded way, they might as well have addressed the waves of the sea.

So we heaved and swayed and shouted while two good minutes went by. Then I saw the flash of a torch approaching the scene and three more police came bustling to seal my doom.

They had come, of course, to see what the outcry might be, but as soon as they learned what manner of prisoner I was they made a way for their fellows and the five of them carried me off.

The station stood in a square a little way off and before five more minutes had passed I was hauled up a flight of bread steps and into a low pitched hall, where two or three police were standing about a small fire of logs. From there I was led to a room in which an inspector sat, and to him the police that had seized me told their tale. Then I was questioned, but stuck to what I had said, and after two jailers had searched me they thrust me into a cell.

I was presently given some supper of which I was very glad, for though we had eaten at Bariche, that meal had been hasty and broken and our drive through the cool night air had served to sharpen a hunger that had been but half appeased; and when my supper was done I made bold to smoke, for, though they had turned out my pockets, the jailers had taken nothing but the map.

I sat down on my stool and waited, but not for long.

Almost at once the jailers came to fetch me, and thirty seconds later I was back in the inspector's room.

As I had expected there stood two plain clothes men, one of whom I judged a sergeant, both of whom looked civil, but very grave. A little apart stood the police that had made my arrest. Two more uniformed police were standing against the wall, and behind a rude deal table the inspector sat back in his chair.

There was a moment's silence; some excitement that I could not interpret was in the air; the local police were gazing at the detectives, and the latter were speaking together below their breath.

The inspector leaned suddenly forward.

"We are right?" he said. "It—it is he?"

The detective sergeant nodded.

"Yes," he said. "It is he."

An audible sigh of relief ran round the room and the stir that always follows the lifting of some suspense made itself heard.

A moment later the inspector was repeating the report which my captors had made.

Before he had got very far the detective sergeant frowned.

"'Coming into the country?'" he said. "You mean 'going out.'"

At once the police that had found me insisted that I had come in, to the plain contempt of the detectives, who flatly refused to allow that I had not been in the act of leaving the land. Such confident disbelief was most provoking, and I was not surprised when my captors began to bridle and give back scorn for scorn.

Now whilst they disputed I thought—and that very hard.

Our suspicion of Grieg's misconduct was fully confirmed. No one but he and his chauffeurs had any idea that we had been driven to Bariche six hours before.

It occurred to me that I held one very good card, and since I had had my fill of losing chances I decided to wait no longer, but play it forthwith.

"Gentlemen," said I, looking round. "I have a statement to make. I think it will be of interest to every one here. But before I do so be good enough to give me a chair. I am tired of standing, and I think I have a right to sit down."

From behind his table the sturdy inspector stared.

"What right?" he said, frowning.

"This," said I, "I am Richard Chandos, husband of the Grand Duchess Leonie."

The inspector laughed.

"Aha," said he. "I have been waiting for that. We were told you would probably dare to take that name."

"So I was christened," I said. "But we will not argue the point. His royal highness may well deny me. If the Baron Sully were here——"

The man started out of his seat and his four subordinates gazed at me open mouthed.

At length:

"Is this true?" said the inspector weakly.

"Yes," said the senior detective. "It is perfectly true."

The inspector took a deep breath.

"I should have been told," he said shakily. "How could I know?" He turned on the gaping constables. "Fetch his lordship a chair, you fools. You heard what he said."

A chair was hurriedly brought and I sat myself down.

Good Morning!

There is a quiet charm and beauty about this production that is entirely at variance with the crudely suggestive title. Title aside, the picture is one that lovers of good movies and good music will want to see.

It marks the debut of Grace Moore, Metropolitan opera soprano, in a story suggested by the career of Jenny Lind, fondly and enthusiastically dubbed "The Swedish Nightingale." The tale has its dull moments, but is in the main beguiling and human, warmly lighted throughout by the rich performance of Miss Moore, who is a distinct and arresting personality with a lovely voice that registers perfectly. You hear her in an aria from "Norma," selections from "Daughter of the Regiment" and a song, supposedly written for her by the young composer who loves her so madly in the picture.

Miss Moore has an able supporting cast, headed by Reginald Denny, who will give you the surprise of your lives. The stalwart comedian with the delightful English accent plays a straight dramatic rôle with power, taste and feeling. Direction is on the whole sympathetic and intuitive, and period sets and costumes are charming. The photography doesn't stand up as it should, but, all in all, "A Lady's Morals" is decidedly worth seeing.

The story starts in Sweden, where Jenny Lind meets in an inn a young composer who has been daft over her for years. He continues to adore her with varying results to the end of the film, which carries you to Castle Garden, New York, whither the "Nightingale" has been brought by P. T. Barnum.

This placid production has several flashes of comedy and one real good "punch." Re the latter, see the episode in the Italian opera-house where Jenny Lind has a nervous breakdown on the stage and the performance is finished by her triumphant rival, Rosatti, who, earlier in the evening, has added her flick to the already raw and quivering nerves of the "Nightingale."

See you tomorrow.

Fox Western Chain Strives to Purchase Six Publix Theaters

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Negotiations for the purchase of six west coast theaters of the Publix chain by Fox West Coast theaters are being held in New York.

The theaters include three in San Francisco, two in Portland, and one in Seattle.

Fox West Coast theaters acted as an operating agent for the Publix chain in handling their west coast properties several years ago, but on protest from the department of justice the arrangement was discontinued. For the last three or four years the theaters have been operated by Publix itself.

A. M. Botsford of Publix said today he might have a definite announcement tomorrow.

Fox Films and Publix recently concluded an agreement by which the Publix chain will use Fox films in its 1,031 theaters.

Chicago Woman's Aid Plans Breakfast for the Deaf

The Chicago Woman's Aid will give a breakfast for hard of hearing at 11:45 o'clock today in the clubrooms in the Medical and Dental Arts building. The clubrooms have been equipped with one hundred head sets to be used by members and guests suffering from impaired hearing. The speakers this morning will be Dr. Revillo Fuller, president of the League for the Hard of Hearing, who will tell of the league's work; Miss Gertrude Torrey, who will talk on "Lip Reading."

Business Girls Are Told How to Train Husbands

N. U. Prof. Offers Them 10 New Commandments.

A husband who will not let his wife audit his personal financial accounts is likely to be a poor sort of husband, not the kind for a business woman to pick. That was the advice, based on the first of ten marriage commandments for business women, given before the Lydian club of the Northwestern university school of commerce yesterday by Dr. Edward L. Cornell of that university's medical school.

Dr. Cornell's ten commandments are:

1. He should allow you to audit his finances.
2. He should be healthy enough to swim 25 yards in 30 seconds.
3. He should be willing to rear children.
4. He should be ambitious and industrious.
5. He should be willing to make you an equal partner.
6. He should possess tact and a good disposition.
7. He should be mentally stable.
8. He should not be a braggart.
9. He should have a good character.
10. He should have and maintain a good appearance.

Dr. Cornell condemned a wife's allowance, saying "allowance is a dignified word for salary."

"The ethics of an allowance are all wrong and she knows it," Dr. Cornell explained, "yet her pride prevents her from asking for more. The children, if old enough, soon sense the difficulty. They enter into the deception process on the side of the mother, a habit which may lead to serious consequences in later life."

"The inflexible allowance is a liability that leads to matrimonial bankruptcy," Dr. Cornell added. "It really makes the wife a wage slave. Your prospective husband should make you his treasurer as well as his treasure."

Dr. Cornell advocated family budgets, setting aside a certain amount, not subject to an audit, to care for seasonal variation and changes from month to month.

"The man should be willing to make you an equal partner in every way," Dr. Cornell said. "On a 50-50 basis you can remain happy the rest of your lives. On a 60-40 basis, either way, sooner or later one partner resigns. There is nothing so exasperating as to have a husband so absorbed in a newspaper at breakfast that he fails to note how good the food is and how attractive you are. If he has the right to become absorbed in external affairs, so have you, so don't marry a man who won't provide two newspapers for the breakfast table."

Dr. Cornell urged a certificate of health for both parties before marriage. He held that the class prohibited from marriage should not only include defectives and close relatives but also the physically unfit unless cured by medical aid.

"While health certificates may detract from romance," he said, "yet they would prevent unfortunate marriages, as well they should. We are beginning to believe that such a certificate is quite as important as newspaper publication of marriage intention as required in Wisconsin. That compulsory custom introduced to protect matrimony has had no unromantic effects."

Dr. Cornell declared marriage to a man who demands a childless union is a calamity. Too frequently the wife discovers this demand on the part of her husband after marriage, he said. There would be, he said, injustice to the child as well as to the wife should a child be born under such circumstances.

"We hear a great deal about companionate marriage, contract marriage, free love, and very little about permanent marriage these days," Dr. Cornell added. "I doubt if there is a successful or honored business or professional man in this country who has entered into any of these experimental types of marriage. If you are a believer in any type of trial marriage, let me ask what you expect to get out of it?

"Are you signing this agreement just to get physical pleasure without moral or social obligation? If so, you are selfish, since you have made personal happiness the chief goal of marriage. Adler defines marriage as an institution for saving life and the best thing in the world for saving the most precious and delicate thing—mentality!

"Usually in trial marriage, after a while there is no incentive to find the good qualities in either partner. Why should we make the effort? We have a short term lease, with no responsibilities after expiration. The babies? Put them in a home for the friendless! Would you have liked it if your mother had done that for you?"

THE STAGE

IT IS altogether likely that Harry J. Powers and his associates of the Erlanger group will not renew their lease on the Blackstone theater when it expires on Jan. 1. They feel that present conditions of the legitimate stage call for a reduction of their operations in Chicago.

George M. Cohan will come to the Blackstone Dec. 21 with his revival of "The Tavern," for a three weeks' engagement. No other attractions have been booked. The Theater Guild's occupancy of the Blackstone has been on a play-by-play basis, and if the Erlanger-Powers lease is not renewed, the other productions of the Guild's Chicago subscription season may be housed at either the Erlanger or the Illinois, the other Chicago playhouses of this managerial group.

The Blackstone therefore will probably remain closed, after Mr. Cohan's departure, until its owners can find a new tenant.

Mr. Powers said last night that he was not ready to issue a final statement in this matter. He admitted, however, that such a step would be in line with his own and his associates' attitude toward the business prospects of the legitimate stage. "We cannot find enough shows to keep all of our theaters in continuous activity through a season," he said, "and a process of elimination is in order."

The Blackstone was built about twenty-five years ago, and has been continuously under the management of Mr. Powers. A fine tradition of first class drama will end with the expiration of the lease.

That new play by Booth Tarkington, "Colonel Satan," which George C. Tyler will soon bring into the middle west, is also announced for a London staging in January. Henry Ainley will have the rôle to which Mr. Tyler had assigned McKay Morris.

Miss Barrymore's "Scarlet Sister Mary" is not the only play that will fade out of the Broadway picture at this week-end. The "closing notice" has gone up on the bulletin boards of "Ladies All," "Hello, Paris," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Schoolgirl." . . . The Shylock of "The Merchant of Venice" is Maurice Moskovitch, who was well thought of in London. The Manhattan critics didn't believe that he was of great importance to Shakespeare, and he lasted only two weeks. . . . "Hello, Paris," Chic Sale's show, which began its career in Chicago last spring, will be sent on tour.

Christmas week, which usually floods the Chicago stage with new attractions, promises only four additions to the playbills—Mr. Cohan's "The Tavern," Fred Stone's "Ripples," "Berkeley Square," with Leslie Howard and Margalo Gillmore, and "Jonesy," with Thomas W. Ross. . . . The latter should be regarded as doubtful, for the management of the Playhouse hasn't yet confessed to the booking. . . . In that same week the New York stage will get several new shows. Its announcements now include "Ballahoo," a musical with W. C. Fields as star; "Babes in Toyland," and Chicago's Fritz Lieber. . . . You can send your telegrams of good omen to Unser Fritz at the Ambassador theater, New York, on the night of Dec. 25; the bill will be "King Lear." C. C.

Chief of Branch Libraries Honored After 50 Years

John L. Phelan, 64 years old, who for fifty years has been an employé of the Chicago public library, was the honor guest at a banquet attended by 230 co-workers in the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, last night. Mr. Phelan is now director of the 45 branches of the library. He started as an errand boy in 1880. The library then was in the Dickey building, at Dearborn and Lake streets. He has seen the library's stock of books grow to 1,800,000 volumes. Following an address last night by Carl B. Roden, chief librarian, Mr. Phelan was presented with a gold watch and chain.

Einstein Shy of U. S. Crowd; Sticks to Ship

But Says He's Against German Fascists.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 11.—[Special.]—A little man in a wrinkled black overcoat, who lives in a topsy turvy world where light moves around corners and time can be turned backward, paid a visit to New York today. The visitor, who arrived on the liner Belgenland from Germany, was Prof. Albert Einstein.

Everything is relative with the Herr Doktor, and relatively speaking he is in New York, but actually he got no further than a Hudson river pier. Right there in his cabin he stayed and his excursions ashore will be few and brief if he has his way.

Crowds annoy the great mathematician and reception committees bore him, so he is going to stick to the ship. Frau Einstein will remain aboard with him, for, as she says, "Papa is so easily frightened by people."

"This reminds me of a Punch and Judy show," remarked the professor in German as he and Frau Einstein sat in the ship's social room surrounded by every one else aboard, "all of you standing there watching us so intently."

"Will you define the fourth dimension in a word?" some one shouted, immediately whispering to his awe struck companions that the answer would be "Time."

"You will have to get a spiritualist to answer that one," countered Prof. Einstein.

He likewise declined to answer questions regarding his theories of relativity or space, declaring "it would take three days and no one would understand."

The professor's discomfort grew with that of his questioners, but Frau Einstein chuckled pleasantly and eventually the subject of Adolph Hitler, Germany's stormy petrel, was introduced.

"I am not at all friendly with that man," averred the scientist. "Hitler is living on the empty stomachs of Germany. If the stomach of Germany was not empty Hitler would not be where he is."

Prof. Einstein said prohibition was immaterial to him, as he did not drink, and in reply to a question on religion as an aid to world peace, declared:

"It has not been of aid yet, and I am no prophet."

It was out on the poop deck that the professor had his session with the movie cameras. Einstein is a small, bright eyed man of fifty-odd years. His hair is long, almost white, and is trained back in a bushy pompadour. He wears a large black mustache.

By his side stood blonde, buxom Frau Einstein. There was a hint of girlhood freckles on her cheeks. She wore a modish hat and coat and was having a thoroughly good time.

Prof. Einstein posed for a while and then bolted, hurling a couple of German "bahs" at the pack at his heels. "These men are like wolves, every one of them wants to have a bite at me," he remarked to a friend.

Cornered again, he broke away and fled to a stateroom where a microphone was thrust before him. Einstein remembered a prepared address and a contract to deliver it—so he spoke, into the wrong microphone. In his speech he urged the United States to exert its influence against "the monster of professional militarism," declaring "it is along these lines of endeavor that your mission lies at the present moment, and I know that you will build for yourself a high monument."

Later, when the broadcasting company which had contracted for the address (the profits to go to a German charity) got to the professor he spoke briefly of the mistake and then touched on a subject even more tidily. He called it "the life rhythm as expressed by the journalists and photographers in my reception" and declared "it will be impossible to exceed it by any adventure ever so extraordinary."

Frau Einstein in an interview confessed that she had a keep the family accounts; that she called him "papa," and that they had turned down an invitation to stay at the Long Island estate of Thomas Cochrane of the J. P. Morgan firm.

The professor was here in 1931 and was given a reception at the city hall. He insisted this afternoon, however, that he was a "one reception man," and desired nothing more than peace until he gets to the California institue of Technology, where he is to exchange ideas with Prof. Millikan and lecture.

Simple Minds Called Fitted to Machine Age

New methods of handling the mental ailment problem in Illinois were presented yesterday by the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene. That group has begun a campaign of public education and sees the time coming when thousands of mild defectives now restrained in institutions will be reeducated and returned to society, there to become an asset rather than a dangerous liability.

"We have come to realize in this age of the machine that a great deal of the heavy, monotonous work of the world is done by those with subaverage intelligence, whose moderate demands upon life are easily satisfied," it is stated in a pamphlet prepared by Drs. Charles F. Read and H. Douglas Singer. A definite program is given, which includes the use of traveling clinics and small colonies adjacent to the mother institutions, which may become self-sustaining.

Dr. Ralph C. Hamill, president of the society, said last night at a meeting of the stockyards branch of the Chicago Medical society:

"Psychiatry is still in the dark ages as compared with many other branches of modern medical science. Scarcely enough psychiatrists can be found today to supervise the work at state hospitals, and the average doctor knows little concerning mental ailments.

"People should realize that a mental ailment is just as much a disease and should be treated just as carefully as appendicitis or heart trouble. There are in Illinois today 25,000 mental patients in state hospitals. Probably an equal number are outside institutions, many because friends and relatives are ashamed to admit they are suffering from some form of mental disease."

The following are among the ideas recommended by the society:

Increasing supervision upon the outside, with the state doing what it can to prevent institutionalization.

Commitment of the feeble-minded to the department of public welfare.

Our state colonies should organize daughter colonies where trained and trustworthy inmates might become prepared for parole.

The feeble-minded, as well as the criminal and the insane, should be open to parole.

Professional research is to be encouraged and one physician employed for every two hundred inmates.

That 2,000 beds be provided for immediate needs of the docile feebleminded and 300 to 500 beds be provided in a separate institution for defective delinquent males in the vicinity of Chicago.

Miss Elizabeth D. Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel A. Campbell, was introduced to society at a luncheon party given by Mrs. Warner M. Van Norden and Mrs. J. Willard Travell.

Miss Helen Rand has left for Palm Beach, where she will pass the winter.

CONGRESS' LIBRARY HAS ITS BEST YEAR IN QUANTITY, QUALITY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The library of congress today reported the biggest book year in its history.

It added a record number of books to the shelves, made the most notable purchase of incunabula, acquired the highest priced single book in the world, established the only college faculty functioning for library users, and acquired the finest existing collection on aeronautics.

The record breaking gain of 196,632 volumes was translated as: "Twenty-two new books added to the shelves every hour of the fiscal year, Sundays and holidays included, with 3,912 volumes added at the end of the year for good measure."

Purchase of the 3,000 book Vollbehr collection, including a Gutenberg Bible, at $1,500,000, was credited with placing the Congressional "well within the first dozen libraries of the world in ownership of such monuments of the printer's art."

The report described as "a service apparently unique among libraries" its new staff of special advisers to the reading public, all former members of college faculties and experts in their fields—Prof. Harry W. Tyler, science; Prof. William H. Allison, ecclesiastical and general history; Prof. Henry E. Bourne, history; Prof. Harold N. Fowler, classical literature; Dr. William Alexander Hammond, philosophy; Dr. Victor S. Clark, economics; Dr. M. A. De Wolfe Howe, current English and American literature; Senor Don Juan Riano, Hispanic literature; Prof. Joseph Mayer, sociology.

In addition, the report said, the library has the privilege of "drawing as needed" upon Brig. Gen. John McAuley Palmer, military history; Prof. Albert Perry Brigham and Prof. Ray Hughes Whitbeck, geography; Dr. Kiang Kang-Hu, Chinese history and culture, and Dr. E. A. Lowe, paleography.

Make People Forget Themselves, Given as Key to Merry Party

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Elsa Maxwell, the woman who has made party-throwing an exact science, says we are just on the verge of discovering how to have fun. She is fat, forty and fupny.

Getting people out of themselves is the secret of making them have a good time, she said today on the eve of leaving for Paris. Her maxims are:

"Dull people make dull parties."

"Don't give a party unless you expect to enjoy it yourself. If you don't nobody else will.

"I never accept invitations from dull people. Therefore I never have to ask them to my parties.

"My friends are my riches. I've never had any money and I never will. Now that my wealthy friends are groaning over deteriorated stocks and I'm as prosperous as ever, I feel richer than they."

Elsa Maxwell will be the guest of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont at her chateau near Paris over Christmas.

JOHNSONS COME OUT OF AFRICAN WILDS WITH PICTURES OF PYGMIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Dec. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, the American explorers and producers of the film, "Wild Life in Simba," arrived at Nairobi this morning on a special train with a unique collection of wild animals, including three huge gorillas and a rare monkey.

The Johnsons have spent one year living and studying the life of a little known race of pygmies in the Belgian Congo. In the Ituri forest they took 30,000 feet of films.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are now resting in a suburb of Nairobi, with the wild animals heavily fenced in a garden. The gorillas were caught in tarpaulins after a tree to which they had fled was chopped down.

American Penwomen.

The Chicago branch of the League of American Penwomen will hold a monthly meeting this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Franklin M. Miller at 1500 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Miller, assisted by Miss Betty Taylor, will have charge of the program and the president, Mrs. Lewis Carlton Jesseph, will preside.

Queen's Crystal Palace Carpet Presented to Museum at Washington

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Smithsonian institution announced the receipt of a gift from King George V. of Great Britain, a carpet on which the king's grandmother, Queen Victoria, stood when she opened Crystal palace in London.

The carpet, manufactured in Scotland, is 45 feet long and 17 feet wide. It was found in a London warehouse by Sir Auckland Geddes while searching for furnishings for the British embassy here.

For years it graced the ballroom of the embassy, but on account of its historic value it was not removed to the new embassy building.

The Smithsonian institution was founded by James Smithson, an Englishman.

Mundelein College Players Rehearse for Their Show

More than 375 students participated yesterday in a dress rehearsal of "The House of Life," to be given tomorrow, Sunday and Monday in the auditorium of the new Mundelein college, 6363 Sheridan road. The play is an allegorical Christmas presentation, and will be featured by pageantry, and vocal and instrumental music. Mundelein college is a school for girls.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover gave a luncheon today for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. The guests included Miss Elizabeth Hughes, who will be married this month to Charles Gossett of New York; Miss Gertrude Bancroft, niece of Attorney General Mitchell; Miss Roberts, daughter of Justice Owen J. Roberts; Miss Isabel Cotton, daughter of the undersecretary of state; Mrs. Kendrick, daughter-in-law of Senator Kendrick; Mrs. Stark McMullin, house guest of Mrs. Hoover.

Mrs. William Fitch Kelley is planning to spend Christmas with her son, McClure Kelley and his little family in Aurora, Ill. She has recently completed a marble bust of her young grandson.

President and Mrs. Hoover gave tonight the second one of the state receptions for this season, that in honor of the judiciary. Mrs. R. P. Lamont of Chicago, wife of the secretary of commerce, was in the cabinet line tonight for the first time this season. Mrs. Lamont wore a gown of pale blue velvet. Miss Gertrude Lamont was in black pleated crepe with trimming of ermine.

This afternoon Mrs. Hoover went to the violin recital of Fritz Kreisler in the convention hall of the D. A. R. She had as her guests Mrs. George H. Moses, wife of a senator from New Hampshire and president of the "Senate Ladies' club"; Mrs. David S. Ingalls, wife of the assistant secretary of the navy for aviation; Mrs. Adolph C. Miller, and Miss Alida Henriques.

Passavant Nurses' Dance.

Student nurses of Passavant hospital will give a formal dance this evening at the Shoreham hotel. Proceeds will go toward furnishing the nurses' training quarters.

Charles E. Hughes Elected Red Cross Vice President

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was elected vice president of the American Red Cross at the annual meeting of the central committee today. He succeeds the late William Howard Taft. Among other officers elected by the society were George E. Scott of Chicago, reelected a member of the central committee, and Howard Fenton, president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, elected a member of the board of trustees of the endowment fund.

Dinner Here Aids Cathedral in Washington

BY THALIA

MRS. FRANCIS T. A. JUNKIN'S dinner, musical, and dance this evening—its locale changed from the Drake to the Blackstone crystal ballroom, because of the proportions it has assumed since it was first planned—promises to be truly magnificent.

After Mr. Junkin's death, Mrs. Junkin took his place on the national executive committee for the Washington cathedral of the Episcopal church, and her dinner, the largest she has given in Chicago in several years, is for the purpose of giving Chicago some detailed information about the cathedral.

There will be a talking movie of Gen. Pershing—who found he couldn't possibly come on for tonight—about the cathedral, and speeches by the bishop of Washington, the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, former Senator George Wharton Pepper, and by Chicago's bishop, Dr. Craig Stewart.

After the dinner—and the movie—and the speeches, there will be a lively program given by the pianist, Florence Trumbull, and the German baritone, Hans Hermann Nissen. And after the musical, there will be dancing.

Mrs. Junkin didn't know she was going to have Princess Alexandria Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein and her husband, Capt. Arnaud Ruemann, as her guests when the second set of invitations had been engraved, and so their names were written in on the cards with the other guests of honor.

The guest list was over 200 names long yesterday, and acceptances were still pouring in. Guests were sent printed notices of the change in place, and the doorman at the Drake will be posted to ask all comers in evening dress whether they are going to Mrs. Junkin's party and tell them it has been changed.

There will be a speaker's table with about 18 places, and the other guests will be seated at small tables for 8, each of them presided over by one of Mrs. Junkin's intimate friends. These include Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John J. Abbott, Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Hessert, Mrs. Warren Fairbanks, Mrs. Rensselaer W. Cox, Miss Lucy Martin, Miss Jane Cox, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Chauncey McCormick (Mrs. McCormick won't attend because she's ill), Miss Irene Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwa . F. Swift.

Some Reminders That Life Is Real, Earnest.

If you think there isn't very much happening now, be reminded that . . . there is an Arts club tea, opening exhibitions of the paintings of Valentine Prax and drawings by William Littlefield next Tuesday afternoon. . . . The former Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman Jr. has gotten herself a dandy job as manager of Mrs. Franklin, Inc., on Delaware place, and Mrs. Robert Caldwell is assistant manager, because Mrs. Franklin came on from the east and gave the shop a general shakeup. . . . The W. Edwin Smiths (Margaret Forgan) of Winnetka have a daughter, Joan Elizabeth, born at St. Luke's on Monday. . . . Mrs. Paul Guenzel is laid up at Grant hospital. . . . Mrs. Welhelm Ludwig Baum is having "Sunday nights" during December, and the first one was so successful (everybody stayed for at least an hour) that she may continue them through the winter.

More jots. . . . Cards for the annual New Year's day at home that John Robert Leonard and his children always have at his Winnetka home, Wildacre, are out. . . . Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Y. W. C. A. president, will tell the world on the air over W-G-N this afternoon that the Y. W. C. A. is "a place to turn for every need." . . . Mrs. Paul Walker has taken over the chairmanship for the charity doll show at the Seneca on the 19th. . . . Hugh and Catherine Gardner McKay up and moved to New York City recently—permanently, they think—and their address for the winter is 12 East 86th street, in case they're on your Christmas card list. . . . Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey of New York City gave a luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden at Sherry's in New York on Tuesday.

Home Movie Party Recalls Meeting Six Maharajahs.

Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Herbst had a tea party at their residence at 4924 Woodlawn avenue yesterday afternoon and showed the movies of their series of remarkable visits in India last summer. They were entertained in elaborate oriental fashion by 6 maharajahs, no less, as well as some lesser potentates, and the pictures are a graphic record of the splendors of their trip.

As per schedule, Princess Elizabeth Cantacuzene and Miss Elizabeth Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Atwater Kent, arrived yesterday from Philadelphia to visit Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer. Princess Elizabeth will be here until after Christmas, but Miss Kent will tarry for only a few days, as she must get back to the business of being a debutante in Philadelphia.

The Edward Clark Crossetts are reversing the time honored procedure of introducing a bud first at a tea and reception and then at an evening affair. Their daughter, Miss Ruth Crossett, is not to be formally presented to society until next Friday, but they have invited about 200 young people to attend a dinner-dance for her at the Casino tonight. Next Friday's affair is to be a buffet luncheon and will be primarily for the older friends of Mr. and Mrs. Crossett and the family.

SOUTH FOR HONEYMOON

MRS. DAVID H. QUINN.
[Moore-Clarke Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Quinn, whose marriage took place last week, are to spend a two months' honeymoon in Florida and the West Indies. Mrs. Quinn is the former Miss Hope Duncan Naylor, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Raymond Clifford Naylor of Oakland, Cal. She was graduated from Miss Head's finishing school.

Claudia Muzio Keeps Puccini Music Young in Opera 'La Boheme'

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There are those who claim that the music of Puccini as spread upon the score of "La Bohème" is fast going into the stage of senility, amiable but doddering, but as long as artists like Claudia Muzio can sing the part of Mimi and Antonio Cortis that of Rodolfo the way they did last night the piece is good for several years yet.

They are among the few to have decided that the finale of the third act is not only a lovely melody but has words that mean something as well, and that the way to sing it is to manipulate the melody in a way to express the words. Consequently the melody became more expressive than ever.

The performance had other merits. Prominent among them was Irene Pavloska, who is a great asset to the cast whenever she does her good singing and good comedy as Musetta. Another was Salvatore Baccaloni in the two rôles of Benoit, the landlord, and Alcindoro, the lively old Parisian stepping out with Musetta. He is a comic actor of distinction and resource.

And there was Virgilio Lazzari, first of all the philosophers who sing a farewell song to an overcoat. Also there was Richard Bonelli, a fresh voiced, lively, and somewhat sentimental Marcello; likewise Desiré Defrère, the fourth of the Bohemian quartet, who has toned down the exuberance of his Schaunard a bit and improved it to that extent.

After the opera the ballet, "L'Amour Sorcier," was repeated.

A joint program was given at the Blackstone hotel yesterday morning by Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, who play two pianos, and Eleanor Reynolds, contralto. The Bartlett-Robertson duo played two groups, one of the ancients, which included a work by Giles Farnaby, supposed to be the first ever written for two keyboard instruments; the other of moderns. They are a rather well rehearsed pair, not always letting their fingers fall with the exactness of clockwork, but generally playing up to tempo and mood as experts should.

Mme. Reynolds, who appeared with the Chicago Opera company some seasons ago, continues to maintain a voice of operatic brilliancy. Her vocal manner is inclined to be forceful rather than delicately imaginative, but in songs demanding breadth of style it is highly effective.

Society Attends "La Boheme"

The impeccably garbed men and women in the box tiers at the opera last night were roused to polite interest and curiosity when a youngish mustached gentleman in business attire was ushed to a place in the Chauncey McCormick box. From Mr. McCormick it was learned that his guest was Señor Bartolome Garcia Correa, governor of Yucatan and former president of the Mexican senate, and that his prosaic attire was not accidental.

The Señor explained that in view of the business depression in Mexico and in the interest of setting an example in economy, the officials of his government have forsworn, for the time being, wearing evening clothes for any occasion whatever.

Also in Mr. McCormick's party were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, and Elmer B. Jones, president of the Wells Fargo company of Mexico City. The McCormicks and Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins were entertained by both Mr. Jones and the Señor during their visit to Mexico last year.

In the Cyrus McCormick Jr. box nearby Mrs. James C. Ames was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lobdell, Countess Cardelli and her son, Count Cardelli. Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Poor and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims in their box in the upper tier.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Heyworths' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Troy, Miss Evelyn Kallscheuer, and F. B. Schwarer. The George B. Dryden box was occupied by a group composed of Mrs. Ernest Palmer, Mrs. Malcolm MacHarg, Mrs. Warren Buckley, Douglas Kennedy, and Bradley and Ernest Palmer. Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett and the Marquis d'Ivanrey were among the guests of Mrs. Waller Borden.

AVOID OPERATIONS

Unguentine Hemorrhoid Treatment Swiftly Banishes Trouble

There are no two ways about it—if you neglect piles you can expect but one consequence—the surgeon's knife. And operations are painful and expensive—they mean loss of time, work, and money. Not many can afford that.

So start using UNGUENTINE RECTAL CONES. They're made by the Norwich Pharmacal Co., who produced the world-renowned UNGUENTINE. Small wonder—that doctors have endorsed them for 30 years.

The maddening pain—the agonizing swelling, inflammation and itching—all go in a few days. It's up to you. Decide now that you're going to suffer no longer.

A box of UNGUENTINE RECTAL CONES is but 75c—not much for the blissful relief and lasting happiness they will bring you. Every drug store in America carries them. The Norwich Pharmacal Co., Norwich, N.Y.

SOCIETY NOTES

At random . . . Baroness Wenner's most amusing story just now is the one about the Scotchman who asked one of the Siamese twins if he would dine with him the first time he could get away. . . . Joseph T. Ryerson and Ralph R. Richardson have been popular grass bachelors this week, as their respective wives are away. . . . Soiloff is the name of the cold cream that Mrs. Botsford Young and Mrs. Kenneth Dick manufacture. . . . Albert D. Lasker is having a talking movie theater, large enough to seat 40 people, built on his estate near Everett, Ill.

Sweden's King Greets Nobel Prize Winners

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Amid all the splendor which is traditional to the Swedish court, Sinclair Lewis and other Nobel prize winners, accompanied by their wives, were entertained tonight at the royal palace by King Gustav at a state banquet.

The tables were almost buried in roses, and the royal gold and silver plate sparkled in the beautiful banquet hall. All the food was served from gold dishes.

It was the outstanding social function of the Stockholm season, and the ninety guests who came included virtually all the eminent men and women of Sweden.

Despite a pouring rain, eager crowds pressed forward to the gates of the palace, hoping to catch a view of the guests, who came in taxicabs and private cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, the former Dorothy Thompson, newspaper writer, came in a taxi accompanied by Dr. E. A. Karfeldt and Sir V. C. Raman of India, winner of the Nobel prize for physics.

On arrival within the palace the guests ascended the broad marble stairs which were lined on either side by grenadiers in full dress uniform. The guests were received by Baron Rudbeck, lord high chamberlain, and Countess Lewenhaupt, first lady in waiting, who led them to an antechamber adjoining the banquet hall.

A blast from a horn announced the entrance of King Gustav, leading Princess Ingeborg. They were followed by the entire royal family, the ladies wearing black dresses.

The king and members of the royal family mingled with the guests, chatting particularly with the Nobel prize winners and their wives. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were accorded special attention.

The entire Swedish cabinet in full court dress turned out this afternoon with other distinguished personages to honor Mr. and Mrs. Lewis at a tea given by the American chargé d'affaires.

Selma Lagerlof, winner of the Nobel prize in literature in 1909, was one of the guests at the tea. Some of those present expressed disappointment at the rather conventional address delivered by the American winner at last night's banquet, but they looked forward with keen interest to a talk which he is to make tomorrow, expecting that it would include Mr. Lewis' personal views of contemporary literature.

Contrary to general belief it was not "Babbit" or "Main Street," nor for any other particular book, that Sinclair Lewis received the 1930 Nobel prize in literature, but it was for his literary art in general.

The official citation of the Swedish academy, which awarded the prize, has just been made public here.

"The 1930 Nobel prize in literature," the citation reads, "is awarded to Sinclair Lewis for his powerful and vivid art of description and his wit and humor in the creation of original characters."

Kellogg Leaves Oslo.

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Frank B. Kellogg, former United States secretary of state, left Oslo tonight on the conclusion of the Nobel ceremonies, during which he was presented with the 1929 peace award. He will proceed to Berlin and then to Bremen, from which port he will sail for the United States.

Speaking at a banquet in his honor, Mr. Kellogg recalled how Norway and the United States were bound by close ties, referring especially to the voyage of Lief Eriksson and the work of the Norwegian immigrants in America during the last century.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Too Much for One Person.

"My father and brother have been out of work for eight months. Neither of them has been able to find a thing and we are finding it so hard to get along that some days we are lucky if we have one meal. I am working, but my salary is only twelve dollars a week and seven of us must live on that. The children are in need of clothing, too. The boys are 17, 5 and 2½ years old. My sister is 10 and I wear size 16. G. P."

When a family of this size tries to live on the earnings of one girl, surely theirs cannot be such a comfortable existence. Will you try to remove some of her burden by providing her brothers and sister with the clothing they need?

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Paris Revives Beige for Late Afternoon

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special Correspondence.] —Beige, which had completely disappeared from Paris fashions, is returning again and this old favorite gives the effect of a new, delightful stranger, now that we've had a chance to recover from its too constant society.

The name of muddy beige, however, continues to be mud. The new beiges have golden glints or warm apricot tones, which make them most becoming. Often a golden beige tulle frock will be worn with a golden brown velvet coat. The two smartest women at La Teresina's opening in the Theatre des Champs Elysées were dressed in golden beige and brown ensembles.

Beige is particularly pretty for the long sleeved, lace or mousseline late afternoon and dinner gowns that are the most delightfully wearable creations this season has brought forth.

It is just as practical as black and more becoming to the majority of women.

Lucile, Ltd., combines apricot beige georgette and lace of the same tone in the bridge frock, sketched above. The loose sleeves are cut in one with a pointed georgette incrustation, that echoes the pointed décolleté of the lace bodice. Curved incrustations of the georgette decorate the cutaway hip yoke, and there are curved incrustations of the lace in the sleeves. The full circular skirt is of georgette and it has a lace encrusted hem mounted in reversed scallops. Note its ankle length—the accepted Paris level for twilight gowns, worn either inside or outside the home circle. The georgette belt fastens with a strasse and crystal buckle.

Antoinette Tells You How to Settle This Hip Question

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When I dress myself up as gran' and 'ansum as physical circumstances will permit, which includes the last minute dash to the hairdresser and, while he waves, turning over my nails for lacquering and my eyebrows for plucking and me cheeks for tinting and me eyes for a dash of shadowing, I expects when I get to the party to leave shop behind. But such is the conversation of wimmin that I frequently find myself wondering if I'm not back at my desk answering questions about how to skin a few layers off the lips or the legs or where 'tis.

Of course, like the movie stars I might be more piqued were I not interrogated, being that kind of a girl, too. But when I go to a party all lit up [outside, understand] and a girl will come over to me and tell me she's been dying to meet me just to tell me what I did for her—well, that's when I crumble into a nice little heap of smug placidity.

"Tisn't love's labor lost after all," I say to myself.

So that party last week was a howling success because Maureen stepped up with the pleasing introduction of herself and said she regretted she didn't know me a few months back before she took to doing that exercise I gave one Sunday and which she took to heart. To hips, I mean. I assured her in my gigglish way that it was just as well she didn't know me then because maybe if she had she wouldn't have taken my exercises. Friends being like that, I've noticed. And kin. They always go you one better. Incidentally, I'm glad it's so, for if what they have to offer is better, I grab it—that being my business.

Well, the exercise that Maureen set her hips to work on, or maybe I should say off, is one that I have given her several times. But because of its recent swell endorsement I think it is due for another revival. More reason, too, for hips just have to come down. You can't go around hipping it up and be thought a 1930 character. You date yourself 'way back before the war with hips on. So here she goes:

Get down on the floor, face up; feet together, arms at sides. On count 1 raise right leg, cross it over the left and stretch it for all you're worth without straining so you can't get it back to let the other leg show what a stretch it can do. Just keep on doing that to music and keep head and shoulders as flat on floor as you can to prevent dizziness. Then tell me you rolled 'em down pat and show me another swell time at a party.

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

CHILD'S BLOOMER FROCK.

Here is a little Mother Hubbard yoked dress that any small girl will like. The matching bloomers are gathered into knee bands and the contrasting color used on the dress should be used for these bands. The front of the dress joins the yoke with several rows of shirring, and the collar, cuffs, front applied band, and pocket tops are of a contrasting color. Linen, pique, broadcloth, and challis are among the suitable materials.

The pattern, 2868, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2⅜ yards of 39 inch material with ⅛ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

FARM AND GARDEN

WHEN TO BUD ROSES.

Chicago's vast outlay of greenhouses contains a super abundance of roses that not only seek purchasers and admirers in this metropolitan area, but are sent from coast to coast in season.

For years such rose beds were built upon the practice of winter grafting. But since the proposal of an embargo upon imported rose stocks, the summer budding practice has come into more prominence. Experiments conducted at the University of Illinois on the relative value of the two methods have been reported in a bulletin just issued by the college of agriculture, written by F. F. Weinard and S. W. Decker of the floriculture division. It is called "Summer-Budded Versus Winter-Grafted Roses," and may be obtained upon request to the college at Urbana.

Three varieties, including Matchless, Madame Butterfly, and Templar, produced flowers just as well or better from summer-budded plants under glass than they did from winter-grafted plants. This was true with respect to quality as well as to number of flowers. However, in the case of a fourth variety, Pernet, the yields from summer-budded plants were slightly lower than from greenhouse-budded plants. The latter type of plants, however, had the advantage of a somewhat earlier start.

Possible losses in starting dormant stock and perhaps a shorter planting season are factors to be considered in connection with the use of summer-budded plants, the investigators point out.

The experiments were prompted by the fact that there is still considerable to be learned before the most efficient methods of producing and handling dormant-bud plants are known. Under the old standard practice of winter-grafting, the plants ordinarily are grafted in January. Under the newer system of summer-budding, budding is done in the nursery row, usually in August or September. The plants then go into the rest period with the buds united but still dormant. They are then lifted, cut back and stored to be shipped to the florist at a later date while still dormant.

Christmas Shopping Is a Great Strain for the Small Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Short reading references for the expectant mother will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Imagine it, if you can—a sort of Gulliver's Travels up to date.

You're very little in a great big place and every one else around you is big. These giants crowd against you and shut off the air. You're just below the level of the sights to be seen. And anyhow, if you could see the sights you know they wouldn't interest you. You move, or stand, or walk, or are pulled—or worse, you wait endlessly for something of no importance to you.

Your small legs get tireder and tireder. This is made worse by confusion and noise and heat and lights. You get impatient and your mother gets more impatient because she's tired, too. And then perhaps you cry and you're hungry besides—and, O dear! O dear. . . .

That's what grown up Christmas shopping in crowded stores mean to a little child.

Each year, as Christmas rolls around, there are mothers and fathers new to Christmas experiences. Usually that is because on the preceding year the small son or daughter was a baby, or else there was no small son or daughter at all. So they had never thought, perhaps, of children in terms of shopping and crowds—or, if you like, of shopping and crowds in terms of children.

Mothers are growing more and more sensible about shopping with their children, and many of them realize that the strain on the child as well as themselves—a strain both physical and mental—is most unwholesome.

Leave your little children home, if possible—except for one festive trip to see Christmas sights. If you have no maid or nurse and can't afford to pay for help try to join forces with some other mother—one of you going shopping while the other keeps the two families of children, and then turn about.

Or, if you have no way at all of managing that—first reduce your shopping to a minimum. Then, if you must take the children, get an early start so that you're home in time for their midday meal and nap.

English Attorney Tells Why Women Leave Their Mates

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Can we learn about our women from an English divorce court attorney?

Let's hope not, because one of them says that "women are less faithful than men." That "even the risk of an illicit liaison, with its plotting, planning, deceptions, and unthruths, is sometimes better to a woman than the sameness of uneventful domesticity."

Let's believe that Sir Ellis Hume, the speaker, credited with a wide knowledge of matrimonial affairs which he has put into a book recently, may know his English women but not American wives. Of course, the English attorney does say that woman's faithlessness, as he sees it, is due chiefly to boring homes and neglectful husbands. That lets out American men and women whose homes are not boring and where neglect does not enter. But we have some of those kinds of homes and husbands—and wives, too.

"A man with a busy life may possibly live without a woman's affection," the English authority says, "but the average woman cannot live a life of even moderate happiness without love, affection, and attention."

And here's a warning to husbands who take too much for granted: "If the husband does not realize what affection means to a woman and does not possess it, or show it by tenderness and constant care for her, he is not entitled to be surprised if she takes a lover."

Nor is it well for man to wait until the frost is on the matrimonial vine, for Sir Ellis declares that no woman who has fallen in love with another man can be persuaded, or argued, or coerced into rekindled affection for her husband.

The formula for keeping a woman faithful is simple enough, then.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(Adv.)

Bright Sayings of the Children

I rushed home overjoyed. "O, mother!" I exclaimed, "one of the girls was fired and I've been promoted to her place."

My mother, aunt, and three year old niece were in the room at the time.

The next day my niece related my good fortune to a neighbor, so the woman inquired how I received it.

"Why, that girl burned all up, so Mary took her place." E. A.

Bobby gazed intently at a picture of several angels surrounded by a bank of clouds in the family Bible.

"No wonder we never see any angels down here,' he said. "They're snowed in!" K. W.

"Your music teacher seems very nice," I remarked to my young daughter one day.

She came back quickly with this, "Sure. Why shouldn't she be? She married a creature (preacher).

GRIFFITH BATTLES STRIBLING IN STADIUM RING

MAJORS, MINORS SPLIT; EXPECT NEW BASEBALL WAR

SMALL LEAGUES STORM OUT OF DRAFT PARLEY

Fail to Agree on Option Price.

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Relations between the major and the minor leagues were blasted far apart today by the controversy over the universal draft, and organized baseball faced its first open warfare since the days of the Federal league, fifteen years ago.

Bubbling over with wrath, the committee of nine representing the American association and the Pacific Coast and International leagues stormed out of a joint meeting with representatives of the National and American leagues late this afternoon determined to carry on business in the future without any relations whatsoever with the majors.

Ends Three Day Debate.

The breakup brought an end to three days of negotiation here and left no prospect that the big and little brothers of organized baseball could hope to settle their differences peacefully in the near future.

The two branches of baseball split definitely on the proposition of opening out players for seasoning and the price to be paid for athletes drafted by the majors. The majors, headed in the conference by Presidents Ernest S. Barnard of the American league and John A. Heydler of the National league, insisted they be allowed to select players from class AA teams—teams of the American association and the Pacific Coast and International leagues—who had had four years of experience in leagues of lower classification. On this point and on the question of price to be paid for these athletes the committees could reach no agreement.

Minors Seek $10,000.

The majors offered $7,500 for each drafted player, a drop of $1,000 from their offer at the recent Cleveland conference, while the minors asked for $10,000.

As a final resort the minor league committee, headed by Charles H. Strub, president of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, offered to place settlement of the controversy in the hands of High Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, with the understanding that both sides would agree to stand by his decision. The major league committees refused to accept this offer, and the minors thereupon marched out of the meeting in warlike formation.

The minors, offering several compromises, agreed to permit each major league to send fifteen players out on option for three years apiece instead of the eight players now permitted each club for two years.

Insist on Longer Term.

The minors pointed out that a universal draft of players with four years experience in the minors at a cost of only $7,500 would rob the class AA clubs of stars just coming into their own and prevent the big salaries from regaining sums spent in developing their own stars in leagues of lower classifications. They insisted that it takes three to four years to develop a ballplayer of any ability, a price brought out by the majors' demand for the right to option athletes for three years, and demanded protection against the draft for their stars once they were developed.

In order to insure getting their money back on their own investments in players from the smaller minors, the class AA clubs asked that their players be eligible for draft only after three years of AA service if they came into the top minors without previous experience, or after two years, regardless of previous minor league service. The right of the majors to draft former big leaguers at will went unquestioned.

Minors Meet Again.

As soon as an impasse was reached, the minor league committee of nine met again to formulate plans for the future that include no hope of reconciliation with the majors. The majors met in joint session, discussed the draft, but took no further action, and disposed of several minor matters.

After the gathering of the still fuming minor league magnates, Strub, spokesman for the committee of nine, read this statement:

"We feel that the majors today have created a new major league. We are sorry that they could not see our viewpoint in this draft situation.

Gives Attempt at Cooperation.

"We have tried to the best of our ability to cooperate with the majors, but find their attitude is not conducive to cooperation. We even offered to let the high commissioner, Kenesaw M. Landis, be the final judge of the reasonableness or the unreasonableness of our proposition. But this did not meet with their approval.

"We now hope with this matter definitely settled that it shall have the approval of the cities in our respective leagues and that we will bring baseball up to a major league standing so that in two or three years the American and National leagues will give us the recognition that our clubs merit.

"We hope that as long as the majors have created this situation they will join with us in giving a world series competition and that baseball friendly relations will govern all future actions."

It's All for Charity, but Rivals Glare

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 11.—Charity will do a big business in New York between Friday evening and Sunday evening, and while there are indications that some of the local Samaritans have fallen to glaring at one another for love of their fellow men, still the three big productions should be successful, which is the object of the piece, after all.

JIMMY WALKER.

In a general way it appears that some political rivalry exists between Mr. Grover A. Whalen, late police commissioner, and his honor, the mayor, James J. Walker. Mr. Whalen is in charge of the Army-Navy football game of Saturday afternoon at the Yankee stadium for the Salvation Army. Mr. Walker is running a game of his own sponsorship Sunday at the Polo Grounds between the New York Giants and a pickup team of Notre Dame alumni.

The receipts of both shows will be devoted to the relief of the unemployed, but owning to the superior social character of his offering, Mr. Whalen's game has been receiving more publicity than the mayor's. I hear it said that Mr. Whalen wants to be mayor of the place, and while the situation may not be quite as bad as that, any way, there is a conflict between the two men and their respective football games.

Of course, Mr. Whalen's production is certain to outswank Mr. Walker's. He will have a showy delegation of brass hats from the Army and Navy to adorn his ringside boxes Saturday afternoon and the corps of cadets and regiment of midshipmen as well as the penthouse aristocracy of the two avenues, 5th and Park. Furthermore, his seats are selling on a scale from $5 to $50, with receipts already in excess of half a million, whereas Mr. Walker's best seats are retailing at a maximum price of $6.

Then, also, the New York Giants, who include Benny Friedman and Chris Cagle in their playing staff, are owned by Mr. Tim Mara, the bookmaker, who recently sued Gene Tunney on a claim that he had done something toward obtaining Mr. Tunney's chance for the heavyweight championship. Mr. Mara is at least as generous as any of Mr. Whalen's socially exclusive following from the avenues. In fact, being a bookmaker or ex-bookmaker and a member of the familiar, open handed, easy-go sporting class, he probably is considerably more generous than any of Mr. Whalen's people.

One of Mr. Whalen's very best people is a rich lady whose interest in the sufferings of the lower classes would seem to be due more directly to the social advantages of the afternoon than to the promptings of a kindly nature. I recall that one of the lady society reporters went to see her at her cottage in Palm Beach, a modest place about the size of a prosperous country club, one day last winter and came away weeping.

"She asked me not to mention her jewels or the cost of her parties in my stories," said the lady society reporter. "She said the mention of such things invariably brought a bushel of begging letters from poor widows and bedridden cripples and that these letters simply broke her poor husband's heart, although she, personally, didn't mind them. I have been haunted all afternoon by the thought of the misery I have brought down on her husband by mentioning her jewels and extravagance where the poor widows and bedridden cripples could read about them."

But, regardless of their reasons for interesting themselves in the Army-Navy game, the socially refined element will present a much more showy ensemble at the Army-Navy game

$50 TICKETS FOR ARMY-NAVY GAME STILL PRICED $50

No Reduction in Rates on 16,000 Unsold.

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—For the first time in three years the athletes and supporters of the Naval and Military academies converged upon New York tonight for the most colorful football show on earth.

Amid a barrage of ballyhoo worthy of the occasion, more and more of the football public of this and other cities dug into the bank roll to boom the ticket sale, aid the unemployed, and gain admission to a game that promises to take rank with the best in Army-Navy history.

Refuse to Cut Rates.

Although business conditions slowed the sale of the higher priced seats, the Salvation Army-Citizens committee, headed by Grover Whalen, announced there would be no reduction in the rates, which range up to $50.

"Even if there should be a block of unsold seats," said Whalen, "the Citizens committee has ruled that there must not be any price reduction. Such a reduction would be unfair to the early purchasers.

"We have a record football gate receipt total if we stopped selling tickets right now, and we are under no necessity of cutting prices. The person who waits for a price cut is going to miss the game."

Assured of $500,000 Gate.

Indications today were that the net gate would exceed $500,000, with a possibility of realizing a total of $750,000 when the additional funds received from various other sources, such as concessions, programs, and voluntary contributions from radio listeners are added. Between 16,000 and 17,000 of the 78,000 seats remained unsold.

No possible chance to increase the sum that will go to aid the unemployed is being missed. The souvenir football, autographed by President Hoover and army and navy notables, will be auctioned off. Even the coin to be tossed by the referee at the start of the game will be sold. It is a gold medallion bearing a likeness of the Army mule on one side and the Navy goat on the other.

A big parade tonight with military units in line was arranged to increase public interest and sell more tickets.

Predict Good Weather.

Even the weather man smiled on the occasion, predicting conditions would be favorable for both players and spectators with no rain either Friday or Saturday.

The Navy squad, arriving tonight, will be quartered at a midtown hotel until game time. The Army encamped tonight at Briarcliffe, a short distance outside of the city.

This 13th annual service game, scheduled as a post-season attraction for charity's sake after a three year break in relations, finds the teams fairly evenly matched. Although the Army has the more impressive record, the Navy is considered far more powerful than at any time this season.

The Army and Navy undergraduate cheering sections at the Yankee stadium will be at opposite ends of the field, the cadets and middies having volunteered to sit behind the goal posts so the higher priced seats could be sold. In addition to the corps of cadets and the regiment of midshipmen, 11,000 seats have been sold to old Army men and 14,000 to graduates of the Naval academy.

Notre Dame Head Defends Football; Irish Get Trophy

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 11.—Another Notre Dame football season passed into history tonight with the presentation of the Rissman trophy, emblematic of the national championship. Notre Dame by winning three national titles in a decade obtained permanent possession of the plaque.

The presentation was made by Prof. Frank Dickinson of the University of Illinois at the annual dinner given to the squad by the St. Joseph Valley alumni. More than 1,200 were in attendance.

Among the speakers were A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the Western conference, and Kenneth L. Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern university. Mr. Stagg, making his first public appearance at Notre Dame in a score of years, was given a tremendous ovation.

Raps Foes of Football.

The Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell and Knute Rockne represented Notre Dame at the speakers' table. Father O'Donnell's address in the main was directed at opponents of intercollegiate football. His talk in part follows:

"When all is said and done, there is some appeal which football makes to the best of our American people, and that appeal cannot be ignored. I wonder if any one of us knows just exactly what it is. So many analyze it differently, so many diverse explanations are abroad, it is indeed confusing. Surely millions of us are not lunatics, though there are superior persons who tell us that we are. But never mind. Not all the people who are clamoring for sanity are themselves sane, and most reformers badly need to be reformed. There are so many people in this country rushing in to solve our problem that they themselves have become one of the most serious problems the country has to solve.

Cites Good Fellowship.

"I hope they keep their hands off college football at least a little while longer, and I'm not thinking principally of paying for our new stadium. No, I'm thinking of this levy of young men which football raises out of a group of three thousand young men, endows them with some collective personality which still leaves each man himself and yet marks the group a unit, and embodies in it the hopes and aspirations, the courage, the daring, the hearty good fellowship, the fine good humor of the thousands in the school they represent.

"I can look down the years and see with satisfaction a long procession of boys like these Conleys and Carideos stepping to the front out of the unnamed ranks of Notre Dame men, a muster of men, their hearts clean and strong within them, dear with the charm of youth which perpetually renewed in the race and in the individual is all too soon a vanished dream. Perhaps that is the secret, or a great part of the secret, of the attraction of college football; at least to that great majority of us who are no longer young but refuse to be old."

In the WAKE of the NEWS

POT-POURRI.

FOOTBALL players frequently have struck or protested at the dismissal of a coach during or after the playing season. Action of Wisconsin sophomore gridders in threatening in advance to withdraw from football if Coach Thistlethwaite is not retained is the first action of the kind that we recall.

At the start of the season Badgers were rated in the second division, just off the top, in the Big Ten by a majority of critics. Then came sweeping victories over a weak Chicago eleven and Pennsylvania, below usual Penn standards and an in-and-outer. Title talk became rampant. Wisconsin lost to Northwestern and Purdue (the latter by point after touchdown), tied Ohio State, and defeated Chicago and Minnesota. It finished in a tie for fourth position. That is about where it was placed by "outsiders" before the season opened.

Without going into the reasons or merits of the case, previously aired at length in the news columns, the passing of Stagg's national interscholastic basketball tourney is a matter of regret. It was an established event and yielded good sport.

Agua Caliente, whose avowed purpose is to keep the Agua Caliente (nee Coffroth) handicap the leading first money turf event in America, announces that in the renewal on March 22 next the stake not only will have $100,000 added money but a guaranteed value to the winner of not less than $100,000.

Some turfmen have thought curtailing this prize and distributing the balance throughout the meeting would prove more satisfactory to owners, but the richness of the handicap has its advertising value.

GEORGE BOGUE SUES CARDS FOR BACK SALARY

Praecipe of a suit against the Chicago Cardinals, professional football club, was filed in Superior court yesterday afternoon by George Bogue, former Stanford university halfback, for recovery of salary alleged due under his player contract. The suit was instituted by the law firm of De Frees, Buckingham, Jones, & Hoffman.

Bogue said last night he had signed a season contract for $2,500 with the Cardinals and that the Cardinals had paid him $595. He then was sent to the Newark, N. J., club over his protest and he was forced to accept a reduced salary. Bogue contends the Cardinals owe him a balance of $1,355.20, Newark having paid him $549.80.

Dr. David Jones, president of the Cardinals, said last night that Newark had assumed Bogue's contract and that his club was not responsible after the transfer.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Shamrocks last night at the Stadium took it on the chin again in a hockey match with the Minneapolis Millers. The score was 2 to 1, the same tabulation accrued by the Millers when they spanked our boys last week.

The hockey gossips have whispered ere this that the Millers are poor relations of the Shamrocks, a rumor that has caused spirited protest from Miller attachés, who now present in evidence the fact that they and only they have defeated the Chicagoans at the Stadium and that they have done it twice by superior skating, fighting power, and all the other things that make hockey such a jolly old winter pastime.

If the Millers are related to the Shamrocks and if they eat out of the same pantry, as alleged, we are one who will say they are darned ungrateful kinfolk.

New Goalie Shines.

Last week they had a goalie named Joe Starke who upset the Chicago offense. Mr. Starke has gone away, and the Millers came to town yesterday comewhat apologetic because they had only a cherub faced youth called Porky Levine to do their goal tending. And as might be expected, young Porky was the standout of the performance. He made 35 stops during the evening, and at least half of these bordered on the spectacular.

As has become the custom in Shamrock games, there was little of great interest in the first period, except the dancing of the visiting goalie. And the second period was without production until it was 16 minutes and 24 seconds old. Then the Millers made it 1 to 0 on a goal by Ade Johnson.

There was much shouting when the Shamrocks, through great industry, tied the score after six minutes of the third period when Brydson tallied, but the hollering subsided two minutes later when Carbol slashed home the winning marker.

Goalie Levine was the busiest man on the ice during the entire first period and his zeal warded off every threat of the Shamrocks, some of which were quite merry. One onslaught by Mulligan, Wiseman and Headley required no fewer than three stops in rapid succession.

Miss Scoring Chances.

The second period saw some threats which gave Levine further opportunity to show his skill, but the Millers, though they didn't rush the Shamrock net, succeeded in making a goal in 16:24. A pass from Gordon was just right for Johnson, and the lat-

YOUNG STRIBLING.

Will Bat Stop Chocolate by Body Blows?

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, battling featherweight from Cuba, gets his first chance at a ring title tomorrow night and the experts are wondering if his opportunity hasn't come too late. The Cuban flash, a sensation in American rings for two years, battles Bat Battalino, Hartford, Conn., world's featherweight champion, in a 15 round titular bout in Madison Square Garden.

Strange rumors about the "Keed" have been afloat for some time. After ploughing through all opposition without a setback, Chocolate tangled with Jack [Kid] Berg, British lightweight, and was forced to accept the first defeat of his career. There was talk then that he had been overmatched and that he still was invincible at his own weight.

La Barba Wore Him Down.

Then came his fight with Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion. La Barba pounded away at Chocolate's body, wore him down with his attack, and galloped off with the decision by a country mile.

That seemed to be the tip off on Chocolate's condition. Some experts insist he has been burned out, that he has been rushed along too fast and fought too many matches for a boy of 19.

If Chocolate no longer can take a pounding about the body, Battalino will discover it in short order. The Hartford lad lacks the grace and cleverness that make Chocolate so fine a fighting machine to watch, but the champion is rough and ready and a notorious body puncher.

Champ's Weight Bothers.

In fifteen rounds he will have plenty of time to discover any weakness Chocolate has along that line.

Battalino's only training trouble has been with his weight. He has found it difficult getting rid of excess poundage. Chocolate on the other hand is a light featherweight.

Hoppe Evens Cue Match with Cochran; Wins, 200-88

Willie Hoppe last night again evened his billiards affair with Welker Cochran, winning the second block of their 18.1 balk line match, 200 to 88, in nine innings as Mussey's. Cochran bettered his own world record in the afternoon match, requiring only one inning to win, 200 to 18.

BOTH SEE TITLE OPPORTUNITY IN FIGHT TONIGHT

Expect Gate to Reach $100,000.

Tonight's Card

Young Stribling vs. Tuffy Griffith, 10 rounds.
Jack Gagnon vs. Larry Johnson, 8 rounds.
Frank Cawley vs. Natie Brown, 8 rounds.
Mickey McFarland vs. Willie Oster, 6 rounds.
Herbert Stribling vs. Irish Kennedy, 6 rounds.
Billy Rothermell vs. Charlie Cerminari, 4 rounds.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While the Stadium's quick change artists are melting the hockey ice and stacking the familiar red chairs in new alignment today, Bill Stribling and Tuffy Griffith will have many hours of leisure. But tonight these popular pugilists, roped off under the glare of Stadium lights, are expected to entertain Chicago with $100,000 worth of fighting.

The belief that Chicago considers tonight's heavyweight battle, a matter of 30 minutes' duration at the most, worth $100,000 is based on the collection of $65,000 at midafternoon yesterday. At that time Billy Burke and Frank Lyons, deft purveyors of Stadium tickets, announced that 7,500 purchases of lower priced seats had been made, with $45,000 contributed by customers who will sit in the higher priced sections.

What Do Fighters Think About?

So much for the golden magnet which has brought Griffith and Stribling to the Stadium ring and from which two governments, officials, ten subsidiary fighters, not to mention the stockholders, will be paid.

We don't know what fighters think about during the idle hours immediately preceding a business engagement of this importance. We imagine, however, they spend less time figuring their profits than the ten dollar a day spectators imagine. Indeed, if current reports are fifty per cent correct, Young Stribling might retire today with enough currency to support three generations of Georgia Striblings. And Tuffy Griffith is not exactly a candidate for relief by the governor's unemployment commission.

Each Eyes Title.

But if we correctly anticipate the fighters' thoughts, we imagine each is considering a glorious future, which reaches its climax on that day when he will be acclaimed the world's greatest heavyweight. Such visions are founded on a paralyzing left hook or a smashing right to the jaw and the referee's toll of ten. The loser may be solaced with several thousand dollars, but if any one contest is all important to the victor, this is it.

Stribling is risking his preeminence as challenger for Max Schmeling's title, which is based on knockouts over Von Porat and Phil Scott. These victories will fade from the public mind if Tuffy Griffith wins tonight. And Tuffy may well remember that his own ranking, none too secure, will slide to that of a chorus man echoing boxing's theme song if he succumbs to Stribling's punches.

Stribling Still Favorite.

The more famous mental bettors of the loop yesterday continued to wager on Stribling to defeat Griffith. The amount of cash risked, however, was negligible, which, in itself, probably is proof tonight's fight will have no subsequent repercussion of the fake bout just as rain always follows the gale. There were several, whose standing in the boxing world commands attention, who fancied Griffith's cause. However, they are like the long shot gamblers who bet 'em long for distinction and in the hope that if the guess is correct it will add to their reputations for keen intelligence.

During his training days, Stribling has been feted as if victor already. The Medinah Athletic club, the Striblings' abode, has entertained, and the College Inn has announced a party following tonight's fight without reflection that it may honor a loser.

Johnson Meets Gagnon.

Stribling and Griffith won't command all the attention tonight, for if such were so, there would be no need for the preliminary bouts. The worries of these boys perhaps, are similar to the headliners', and they will go through the formal examinations and weighing in at the commission offices this afternoon, although in the shadow of their more important brethren.

Larry Johnson and Jack Gagnon have had their moments as boxing attractions and only a Stribling-Griffith bout could force them into a subsidiary position. Both are hard punchers and good receivers, facts which presage action. Natie Brown, who meets Frank Cawley in another eight round fight, lives by the same rule. The pair of six round bouts—Mickey McFarland vs. Willie Oster and Babe Stribling vs. Irish Kennedy—certainly will entertain sufficiently until the stars take the ring.

SINCLAIR SELLS 80 HORSES AT PRIVATE SALE

Rancocas Stock Brings $79,370.

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Harry F. Sinclair today disposed of nearly one-half of his racing stock in the first private sale ever held by the master of the Rancocas stable.

With bids falling far below pre-sale estimates, 80 stallions, weanlings, yearlings, and horses in training went under the hammer for $79,370, an average of $922. What the sale lacked in financial interest, however, it made up with a colorful throng of two thousand, which included metropolitan society prominent in racing, trainers, former jockeys, and agents of well known breeding farms.

Ariel Sells for $6,000.

Ariel, a 5 year old stallion, topped the auction, going to Adolph Pons of New York for $6,000. The youthful sire brought more than was expected, but Purchase, one of the famous race horses of all time, and Kai Sang, sire of many a race winner, fell below early estimates.

Kai Sang, which was expected to top the sale, went to C. B. Jackson for $3,500, while Willis Shea of New York obtained Purchase for $2,000. Frank Taylor, trainer for the Rancocas stable, intimated that Kai Sang was bought in by Sinclair interests and would be returned to the oil operator's Jobstown, N. Y., breeding farm. Mowise, the fourth of the quartet of stallions to be sold, brought only $550, going to A. Balsom.

Hyman Brings $5,700.

Ranking second to Ariel was Hyman, which won two races as a 2 year old during the last season. The daughter of Bud Lerner was bid in by John A. Munk of New York for $5,700. Sims, a 2 year old son of Luculiite, was a close third, selling for $5,000. Frank Brown, New York race horse owner, was the successful bidder.

Tom Cromwell, acting as an agent for several Kentucky breeding farms, stepped into the arena to purchase a black son of Luculiite for $2,500. The Tediu stable, owned by Clarence Luce Jr., obtained a yearling by Bud Lerner for $2,400. A. L. Nagle, who purchased several horses, got Sheaf, a 3 year old, for $2,200, while C. C. Frey bid $2,400 for Tradesman, another 3 year old.

War Instigator Victorious in Blue and Gray

New Orleans, La., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Frank Seremba's War Instigator, carrying 108 pounds, won the Blue and Gray purse, five and a half furlong feature here today, when he stepped the distance in 1:07.

The race was run in a light drizzle and the time was very fast. Hot Time was second, with Elizabeth Bolla third.

Chimney Sweep, in the silks of C. V. Whitney and favorite in the betting, was a poor fourth. He had speed for half a mile then stopped badly.

The start was good, Elizabeth and Chimney Sweep leading from the barrier and to the turn where Chimney Sweep tired.

War Instigator, which was far back early, began to close on the field and in a stretch long drive won going away by half a length. Hot Time beat Elizabeth Bolla a length for the show. The winner paid $25.

DEMOCRATS PLAN BOXING CARD FOR FAMILIES IN NEED

Will Ask 40 Round Limit Be Raised.

A boxing show for charity, planned as the biggest of its kind ever staged in Chicago, will be held at the Coliseum next Friday night.

It will be sponsored by the managing committee of the Democratic party of Cook county and promoted by the Coliseum club, of which George Ferguson is promoter and Jim Mullen matchmaker. The Democratic organization will receive 50 per cent of the gross receipts for distribution among the poor.

Yesterday the following Democrats were named by the managing committee as a subcommittee to handle the show: Anton J. Cermak, chairman; Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman; Joseph B. McDonough, county treasurer; Al Horan, chief of the Municipal court bailiffs; William Meyering, sheriff; Edward J. Kelly, Ben Lindheimer, Moe Rosenberg, Charles Weber, Henry Sonnenschein, and T. J. Crowe.

Matchmaker Mullen will line up an extensive card and ask permission to put on more than the usual limit of 40 rounds. Already he has matched George Neron, Greek heavyweight, and Paul Pantaleo, south side Italian. Batting Bozo, Birmingham, will be on the bill. Matches will be closed within the next two days.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

ShamrocksFall Before Millers by 2 to 1 Score

ter whanged it by Timmins with perfect artistry.

During this second period the Shamrocks were especially disappointing in two instances. With two Millers in the penalty box, Burns got the puck in scoring position, but he missed a two foot shot for the cage by an inch. After the Millers had made their marker, Minneapolis again had two men in the penalty box and Mulligan got the puck with no one between him and the goalie. Andy, however, was unable to ram the disc past Levine's padding.

Tie Score in Last Period.

It appeared that the Millers were going to make it 2 to 0 at the outset of the third period, when Johnson was given clear ice to the goalie's shin; but, like Mulligan in the preceding session, he was unable to drive the puck home after getting it up to scoring position.

The Chicagoans tied the score at the end of six minutes of the final period when Brydson took a pass from Taylor and skimmed it under the dancing Mr. Levine.

The tie was short-lived, for in 8:04 Leo Carbol did a solo number which made the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Millers.

Can You Dance, Sing, Play or Act a Part?

The Radio, Movies, Stage, Orchestras, Beckon to You.

A few weeks ago, a noted movie producer made the statement that he could not find dramatic talent of sufficient ability to hire them for his productions. According to this movie magnate, commercial America has little time or the inclination to develop fine dramatic or musical talent. Consequently, he hied himself to Europe to look for high priced stars.

We Agree and Disagree.

In part, this movie magnate is right. We have been too busy to develop much of our promising talent. However, as far as the inclination to become a nation of musicians and dramatists, there is definite proof that activity is going on constantly among the masses of the people. Were this not so, the Musical and Dramatic classification in the Tribune Want Ad Section would have long ago passed from the paper.

Demand for Talent Varies.

The Musical and Dramatic classification is almost as old as the Tribune itself. Today you'll find in it opportunities for tap dancers, radio blues singers, instrumental specialists, choruses, quartettes, chautauqua or platform entertainers, memberships in symphony orchestras, radio talent of all kinds, plectrum orchestras, church entertainers, singers and organists, folk dancers, particularly Russian, dramatic actors, Shakespearian actors (amateur), operatic singers, and quite often men are wanted who can direct stage productions, choruses and instrumental units.

Instructions Also Offered.

For those who have some talent, and wish to develop it, there are offers from singing teachers, teachers for all musical instruments, practice privileges, dancing instructors, teachers of elocution, song writers who will set your verse to music, coaches for dramatic productions, directors for amateur minstrels and community plays, and for many other musical or dramatic activities.

Of Special Interest to Parents.

The Musical and Dramatic classification in the Tribune Want Ad Section should be of special interest to parents whose children display natural talents. These talents should be developed, even though the child is quite young. A study of the lives of great artists will reveal that from early childhood their talents have been recognized and developed by their parents. Who knows but that your child will one day take his place in the halls of dramatic or musical fame?

To Young Men and Women

You young men and women who would be popular—if you already have some talent, develop it. If you do not know whether you have talent, look up an instructor in the field you like best and get his opinion. Not only will the development of your talents help you socially, but often financially, as well. To find an instructor who can help you, read the Musical and Dramatic classification carefully each Sunday.

AMERICANS BEAT BRUINS, 2 TO 1, IN 14-PENALTY GAME

Clapper and Himes Put On a Bout.

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The New York Americans outfought the Boston Bruins in a rough game tonight to gain a 2 to 1 victory. Fourteen penalties were handed out to the two teams, two of them majors for fighting.

The crowd of 8,000, which rioted unanimously against Eddie Shore, saw some of the smaller players provide the action. Near the end of the second period, Dit Clapper and Normie Himes got into a fist fight and Rabbit McVeigh came to the rescue of his slightly larger teammate. The result was a well filled penalty box with major penalties for Clapper and McVeigh.

All of the scoring came within five minutes at the end of the first period and the start of the second. Himes and Johnny Sheppard made the first tally. Shore tied the count a minute later on Art Chapman's pass. A lucky goal from Billy Burch's stick a minute after the start of the second period proved to be the winner count. The puck, coming from the corner of the rink, struck a Boston player and caromed into the goal.

CANADIENS WIN, 5 TO 4.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A fighting finish and speed that never ceased gave the Montreal Canadiens a 5 to 4 victory over Ottawa in an exciting overtime National Hockey league game tonight. The Canadiens flashed a pair of goals in the third period to gain a tie and then went on to win in the extra time on a brilliant goal by Howie Morenz.

For the first two periods and part of the third, Ottawa held its own against the blazing red shirts in a game of speed. They led 4 to 2 eleven minutes before the game ended, but weakened and Montreal's speed won.

MAROONS BEAT DETROIT.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Fighting off a determined last period attack, the Montreal Maroons tonight defeated the Detroit Falcons, 3 to 2, in Detroit's first appearance in Montreal of the National Hockey league season.

A fluke goal by Babe Siebert in the second period enabled the Maroons to escape a tie. Siebert's high drive from center ice dropped at Dolson's feet and hopped into the cage. The game was cleanly played and not fast. Montreal went into the lead in the first period on goals by Jimmy Ward and Nelson Stewart. Johnny Sorrell tallied Detroit's first goal in the same period on Goodfellow's pass.

Siebert's drive was the only goal of the second period, while Goodfellow scored again for Detroit in the third period on an unassisted shot.

ENGLEWOOD AND BOWEN DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER

Englewood's lightweights provided the day's upset in Chicago high school basketball yesterday by handing Bowen a 20 to 19 setback. It was the loser's first defeat of the season. Bowen heavies evened the program by trimming Englewood, 24 to 17.

Tilden and Hudson starred in Wendell Phillips' double victory over Medill on the home floor, the heavies winning, 25 to 11, and the lights, 25 to 10.

Morgan Park and Tilden divided a pair on the former's floor, the home heavies winning, 35 to 30, and the Tilden lights taking a 40 to 21 victory. Eckhart and Ballinger featured.

De Paul handed St. Ignatius a double defeat, the heavies winning, 22 to 12, and the lights, 22 to 16.

DISCUSS RULES FOR BEAR-CARD CHARITY GAME

Capt. Ernie Nevers and Dr. Jones of the Cardinals and George Halas, Ed Sternaman, and Capt. Red Grange of the Bears will meet Bobbie Cahn, Paddy Driscoll, and George Laurie, officials, at the Chicago Stadium this afternoon to discuss playing rules for the indoor football game to be played Monday night at the Stadium for the benefit of the governor's unemployment relief fund.

Inasmuch as the playing field for this unusual contest measures about 80 yards in length and just a few feet less than the standard gridiron in width, only a few special ground rules will be necessary.

than Mr. Walker's people can hope to duplicate the next day. Mr. Mara is what he is with apologies to nobody, but it will be readily understood that he is neither a general nor an admiral.

The Army-Navy game will not be an entire success. There are about 16,000 tickets of the $20, $30, and $50 denominations still unsold, and a gentleman working on the production states that the gross receipts probably will not exceed $600,000, whereas the gross capacity, including the radio rights sold for $150,000, is estimated at $1,100,000. The deficiency may be charged in part to an attitude of noncoöperation at the Military academy early in the promotion.

Gen. Smith had good professional reasons to disapprove of the game with the welfare of the Cadets in mind, and Maj. Ralph Sasse, the coach, also resisted until he got orders to prepare the team for the game which, being a good soldier, he obeyed. The general changed his mind so abruptly that I suspect that he, also, received orders to approve the game which, being a good soldier, he obeyed. But even after the game was agreed upon the West Point people assumed an attitude of participation without coöperation.

Perhaps they resented Mr. Whalen's intrusion into their undertaking, although it must be said for Mr. Whalen that he wasn't looking for trouble. On the contrary, he moved in and organized the show with something of the tireless energy of the late Tex Rickard when it looked as if the demand for the game was going to die away in rather querulous newspaper talk. He has worked hard, giving a lot of time to a job that nobody else in town seemed equal to and, even though the original idea was not his own, he has done more than any one else to produce the Army-Navy football spectacle. This may help to elect him mayor some time.

The Army was slightly annoyed at Mr. Whalen last year when, as police commissioner, he was not exactly alert to furnish a police escort for the West Point team in its bus ride to the Yankee stadium for the Notre Dame game. This resentment may have figured in the Ghandi attitude of the Military academy, but probably the real trouble was that West Point was coerced by Annapolis and the newspapers.

However, the officers of the Military academy have changed their demeanor of late. At first the game was to be merely an exhibition, a post-season, informal football show with no bearing on the old Army-Navy rivalry. But then the Army sent scouts to the last two Navy games and after the Navy licked Penn last Saturday the ballyhoo began to resound at West Point, culminating in a collegiate football furore when the general and all the other officers marched into the mess hall and exhorted the Army to lick the Naval academy.

Maj. Sasse, who hadn't wanted the game and thought it an unfair imposition on his players whom he calls his kids, got up and yelled that the Navy had been spoiling for a fight for years and that the Army was going to give it to them. If the players take the field in this grim mood some casualties may occur, and the Army-Navy game never may be repeated in this generation. But there are a lot of officers who think it shouldn't be repeated for a long time, anyway, because the rivalry is too bitter.

The Navy comes up with a psychological advantage. The midshipmen lost their football objective when some of their officers, without consulting them, broke an old agreement with the Army and involved the Naval academy on the wrong side of a political controversy. There are elements of revenge on both sides, but the midshipment, with their mediocre record for several years, have a chance now to redeem the Naval academy's prestige in one game with the team that lost to Notre Dame by a missed drop kick for a point after touchdown with a soggy ball.

Frank Carideo, the one greatest football player of the season, and Paul O'Connor, the emergency full back of this year's Notre Dame varsity, who humiliated Southern California last Saturday, are half expected to play with the Notre Dame alumni against the Giants. Knute Rockne is coming with them, too, at some risk of his health, and there will be circus publicity stunts along Broadway and at the city hall in behalf of the mayor's game.

Tickets are being sold in stores, theaters and hotels, and the town is generously stuck up with placards and window cards advertising the rival charities.

Before either game, on Friday night, there will be a featherweight championship fight in the Garden for another charity, one of the Christmas funds, with Bat Battalino of Hartford, Conn., the champion, defending the title in a 15 round bout with Kid Chocolate, the little Cuban Negro. The fight should be pleasant enough, but the championship character is quite technical.

Battalino is a sort of featherweight Al McCoy, or cheese champion, and Chocolate was beaten lately by Fidel La Barba, who thereupon lost to Eddie Shea. If Chocolate beats Battalino, then, logically, Shea will be the actual champion, which would be amusing considering that Shea was barred here a long time ago for flipping without due cause in a notorious bout with Charlie Phil Rosenberg.

However, this seems not to have been Shea's fault. Some low characters stuck guns in his ribs in his dressing room and advised him not to resist beyond round three. And, by a curious prank of justice, Shea and his manager were barred, but the low characters who intimidated him were allowed to continue their operations as fight managers.

Notre Dame, Purple Fives Meet Tonight

Northwestern university's basketball team journeys to South Bend tonight for the first of its annual two game series with Coach George Keogan's Notre Dame five. The clash will be the second of the year for both teams, the Irish having won over Kalamazoo Monday night while Northwestern was taking the measure of Bradley Tech. The second game of the series will be played at Patten gymnasium Jan. 3.

Rivalry Started in '22.

The basketball rivalry between Notre Dame and Northwestern dates back to 1922 when each team won a game. For the next four years Notre Dame was the victor in each contest, but in 1927 the Wildcats broke into the winning column with a 25 to 23 victory. Incidentally this was the year that Coach Dutch Lonborg took charge of the Purple basketball destinies.

During the last three years Northwestern has won four out of six games. However, every game has been closely fought, three of the six having been overtime engagements.

Johnson at Guard.

Coach Keogan has built his team around two veteran forwards, Crowe and Newbold. De Cook at center and Johnson at guard are other lettermen on the first string five. Ferris, a guard, is the only sophomore who will start.

Against Bradley Coach Lonborg started Riel and McCarnes at the forward positions and Lockhart and Marshall at the guards. All are lettermen. Joe Reiff, sophomore center, fitted in with the veterans in fine style. He is tall and is a good dribbler.

ROMANO TO USE HEADLOCK HOLD AGAINST LONDOS

Mike Romano will depend upon his headlock to beat Jim Londos, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, at the 202d Coast artillery armory Monday night. Londos is expected to employ the Japanese leg breaker, a hold said to be one of the most effective in the mat game. However, Romano claims the hold is illegal and will ask the referee to bar its use.

Delegations from Milwaukee, Beloit, St. Louis, and Baltimore have made reservations for tickets.

Automobiles Kill Rabbit Each Mile on the Highways

BY BOB BECKER.

The rabbit hunters in the middle west may take thousands of pounds of game from the fields every season, but their kills are no larger than those recorded by automobile drivers. As rabbit hunters we who drive cars across the country are making records as cottontail slayers that equal those of the boys who tramp across the fields with shotguns under their arms.

One authority estimated a few months ago that a "rabbit a mile" on the highways is a pretty safe statement as regards the terrific slaughter the gas buggies are responsible for each year.

Even cutting this estimate in half the number of animals wiped out by speeding cars is a staggering one. Usually the wild creatures are killed at night, when blinding lights paralyze them and make them easy prey for the driver who is not careful. Unfortunately, most of these rabbits are killed at mating time, which means that potential stock also is destroyed.

Rabbits are not the only game killed on the highways. Many a pheasant is bumped off. One of the amusing incidents of a hunt which we had during the recent pheasant season here in Illinois concerns a speeding car and a pheasant that was killed by a car. It was a foggy morning and the driver was hurrying to join us at breakfast before starting for the pheasant country.

As he hurried along in the fog something crashed into his windshield. It was a cock pheasant, which was killed instantly by the collision. The amusing thing about this episode was the fact that this hunter never had a shot all morning. The only cock pheasant he took home was the one his gas buggy had killed on the highway.

The slow moving skunk and pokey old possum also fall victims to the motor car. We have seen a number of skunks killed on concrete roads. The loss here is one that affects the fur hunters.

Oklahoma Aggies, Cornell on Gophers' Grid Card

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Scheduling of football games for 1931 with Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college at Stillwater, and Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia., was announced today at the University of Minensota. The Oklahoma game was scheduled for Oct. 3 and Cornell for Nov. 14.

Greenleaf Is 125-41 Victor Over Natalie

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf, defending title holder, defeated Pasquale Natalie of Chicago, 125 to 41, tonight for his third straight victory in the world's pocket billiards championship tournament. The game lasted only six innings.

Greenleaf's victory left him at the top of the heap with three triumphs in as many starts. Tied for second place are Arthur Woods and Onofrio Lauri of New York and Erwin Rudolph of Chicago, each with two victories and no defeats.

Greenleaf put together the biggest cluster of the tournament tonight when he ran 104 and his spectacular effort in running out in six innings also established a record for the tournament. He held the best previous high run mark of 85 and the fewest innings, eight.

Rudolph scored his second triumph in as many starts, defeating Thomas Boatman of Portland, Ore., 125 to 80, in 20 innings. Rudolph has a high run of 31; Boatman one of 29.

CATHOLIC PREP ALL-STAR GRID TEAMS TO PLAY

Two all-star elevens, one chosen from the north section of the Catholic league and another from the south section, will meet in a charity football game on the night of Dec 20 at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Proceeds of the game, which is being sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, will be turned over to the Associated Catholic charities. Arrangements for the game are in charge of St. Philip o. Neri council. The north section team is drilling daily at Loyola stadium under the direction of Marv Adams; St. Philip's High coach, while Joe Prelli is coaching the south siders at Jackson park.

Champions Clash Tonight in Bankers' Cage League

A game between champions features tonight's round of games in the A. I. B. division of the Greater Chicago Bankers' basketball league at the Naval Reserve armory on Randolph street. Continental Illinois, winner of the league championship last year, meets Personal Bank, Loop Financial league titleholder. Harris Trust will meet First National and Central Trust will face Foreman State.

De Paul Plays Cornell Five Here Tonight

De Paul university will seek its second straight victory of the basketball season tonight when it meets Cornell college in the De Paul gym.

Coach Jim Kelly will start Heinz Cpan and Stix Powers at the forward berths. Powers is a clever ball handler and an excellent shot.

John Ascher, who will appear at center, is a capable jumper and usually controls the ball. The O'Connors, Bud and Joe, have fitted in nicely at the guards. All five are unusually good scorers, thus lending more than ordinary deception to the De Paul attack. Probable lineup:

SMART RALLY BRINGS AID TO CHICAGO STOCKS

Number of Issues Sell at New Lows.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A smart little rally blew into the market in the early afternoon yesterday and administered first aid to a number of Chicago stocks which had suffered a rather severe drubbing during the early trading.

The rescue party came too late, however, to save a number of issues from selling at prices at which they had previously refused to be quoted. This group included Northwest Bancorporation, Central Public Service A and Insull Utility.

Unfavorable nature of the news in the banking situation was blamed for the liquidation in Northwest Bancorporation which sent the stock down to a new low price of 32. The effect of the bad news was counteracted to a certain extent later by a dividend and earnings announcement by the corporation and the stock rallied a point. The final price, however, was 2½ points below Wednesday's closing quotation.

Pays 40 Cents Quarterly.

Directors of the bank stock holding firm authorized the payment of the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents. Earnings of the company for 1930, with December profit estimated, are equivalent to $3.16 a share on the 1,670,330 shares outstanding, according to the announcement. Deposits of the member banks of the organization total $407,000,000 and total resources aggregate $485,000,000.

Throughout the remainder of the list the net losses were largely fractional. The final sale in Insull was made at 35⅝, as compared with its low for the day of 35⅝, and its previous low for the year of 36⅝. Reflecting the weakness in the stock the debentures were off 1½ to 3⅝ on a turnover of $38,000 par value. Cities Service and Middle West were each off a fraction at the close but both issues had been down more than a point from Friday's last prices during the height of the selling.

Grigsby Grunow and Majestic shares were dull and little changed. The Oct. 31 balance sheet of the Grigsby Grunow company, made public yesterday, disclosed current assets of $10,282,951 and current liabilities of $3,866,871, which compares with $9,134,399 and $3,501,645, respectively, as of May 31, 1930. The Grigsby company is on a six day week production basis at present and is turning out 1,500 small sets daily. The Majestic company is on a three day a week basis with a weekly output of 2,100 units.

The Sept. 30 balance sheet of Noblitt Sparks Industries shows current assets of $2,023,374 and current liabilities of $627,625. Surplus as of Sept. 30 was $753,362 and common stock outstanding amounted to 34,603 shares carried at $1,404,182.

Exchange governors listed 1,160,564 voting trust certificates for $3 preferred stock of General Theaters Equipment corporation of which 949,319 were admitted to trading. In addition 3,547,088 new voting trust certificates for common stock were listed, of which 1,898,637 were admitted to trading. The goverors removed from listing 3,777,965 voting trust certificates of old common stock. The corporation recently exchanged the old stock for new common and preferred.

BANKS LOOSEN MONEY BAGS FOR XMAS BUYING

Credit Demand Sign of Pickup.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There's going to be a lot of money in circulation between now and Christmas. And that means good business and cheerfulness all around. Already the season of gifts is exercising its influence, as evidenced by an increased demand on the banks of the country for money and credit.

The federal reserve system has turned out more than $70,000,000 additional funds in the last week, according to the weekly statement issued last night. As evidence of more active business, the member banks of the system expanded their borrowings from the reserve banks by $6,170,000 and at the same time the reserve banks afforded additional credit for commercial purposes by absorbing an additional $24,760,000 of bankers' acceptances and $14,811,000 of government securities.

Issue $24,847,000 in Notes.

Furthermore, in order to boost the pre-holiday buying along and meet demands for cash, the reserve banks issued an additional $24,847,000 of currency in the form of federal reserve notes. And it is this currency that will be spent or passed along in Christmas gifts.

The technical part of the report shows that the member banks now are borrowing $257,697,000 from the reserve banks. Deposits declined $2,-$15,000 in the last week. Gold and total reserves receded $2,471,000 and $1,328,000 respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities eased to 79.2 per cent, compared with 79.8 per cent last week.

Another cheerful influence on the country's financial situation came yesterday in the announcement that a reserve movement of gold from Canada was inaugurated with a shipment of $1,000,000 from Monteral to New York to bolster up Canadian exchange rates.

Deposits Expand.

The New York federal reserve bank made no change in its 2½ per cent rediscount rate. Its statement showed an expansion of $13,810,000 in member bank borrowings, bringing this item to $68,775,000. The reserve bank increased its holdings of bankers' acceptances and government securities by $7,755,000 and $11,129,000 respectively. Deposits expanded $37,991,000. Reserves increased $31,036,000 but the reserve ratio sagged to 82.7 per cent, compared with 83.4 per cent a week ago.

The report of the Chicago federal reserve bank showed an increase of $1,351,000 in member bank borrowings, bringing them to $22,410,000. The reserve bank bought $3,543,000 of bankers' acceptances and about maintained its holdings of government securities. Deposits receded $2,776,000. Reserves declined $6,350,000 and the reserve ratio fell to 80.9 per cent.

Brokers' Loans Off $12,000,000.

The decline in the stock market in the last week brought about a further decline of $12,000,000 in brokers' loans, according to the weekly report issued by the federal reserve board yesterday. It brought the total down to $3,809,000,000, which set another low record and established a recession of $1,326,000,000 from a year ago. It also marked the eleventh successive weekly decline and a total shrinkage of $1,122,000,000 during this period.

Interior banks put an additional $37,000,000 into the call money market but the New York banks reduced their own loans by an equal amount. Nonbanking lenders, including corporations, withdrew $12,000,000. They now are lending $1,479,000,000 less than a year ago and the interior banks are furnishing $310,000,000 less, whereas the New York banks are lending $481,000,000 more.

Murray Will Address Grain Analysts' Club

J. C. Murray, vice president of the Quaker Oats company and a candidate for president of the Chicago Board of Trade, will talk at the Grain-Market Analysis club meeting next Wednesday at the Midland club. Mr. Murray will tell of the distribution and use of oats in the United States. Frank G. Coe of the Corn Products company is scheduled for a talk on industrial uses of corn. The federal inspection of grain will be explained by Fred E. Smith.

Finds 99.5% of Advertised Goods Are as Represented

BY SCRUTATOR.

Since the days of Benjamin Franklin it has been a copybook maxim that honesty is the best policy. Business has always accepted it in theory, but sometimes individuals abandon it in practice. As a consequence there exists a considerable body of opinion among consumers to the effect that the buyer must always beware.

In this season of Christmas shopping it is important to spenders to know just how far they may trust merchants and particularly Chicago merchants who are offering goods for sale. Some exact figures on the best of them, those who advertise in the daily newspapers, are available. The conclusion: Of all the goods offered for sale in reputable public print, 99.5 per cent are as represented. It is a 200 to 1 chance that the buyers will get just what the advertisement says he will.

The figure is given by Flint Grinnell, manager of the Chicago Better Business bureau, an organization which is supported by 700 business concerns and is constantly checking up on practices which may deceive the public.

Seven Months' Probe.

"For seven months," said Mr. Grinnell, "we went through the advertisements and selected all that bore any earmarks of possible gyping operations. We sent shoppers to purchase the suspected goods. A reasonably large part of the suspected ones were found wanting in honesty, but the proportion of the whole advertising that was deceptive in the slightest degree was only half of one per cent.

"This is an added incentive for normal buying now. There is a marked trend toward the elimination even of the small fringe of unethical sellers. A few years ago a good many rabbit skins were sold in the form of expensive fur coats. Now it is almost unheard of for rabbits to be sold as anything but itself.

"The Better Business bureau has been in existence here for four years. We have a staff of twenty-three permanently employed and a maximum of twenty-five shoppers. A total of $80,000 a year is expended in preventing the public from being deceived. Cooperation of newspapers and advertisers is readily obtained. We call the attention even of our own members to things which are undesirable.

Make Maxim Effective.

"Sellers are really making 'honesty is the best policy' effective. Sometimes we have as many as fifty calls a day inquiring about permissible wording of advertisements concerning merchandise. It is encouraging also to find salesmen and salesgirls are being instructed to represent merchandise just as it is."

A considerable amount of small dishonesty still exists, enough certainly to justify the buyer in keeping up his guard. But the word of an investigating organization of standing that the advertising merchants give their customers the right deal 199 times while they give them a wrong deal only once is little short of astonishing.

M. H. SOWLES IS MADE OFFICIAL OF FOREMAN-STATE

Appointment of Melvin H. Sowles as vice president of the Foreman-State National bank was announced yesterday. Mr. Sowles for several years has been a vice president of Walker Brothers, bankers, of Salt Lake City, which position he relinquishes to accept the post with the Foreman bank.

MELVIN H. SOWLES

Mr. Sowles began his business career at the age of 17 as a clerk with a Salt Lake hardware concern. In 1921 he joined the banking firm of McCormick & Co. as vice president. In 1915 he was elected a director of the National Association of Credit Men.

Extra and regular dividend payments were reported yesterday by a number of Chicago banks. Banks reporting and the dividends were: Division State, extra of 2 per cent and regular quarterly of the same amount; Reliance Bank and Trust, extra of 2½ per cent and regular of 2½ per cent; Harris Trust, 4 per cent regular; Schiff Trust and Savings, 3 per cent regular.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Sales of the Hammond Clock company for November were approximately two and one-half times those of the same month last year, F. H. Redmond, vice president and general manager, stated yesterday. For the eleven months ended with November, 1930, sales were more than four times larger than for the corresponding period of 1929. "Despite the business depression," said Mr. Redmond, "electric clock sales have mounted steadily in each month of 1930." Net profits of Hammond Clock for the eight months ended Nov. 30 are estimated by Mr. Redmond at $3 a share.

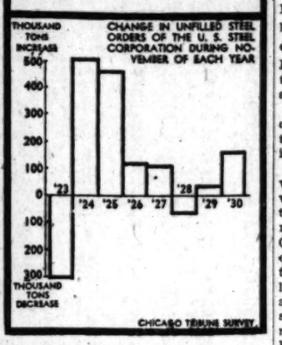
Lawrence H. Whiting, chairman of the board of the Indiana Limestone company, said that net profit for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 will be slightly in excess of the previous fiscal year and that the outlook for 1931 is good.

New automobile sales in Illinois for November totaled 4,414 cars, as compared with 7,648 in the preceding month and 8,195 in November, 1929. Sales for the first eleven months were 160,477, against 233,875 for the like period last year.

Nathan Strauss, Inc., reported November sales of $1,051,329, an increase of 15.4 per cent over $910,699 in the like month last year. Sales for the first eleven months this year aggregated $8,588,930, an increase of 23.4 per cent over $6,958,446 for the corresponding period of 1929.

A preliminary estimate of the November net operating income of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad placed the figure at $700,000, against $1,713,230 for November last year, Dow, Jones & Co. report.

NOVEMBER GAIN IN STEEL ORDERS WAS LARGEST FOR THE MONTH SINCE 1925



ANOTHER NEW LOW TOUCHED BY EGG FUTURES

For the seventh time in the last ten days, eggs for future delivery sold at record seasonal low prices yesterday. The December delivery hit bottom at 14¾ cents a dozen, ¾ cents a dozen lower than Wednesday's final quotations. Heavy selling on the strength of continued bearish production and storage news caused the decline.

Harry H. Field, manager of John F. Clark & Co., has been renominated for president of the Chicago Mercantile exchange on the regular ticket.

SAYS OIL FIRMS WILL RESIST EFFORTS TO REGULATE PIPE LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 11.—Railroad traffic in petroleum products has increased year by year to a greater extent than that of other freight, says E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum institute, in an open letter to R. H. Aishton, president of the Association of Railway Executives, in which he asserts that the oil companies will resist efforts to compel them to give up their pipe lines. That attempt, he declares, would be an "uneconomic interruption in the movement of petroleum and allied products."

The decision of the railway executives to appeal to congress for the segregation of the pipe line properties "appears to have been reached without benefit of a knowledge of the facts," declares Mr. Reeser, adding that the proposed legislation would increase the burdens of consumers of petroleum products, while it would bestow no benefits upon the railroads.

"Let us see to what extent pipe lines have taken petroleum business from the railroads," writes Mr. Reeser. "From the interstate commerce commission reports of class 1 roads we find that in 1924 there was a total movement of 52,226,703 tons of crude and refined petroleum products. This tonnage increased in the following year and in every year thereafter. The gain for 1929 over 1924 was 41.8 per cent. How does that compare with the gain in total carload traffic, including petroleum? This business in 1924 was 1,147,605,218 tons and, like oil and its products, it, too, increased each year.

"However, the total gain in all carload traffic in 1929 over 1924 was but 13.5 per cent, or slightly less than one-third of the percentage gain made in petroleum alone, and if the business can be segregated so as to leave out the contribution made by oil, the gain in other carload traffic would be less than that shown."

Mr. Reeser then gives figures to show that the movement of petroleum and its products in the first six months of the present year increased 3.5 per cent, while that of all carload traffic decreased 9 per cent.

Southern Ry. Declares Dividends of $5.65 a Share

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 11.—The Southern Railway announced today two regular quarterly dividends of $2 a share each on the common stock, payable Feb. 2 and May 1, respectively, and a third payment of $1.65 a share, payable Aug. 1, 1931.

In connection with the declaration of $5.65 a share in dividends at this time the company issued the following statement:

"The estimate of 1930 income, which was before the board today, was for earnings of $4.61 a share on the common stock, after providing for regular dividends on the preferred. Considering that during six years ended Dec. 31, 1928, the Southern distributed to its common stock holders little more than half of its earnings available for dividends on the common stock, the board desires, so far as it may, to continue to the common stock holders, during the calendar year 1931 an aggregate distribution equivalent to the 8 per cent paid them during several previous years.

"A resolution was therefore adopted declaring as dividends on the common stock the remainder of the income of 1929 not previously appropriated for this purpose, namely $3.65 a share, payable $2 on May 1 and $1.65 on Aug. 1, 1931. This is in addition to the declaration of the final quarterly dividend of $2 a share for 1930, payable Feb. 2, 1931.

Manon Boosts Dividend.

The Chicago, Indianapolis, and Louisville railway, controlled jointly by the Southern Railway and Louisville and Nashville, voted to increase its annual dividend on the common stock to $7 when directors declared a semi-annual dividend of $3.50 a share. Previously the company had been paying $5 annually on the common, in addition to a semi-annual extra of $1.

Directors of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, also controlled by the Southern Railway, declared the usual extra dividend of $5 a share in addition to the regular semi-annual distribution of $3.50 a share.

Philadelphia company announced an extra dividend of 35 cents a share and the regular quarterly of 20 cents on the common, both payable Jan. 31. An extra dividend of 15 cents a share was announced on the common in the previous quarter.

Budd Wheel Extra.

An extra dividend of 75 cents a share and the regular quarterly of $1.75 were announced on the first preferred stock of the Budd Wheel company. The quarterly of 25 cents was voted on the common.

A quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share was announced on the common stock of Bickford's, Inc., which is an increase of 5 cents over the previous rate, placing the stock on a $1.20 annual basis, against $1 previously.

Alaska Juneau Mining company declared an initial quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share, equal to 40 cents annually. Loew's Boston Theaters company has declared an extra dividend of 50 cents.

The regular quarterly payment of 87½ cents a share on the class "B" stock was declared by Arthur G. McKee & Co.

Directors of the Wisconsin Bankshares corporation voted an extra dividend of five cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly five cent dividend on 9,843,522 outstanding shares of common stock.

New York, Dec. 11.—Wall street was full of poison gas today. The suspension of a big chain bank in the early forenoon caused a batch of rumors that were floating around, some of them involving houses of the highest reputation and standing.

Under the circumstances, the share market naturally groaned and gave off a lot of queer noises. Indeed, more than 125 active issues, including some of the highest grade industrials of the list, hit new bottoms for the year or longer. General Electric and Westinghouse, for instance, and Western Union, and Pennsylvania railroad and

How a TRUSTEE MAKES INVESTMENTS

THE safe and profitable employment of money over long periods is a fundamental obligation of trusteeship. Perhaps a statement of the investment practices of this bank may satisfy a general interest regarding its uninterrupted success in this direction. ¶ As a preliminary step, a continuous search is made for the most attractive seasoned securities . . . and only those fully measuring up to our standards are placed on the approved list. In investing Trust funds, securities are chosen from this selected list by three successive committees which study the needs of the individual estate . . . building it into a scientifically diversified structure. ¶ Every investment is purchased primarily from the standpoint of safety . . . and is then kept under constant scrutiny in order that it may be replaced by another such investment if it appears that changing conditions may affect it. ¶ Thus, each estate as a whole . . . and every investment within it . . . must continually pass and repass the careful examination of analysis, investment and reviewing committees comprised of directors, senior officers and specialists whose combined opinion constitute, in actual fact, the best judgment of the bank. ¶ When you have named a trustee who follows these investment practices you have availed yourself of the strongest possible assurance of the safety and adequate earning of your estate.

The business of a trustee is not to make money for estates. It is to keep them with safety on a fair income basis. The record of trust companies in this regard, through periods of war, panic and economic unrest is not accidental. It is the result of organized methods . . . broad facilities . . . reliable sources of immediate information . . . capable men specially trained in this work.

REDUCE NUMBER OF GOVERNMENTS, URGES LELAND

Real Estate's Only Hope, Says Professor.

BY AL CHASE.

Real estate's only hope of relief from the various taxation burdens now imposed on it is through abolition of practically all the innumerable governmental bodies with which every state is inflicted, according to Dr. Simeon E. Leland, professor of economics at the University of Chicago. This suggestion was made at the annual conference of presidents of local associations federated with the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, which yesterday held the first session of a two days' meeting at the Union League club.

DR. S. E. LELAND. TRIBUNE Photo.1

"The only hope of relief for real estate," said Prof. Leland, "is to start abolishing unnecessary governments. We should start with townships, which have no functions worth mentioning, and then work toward the abolition of counties. Illinois is saddled with thousands of governments; there are two to every thousand inhabitants. Within a radius of fifty miles from where you gentlemen now are sitting there are 1,600 different governments. Illinois has 14,000 school districts.

Begin with Townships.

"The state can perform every function now done by the county and township governments without doing away with local autonomy. If you want to relieve real estate, start obliterating governments—that is: eliminate useless governments; begin with townships and then gradually eliminate counties. When our children are old men we can start on the states.

"If you really want to relieve real estate make the federal government real agents for all present governments and then abolish all local governments."

Atlanta Man Presides.

Charles F. Palmer of Atlanta, president of the National association, presiding at the various meetings of the day. Today's session will be devoted entirely to committee reports on various subjects and discussion regarding the next convention to be held in Seattle next July. The Building Managers' association of Chicago was represented at yesterday's conferences by President John T. Redmond, Graham Aldis, and Earle Schultz.

Theodore A. Thelander, trustee for the estate of Andrew Thelander, has sold to Nannette L. Frank and Jacob A. Frank the six apartment building at 917-19 Buena Park terrace, lot 50x 100. The purchasers paid all cash for the equity, the property being subject only to a first mortgage of $12,000, at 6 per cent. The deal was negotiated by Worthington & Worthington were the only brokers and will manage the property for the new owners.

NINE MONTHS' NET OF INT. TEL. & TEL. SHOWS $3,348,460 DECREASE

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—International Telephone and Telegraph corporation today reported for the first nine months this year net income of $3,348,460, a decrease of $3,248,460 from the $13,613,804 reported for the corresponding nine months last year.

Net for the 1930 period was equal to $1.55 a share on the no-par stock outstanding Sept. 30. During the twelve months ended Sept. 30 there was an increase in outstanding stock of 733,091 shares. Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents.

Earned surplus as of Sept. 30 was $31,710,719, against $28,054,706 Jan. 1 last.

Kelvinator corporation reports a 31 per cent increase in net profits to $1,801,616 in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 compared with the previous 65% year, despite heavy charges against operations for the period, covering bad and die expense and experimental work to the amount of $463,842. In addition there was a heavy expense incident to the introduction of a new line of refrigerators. Net for the year is equivalent to $1.35 a share on the 1,332,128 shares outstanding, and compared with $1,221,384, or $1.02 on 1,179,889 shares, for the last previous fiscal year.

COTTON OFF 75c TO $1.00

Liquidation was a feature in the cotton market in sympathy with the break in stocks and corn yesterday. Prices dropped to a new low for the season and closed 75c to $1 on futures in Chicago as of 7 to 15 points, with other markets off 11 to 13 points. Spots in New York declined 75 points to 9.95c, a loss of $1.00 a bale; in New Orleans dropped 15 points to 9.65c; in Galveston 9.75c and Houston 9.70c. Liverpool closed 12 to 14 points lower with spot sales 4,000 bales. At the extreme low December cotton was off $2.50@$3.00 a bale in 10 days, and compared with a high of the season last January prices have declined $30.00 a bale.

The Textile Merchants' association reported sales of standard cloths in November at 146.7 per cent of production, against 146.7 per cent in October, and 180.1 per cent in November. British Board of Trade experts for November were 11,000,000 lbs of yarns against 12,000,000 lbs last year and cloths 130,000,000 lbs against 294,000,000 lbs last year. Prices follow:

Top yesterday, $8.00; average, $7.25.
Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 28,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep.

Price slashing was in vogue in all branches of the live stock market on yesterday's session. Hogs sold at the lowest level since July, 1924, the top going down to $8.00 which was also the peak in the lamb market. The latter was only 25c above the lowest point since 1913.

A few specialties in the cattle market sold for Christmas trade up to $14.50, while few other sales were made over $13.00.

Hog prices hit a steep slide directly after the start and were still tobogganing at the finish. Losses of 15@50c were cited in comparing extremes of the two days, with bulk of sales off 25@35c. The extreme top showed 25c loss at $8.00, while the general average declined 30c at $7.65. Prices show losses of 50@60c since Monday and are mostly $2.50@4.00 under the high point of the year last August, when the range was much wider. Arrivals at 55,000 were augmented by 7,000 over from the previous session and 50,000 were still on the market after directs had been deducted. Armour, Swift, and Wilson handled a total of 25,000, including 12,000 bought here at $7.60@7.65 mostly. About 12,000 were estimated left at the close, but the five markets expect only $5,000 today, against 75,000 last Friday.

Hog Futures Decline.

Trading in hog futures slowed down yesterday and prices showed declines of 25@40c. January light sold at $8.35, against $8.80 earlier in the week. December contracts were bid $7.65@$7.75 and offered at $8.00, while March light were bid $8.00, medium $8.65 and light $8.50. On the "to arrive" market, light weights for today's delivery were bid $7.65, but there were no offers to sell.

In spite of the abbreviated supply of cattle unloaded on the market yesterday, packers insisted on another reduction in prices, which are mostly 50c to $1.00 under a week ago. Some weighty beeves were hard to sell at $1.00@1.25 less than a week ago. A load of fancy yearling steers of "show" type, averaging 912 lbs sold to Armour at $14.50, the highest price paid for cattle since middle of last May.

Heavy Lambs Neglected.

Medium and weighty lambs suffered most on yesterday's break, with sorting of extreme weights hardest of the season. Only fancy light passed $7.75, city butchers paying up to $8.00, while $7.50 purchased some good handy weights at the low time.

Extremely heavy lambs were rejected from loads and sold at $6.25@7.00, averaging 100@120 lbs. Aged sheep declined 25c more, while yearlings were quoted weak to 25c lower. Feeding lambs were unchanged.

MERCANTILE EXCHANGE

Egg futures again were on the downgrade on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, falling to new record low figures for the seventh time in the last ten days. December butter closed unchanged January up ¼@½c and February unchanged to ½c lower. Sales: Butter, 152 cars; eggs, 79 cars. Receipts: Butter, 3,703 tubs; eggs, 2,433 cases. WEAKNESS OF STOCKS LAMES GRAIN VALUES

Wheat Closes Unchanged to ½c Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Weakness in the stock market in New York had a depressing effect on all grains yesterday, and only supporting orders from the stabilization corporation prevented a decline in old crop deliveries of wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade.

There was little or no outside interest and prices fluctuated within a range of ¼@½c, with the bulk of the business at 81@81¼c for the May futures. Selling orders were in evidence ¼c above the "pegged" figures. Final trades were unchanged to ¾c lower, with old December at 77½c; March, 79¼c, and May, 81¼@81c.

July wheat, representing the 1931 crop, was under pressure from commission houses and the local element and declined 1½c to 71¾c, a new low for the season and the lowest figure at which that delivery has sold since 1903. Weakness in Winnipeg and Liverpool was a factor in making the break. While there is considerable timidity about pressing the selling side due to the stabilization operations in the old crop months, the finish was 1¼c lower at 72⅛@72¼c.

Spreading in May Wheat.

Part of the trade in May wheat represented spreading operations with Minneapolis, the latter being bought and Chicago sold at 5½c difference early, the farm board agency taking May in the northwestern market at 75⅝c. At the last, however, there was a spread of only 4½c between the two markets, the smallest in some time.

There is an apparent lack of confidence on the part of buyers of wheat in all markets, and the anticipated deluge of southern hemisphere grain abroad tends to greatly restrict purchases of Manitobas. Winnipeg was off 1⅛@1¼c for the day, while Buenos Aires dropped 2@2¼c and Liverpool 1⅝@1¾d. A break of ⅝c in the exchange rate was a factor in causing the drop in the Argentine market. No export sales of consequence were claimed at either the seaboard or at Winnipeg during the day.

Liquidation in Corn.

Fairly general liquidation developed in corn futures, with many local longs going out of their lines during the day, the break in the stock market being the dominating influence. However, there was fairly aggressive support on the way down, and holders of bids had little opportunity to operate against the latter. Short covering was the main influence in checking the decline, and toward the last there was a strong rally, with final trades unchanged to ¾c lower, the former on December, which was 72¾c at the last. March finished at 74⅝@74¾c; May, 76¾c, and July, 78@78¼c.

Unless there is an upturn in corn prices, the movement of cash grain to terminal markets during the next 30 days will not be heavy, according to a summary of a large number of reports from Illinois and Iowa to Lamson Bros. & Co. In some sections of the two states there will be enforced selling, but other parts may have to ship in corn. Feeders were reported as good buyers at a price well above a shipping basis in parts of Iowa. Prices paid to farmers for No. 4 yellow ranged from 55c to 60c per bushel, equal to 69@71½c track Chicago.

An advance of ⅛@⅜c in the basis on choice corn was made in the local sample market during the day. Shipping sales aggregated 75,000 bu. Buenos Aires closed ½@1¼c lower.

Quote: B, $3.60; E, $3.90; F, $4.05; G, $4.10; H, $4.15; I, $4.15; K, $4.30; M, $4.50; N, $5.10; WG, $6.45; WW, $7.15; X, $7.40.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed easy; sales, 1,150 bales. December, $2.34; March, $2.32; May, $2.33. Open market quotations [60 day basis]: Shanghai steam, extra B, $2.65; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, $1.85; Japanese crack double extra, $2.80.

WOOL.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A good selection, amounting to 11,366 bales, was offered at the wool sales today. Bidding was spirited and home traders secured the bulk of the offerings. The best grades of scoured and greasy merinos were firm and in sellers' favor. The sales will close Dec. 13 instead of Dec. 12 as previously announced.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

THE GREATEST USED CAR SALE IN THE HISTORY OF CHICAGO

Prices have been slashed hundreds of dollars to assure immediate turnover of the entire stock. Come early today or this evening—secure first choice of these bargains at Studebaker's Christmas Clearance Sale.

5 days' free driving trial goes with every car sold, under the terms of the Studebaker Used Car Pledge.

FORD TUDOR SEDAN, Late Model A that was in storage for 11 mos., so it will give new car satisfaction today. Has a sweet running motor and every detail of the interior & exterior appears new. Many extras. $295.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA, 1927 Dictator 4 with expensive mohair upholstery and finish that glistens like a new dollar. Motor is A1. Has 4 wire wheels, snubbers, bumper, spare tire, etc. $295.

DE SOTO COACH. This car was only driven a few thousand miles. The finish, upholstery and tires appear in the original new condition. And the motor runs smoothly and quietly. Has a wealth of extra equipment. $395.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN, 1929, with shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Duco'd a beautiful sea green. The upholstery appears unworn, and the motor is very efficient. $495.

ESSEX COACH, 1929 that was oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original owner, so now it's in topnotch condition throughout. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery and tires are in new condition. 4 wire wheels, shock absorbers, shatterproof glass, bumpers, spare tires, etc. $385.

ESSEX SEDAN, 1929 series "400" that was left the Chicago blvds. An inspection of its appearance and a personal demonstration will convince you that this car will give the satisfaction of a new Nash. Very fully equipped. $495.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT, 1928 str. 8 sedan model, 7 pass., with wire wheels, shock absorbers, bumpers, two spare tires mounted in fender wells, and other extras. This car was chauffeur driven and given extra attention, so it looks and runs as though just from the factory. $795.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN, 1928 Great Six model, a smart looking blue. Equipped with 4 wire wheels, spare tires and tube, and with 6 extras. It's the last word for smooth performance and attractive appearance. $495.

ROADSTER COUPE, 1930—eight only left for a few weeks. This car is equipped with a spacious rumble seat, trunk, driving light, wire wheels, spare tire mounted in fender wells, and other valuable extras. A remarkable buy at our sacrifice price.

SUITE SEDAN, 1929 eight with custom body. This car is a symphony in dark green. The appearance is beautiful, and the expensive upholstery is protected by slip covers. Has wire wheels, two spare tires in fender wells, shock absorbers, spare trunk rack, etc. The tires are practically brand new and the motor runs like clockwork. Can only a fraction of its original cost. $895.

DODGE SEDAN, 1930 that we recommend as one of our very best buys. It was only driven on Sundays and evenings for pleasure purposes, so it's in new car condition today. Has every essential extra. $695.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT VICTORIA, late four pass. str. 8 with wire wheels, motor wells, and many extras. Has luxurious mohair upholstery and the motor was recently overhauled by expert Studebaker mechanics. The finish has not a scar on it and the tires have little mileage. Specially marked at $1,185, but it's worth more this price.
